GERMANY AND FRANCE BEGIN DISCUSSION OF PEACE POLICY

Briand and Stresemann Open Conversations at Geneva on Their International Problems.

TO CARRY OUT PLEDGE GIVEN TO THE LEAGUE

Reduction of French Forces in Rhineland Reported to Be Among the Subjects Considered.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 11.—Conversations, the object of which is a broad Franco-German understanding not only on problems existing between France and Germany but on international policies as a whole, were begun today between Gustav Stresemann, the German Foreign Secretary, and M. Briand, Foreign Minister of France, with the knowledge of both Sir Austen Chamberlain, Great Britain, and Vandervelde of Belgium.

This is the beginning of the embodiment of pledges made by the German and French statesmen in the League Assembly yesterday that they would strive loyally to reach an accord.

It is understood that broad lines were discussed today. It is learned from German sources that Dr. Stresemann broached the matter nearest to the German heart, namely, the reduction of the French forces in the Rhineland. He proposed first, that the number of troops should be reduced from 70,000 to 38,000; second, the evacuation of three watering places, Kreuznach, Langenschwalbach and Neuenahr; third, rendering all occupation "invisible."

One special subject to be embraced in the proposed understanding is elaboration of an accord on financial and economic questions along the lines of the Franco-German trade agreement, which has been under negotiation but with larger ramifications.

After a long conversation with M. Briand, Dr. Stresemann conferred with Sir Austen Chamberlain and put the British statesman in touch with the details of the Franco-German conversations, which will be continued next week.

Spain Formally Withdraws From League of Nations.

GENEVA, Sept. 11.—Spain has left the League of Nations. An official communication announcing Spain's withdrawal was received at Geneva today and circulated immediately among all the members of the League. The communication declared that Spain had taken this step "in obedience to imperative duty."

The resignation is dated San Sebastian, Sept. 8, and signed by Foreign Minister Yanguas. It was delivered personally to Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General of the League, by the Spanish Consul in Geneva.

(The Associated Press announced Sept. 8 that Spain had definitely decided to resign from the League of Nations; that the resignation had been agreed upon at a Cabinet council and that a note had been prepared for dispatch to Geneva.)

The note glides over the reason for the resignation, but the Spanish representative had made it perfectly clear that the cause of the withdrawal was failure to obtain a permanent seat in the Council of the League simultaneously with the election of Germany to that honor.

It points out that Spain had refrained from giving official notification until the Assembly had approved the reform in the composition of the Council as regards permanent members, because it wished to show respect for the League of Nations and desired also to await the Assembly's pronouncement on the admission of Germany, which event Spain ardently hopes will be of great advantage to the League of Nations."

In conclusion the note says:

"In leaving the League of Nations in obedience to imperative duty, Spain desires to express the hearty wish that the high ideals of universal peace for which the League was founded and which her country has hitherto so earnestly and so effectively served, will be crowned with success."

The Spanish resignation deranges the plans of the League leaders concerning the League Council, which henceforth will consist of 14, instead of 10 members. An agreement had about been reached to elect Spain to a temporary seat and simultaneously extend her mandate of re-eligibility, thus virtually assuring her unbroken membership in the Council.

WORLD'S SERIES 'IF' PLAN SETS FIRST LOCAL GAME FOR OCT. 5

Landis and Agents of Four Contenders Agree on Dates—Cardinals Not Yet Taking Ticket Orders.

The 1926 series for the world's baseball championship will start in the American League pennant-winning city on Saturday, Oct. 2, with the second game in the same city the following days. Should the Cardinals win the National League pennant the first St. Louis game would be Tuesday, Oct. 5. The second would follow on Wednesday, Oct. 6, and the third, if necessary, would be Thursday, Oct. 7. Any further necessary games would be played in the American League city.

This was decided yesterday in Pittsburg at a meeting of Commissioner Landis with representatives of the four contending teams in each league.

The same prices that prevailed in 1925 will be charged: Box seats, $6.60 each; reserved seats, $5.50; general admission, $3.30; bleachers, $1.10, all including tax. The games will start at 1:30 p. m. standard time, eastern or central.

The race, at the close of yesterday's games, remained close. The Cardinals were two games ahead of Cincinnati and three and one-half games ahead of Pittsburg.

Sam Breadon, chief owner of the Cardinals, indicated yesterday in Pittsburg that an announcement would be forthcoming in a day or two as to the date upon which the St. Louis club would begin to accept orders for tickets. He reiterated that until that date all orders would be ignored. Each applicant must buy two seats to the series here. Seats for any one game will not be sold. All orders must be accompanied by a certified check.

Any world's series in St. Louis would coincide with the annual Veiled Prophet celebration. The V. P. parade will be Oct. 5, the day of the opening game, and the ball on Oct. 6.

ADMITS HE BLEW UP BROTHER WITH DYNAMITE TO GET $2000

East Peoria (Ill.) Man Fastened Fuse to Exhaust of Automobile.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 11.—Herman Pfeiffer, 22 years old, of East Peoria, confessed to State's Attorney Dunkelberg of Tazewell County tonight that he killed his brother, William, with dynamite, to collect his $2000 insurance money.

The crime was committed May 19 last, when William and a hired hand were returning from a fishing trip. A tiny section of miner's fuse was taped to the exhaust pipe of the truck in which William Pfeiffer and a companion were riding. When the fuse heated it touched off dynamite placed just alongside the gas tank under the driver's seat. The explosion occurred on East Peoria Hill, a very steep incline.

A bit of the fuse remaining on the exhaust pipe after the blast led to the solution of the murder by Harry J. McKee, a detective of the Burns agency's Chicago office.

INFLUENZA CUTS FUR CATCH

Epidemic Among Arctic Hunters; More Than 100 Dead.

By the Associated Press.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 11.—Nearly 100 men and women of the Herschel Island region, and 35 adults at Coronation Gulf, both on the North American coast of the Arctic Ocean, had died in an influenza epidemic, when the trading schooner, Old Maid No. 2, visited there this summer, Capt. Karl Klengenburg reported upon his return here today. At another post many natives were ill.

The Old Maid returned with a fur cargo valued at about $100,000, but Klengenburg said the winter's fur catch had not been good, owing to illness of the natives.

ACTRESS FOOLS A SENATOR

Nora Bayes Gives Pat Harrison Card to Piccadilly Circus.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—Nora Bayes put one over on Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi. The senator, while in Berlin, didn't mind telling the joke. He met Miss Bayes on the boat coming over. Professing never to have seen Miss Bayes in vaudeville, the Senator said he received her card upon which she had written: "Please admit my good friend Senator Harrison to Piccadilly Circus." It was not until after he got to London, Harrison said, that he found Picadilly circus was a public square and not a theater.

Mme. Entezam's Car Kills Man.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Jesse Cadel, 76 year old, was killed today, when a machine, in which he was riding, overturned after being struck by an automobile driven by Mme. Abdullah Entezam, wife of the Secretary of the Persian legation. Mme. Entezam formerly was Miss Margaret Hume, prominent in Washington society.

CLUB ARGUES LAW OF 1794 COULDN'T APPLY TO BASEBALL

Sport Was Unknown Then, Say Philadelphia Athletics in Blue Law Action.

By the Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 11.—The Philadelphia Athletics, defending their right to play Sunday baseball, claim that the sport was unknown more than a century ago, and that the Sunday blue laws of 1794, therefore, cannot apply to baseball. The club today filed in the Dauphin County Court its reply to the proceeding instituted by Attorney-General Woodruff to halt the playing of baseball on Sunday in Philadelphia. The reply attacks the constitutionality of the old law.

The ball club's answer also refers to a ruling by the United States Supreme Court that the playing of baseball, witnessed by persons who paid admission fees, is a sport, not a business.

GIRL'S REJECTED SUITOR HELD FOR FIRING INTO AUTO PARTY

Two Young Women and Youth Wounded by Shotgun Charge at Ellinwood, Kan.

ELLINWOOD, Kan., Sept. 11.—William Birzer, 25 years old, was arrested last night on a charge of attempted murder last Sunday night. An automobile in which Joe Schartz and his sisters, Catherine and Margaret, and the Misses Mary and Roberta Zecha of this city, and Oscar Hirsch of Kinsley, were riding was fired into with a double-barreled shotgun.

The Zecha girls and Hirsch were wounded. Mary Zecha was struck by 16 shot and her sister, Roberta, by 18. Hirsch was hit by more than a dozen.

Suspicion fell on young Birzer because he was a rejected suitor of Mary Zecha. He was said to have threatened young men who called on her.

MAN HUNTED EIGHT YEARS FOR MURDER HERE IS CAPTURED

Steve Hardin Came Back Last May, Lay Low Until Yesterday, and Took Ride Only to Be Caught.

EFFORT TO BE MADE TO REOPEN CASE

Detectives Believe Prisoner to Be Responsible for Many Recent Holdups in City.

Steve Hardin, 31 years old, ex-convict and gunman, who had not been seen in St. Louis since police sought him as a suspect in the murder of Joe Mount, saloonkeeper, eight years ago, came back to town last May and lay low until yesterday.

He was seen and recognized by Police Captain George T. Dineen of the Deer Street District while riding with two men in a dilapidated Ford touring car in the 4800 block on St. Louis avenue, shortly after noon. Captain Dineen and two detectives arrested Hardin when he and his companions stopped in front of a saloon in the block.

"My name is Boaz," Hardin protested.

"I remember you. We'll go to the station," Captain Dineen replied.

Leaving the three prisoners with Detective Finn, Captain Dineen and Detective McGhanhan entered the saloon to look about for other suspicious characters. Suddenly they heard a shot outside and, rushing to the street, saw Hardin fleeing. Dineen took charge of the remaining prisoners and sent Finn and McGranhan after Hardin.

Twelve Shots Were Fired at Him.

The detectives chased Hardin for three-quarters of a mile, firing 12 shots at him. One bullet burned his neck and he stopped, holding up his hands. He was taken to police headquarters and there, after questioning by Captain Dineen, admitted he was Hardin.

"I couldn't place you at first," Captain Dineen said, "but the minute I laid eyes on you, I knew I had met you before in my professional capacity. I recollect now just how it happened. You escaped from the Workhouse in 1917 and I was a Sergeant then. I pinched you in Fairmount, Ill., and brought you back."

"That's right," Hardin admitted.

But further admissions, the prisoner would not make. He is supposed to know the circumstances under which Mount, who kept a saloon at 1315 Market street, was shot down during a holdup in his place Jan. 22, 1918. Three robbers were reported to have entered the saloon and in an exchange of shots with Mount and some other man never identified, two of them, Tom Tarpy and William Moran, professional stickup men, were slain. Mount fell dead in the revolver fight.

Subsequent inquiry by Post-Dispatch reporters disclosed that Hardin, who had been paroled from the Workhouse four days before, had been seen in an automobile with Moran and Tarpy an hour before the holdup. It was further learned that Moran, Tarpy and Hardin had been Workhouse prisoners at the same time and were pals. Witnesses told police that after Mount and the two holdup men were killed, a third man ran from the saloon and escaped in an automobile driven by a fourth man.

Will Try to Reopen Case.

Police will seek to draw from Hardin information about this murder, and if anything is learned will inquire of the Circuit Attorney's office whether the case will be reopened.

Hardin began his criminal career here in June, 1914, when he was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for highway robbry. He served 20 months. In November, 1916, he was caught in a holdup again, and in February, 1917, was sentenced to two years in the workhouse. He escaped in March and was caught three months later and returned to the workhouse by then Sergeant Dineen. In January, 1918, he was paroled from the workhouse.

Then came the Mount murder, and Hardin drifted away. Since then he has served a sentence in the Ohio State penitentiary at Columbus for carrying concealed weapons and another terms in the State reformatory at Toledo for robbery.

Detectives believe he may be responsible for numerous hold-ups recently and will ask victims of these robberies to look at him. His two companions also are held.

DEPUTY KILLS TWO SUSPECTS IN BANK ROBBERY IN FIGHT

Boonville, Mo., Officer Shoots It Out With Elbert Bardwell and Bill Palmer Near Sedalia, Mo.

HAD WAITED 10 DAYS AT FORD FOR THEM

Pair Wanted in Connection With Holdup of Depository at Pleasant Green, Mo., on July 28.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., Sept. 11.—Elbert Bardwell of Sedalia, sought in connection with the $7700 holdup of the Pleasant Green, Mo., bank on July 28, and Bill Palmer, also wanted by Cooper County authorities in the same robbery, were shot and killed near here today by Deputy Sheriff Cecil Jenkins of Boonville, 30 years old.

The two men in an automobile were hailed by Jenkins at the Grand avenue ford on Flat Creek, three and a half miles southwest of here, and ordered to surrender. They opened fire, Jenkins dodged behind a tree and replied with an automatic shotgun, killing both men.

Jenkins then notified Sheriff Rector and Coroner Jones at Sedalia. Jones ordered the bodies removed to a Sedalia morgue.

Jenkins, on receiving a tip in Boonville, that some of the suspects in the Pleasant Green holdup had been in or near Sedalia, had lain in wait for them at the ford almost night and day for the past 10 days.

The automobile, in which the suspects were riding, is believed to have been stolen. In it were three revolvers, a high-powered rifle, a sawed-off shotgun and a bucket full of ammunition for the various weapons. The car had a Kansas license plate.

James A. Lunsford, first suspect arrested after the Pleasant Green robbery, is out on bond, and Johnny Wolford, who has confessed participation in the holdup, is in jail at Boonville awaiting trial at the October term of court. Mrs. Grace Craw of Sedalia, rooming house keeper, arrested on a charge of complicity in the robbery, was released at a preliminary hearing at Boonville, and Claude Wilkerson, Sedalia lawyer, also accused of complicity, was discharged at a preliminary hearing last Tuesday at Boonville.

SPRINTER TO POLISH HARNESS

Odd Sentence for "Ringer" Who Won Police Race.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Herman Horowitz, high school print star, who essayed the role of a traffic policeman yesterday in order to compete in police games, must polish 25 saddles and bridles in the traffic division barns before he can return to civilian life.

A Judge imposed that sentence today on the youth who masqueraded as a policeman and showed his heels to a dozen "flat foots" in winning a race for the traffic division at a police track meet. The offense of the youth occasioned some levity in court but not among police who arrested him on the charge of impersonating an officer. Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins suspended Sergt. Fred W. Salter who was said to hve "run in" Horowitz as a contestant under the name of an absent competitor. The impersonation charge against the youth was dismissed.

ATHENS, Sept. 11.—The Government proposes a speedy trial for the mutineers who rioted Thursday in favor of Gen. Pangalos, the deposed Dictator. The abortive revolt concerned mainly two corps of the Republican guards. The latest casualty list was 32 killed and 200 injured.

It is expected the trials will begin Monday.

ATTEMPT TO KILL MUSSOLINI FANS FEELING AGAINST FRANCE

Benito Mussolini in the Uniform of an Admiral.

PREMIER WARNS NATIONS AIDING FOES OF FASCISM

'Friendship May Be Fatally Compromised,' He Says —Threatens to Restore Capital Punishment.

ROME OVERJOYED AT HIS ESCAPE

Bomb-Thrower, Arrested, Declares That He Played Lone Hand, but Police Do Not Believe Him.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 11.—A bomb flung at Premier Mussolini this morning by an Italian anarchist, who had come from France to kill him, has caused relations between Italy and France to be more strained tonight than at any time since the Fascisti took charge of Italy in October, 1922.

Mussolini was not hurt. The chauffeur of his car stepped on the gas when he felt the bomb strike the side of the machine. As the machine leaped forward the bomb fell to the running board, then rolled to the ground.

When the bomb exploded with a terrific detonation, the car was many yards away.

Mussolini escaped without a wound, but eight persons in the street suffered superficial wounds.

Bomb Thrower Captured.

The would-be assassin, Ernete Giovannini, 26 years old, a marble-cutter, was captured on the spot. Police saved him from the mob which gathered quickly.

This, the third attempt in a year to kill the Fascist dictator, was made while the premier was riding in his closed limousine from his home in Villa Tortolonia to the government offices in Chigi Palace.

This evening's sequel to the attempted assassination was dramatic and pregnant of meaning to Mussolini, Italy and all of Europe.

"Italy must not be disturbed by a handful of criminals," declared Mussolini. "As I have abolished strikes so I shall also abolish this sort of thing with the restoration of capital punishment. It will be less and less comfortable to endanger this regime and the tranquillity of the Italian people, I am not saying vain words, but announcing facts."

The premier faced a cheering mob of several thousands.

Mussolini Warns France.

He announced that Italy would demand that plots against her peace fomented on French soil must be stopped at once.

"This must end," he shouted to the gathering in Colonna Square. "We must put an end to gentle tolerance of parties culpable in these matters. It would be well for responsible governments to take note of this because otherwise their friendship with the Italian people may be fatally compromised."

Mussolini used the words governments (plural), but it was clear that he meant France.

Giovannini, the bomb-thrower, is a pale, tense-faced young man with burning eyes and thick long hair. He claims to be an anarchist and says he alone conceived and carried out the plot.

When first questioned by police he would not talk but several hours of examination broke down his reserve and he cried, "I'm tired. Wait a bit and I'll tell you everything."

Then followed his confession.

Bomber Shows No Emotion.

The prisoner showed no emotion when captured or on the trip to the police station when he was menaced by the hostile crowd. He maintained his cool demeanor when taken to the main prison to be questioned and there, after answering the preliminary questions, he calmly demanded a cigarette and a glass of water.

Police do not believe the prisoner's claim that he was alone in his plot.

Mussolini's escape from death evoked a demonstration of popular joy in Rome paralleled perhaps only by the armistice day celebrations in New York or London or Paris. All Rome indulged in a demonstration that increased in fervor all day long and culminated

NUNS HELD SUSPECTED OF SMUGGLING LACE

Four Halted at St. Albans, Vt., Had $5000 Worth Sewed in Clothing.

By the Associated Press.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Sept. 11.—Under federal guard at a hotel here tonight four nuns of the Order of Franciscan sisters from Massachusetts convents were held as suspicious persons by customs authorities. The nuns were arrested early today on a sleeper of a train bound from Montreal to Boston when fine laces valued at more than $5,000 were found secreted in their clothes.

The customs officials identified them as sisters Isarr and Perfetu Locoro, of St. Anthony's convent, Fall River, Mass.; Sister Cagrado, mother superior of the convent of Our Lady Gloria, New Bedford, Mass., and Sister Des Oliviers, of the convent of Our Lady of Good Help, East Boston, Mass.

Dispatches from Massachusetts state that the party had been at a retreate at a Canadian convent. Their ownstories indicate they were on their way from Quebec City when arrested.

Harry Whitehill, Collector of Customs, said his inspectors noticed that their garments seemed unusually large. While the train was stopped in Richford, they were asked if they had anything to declare for customs and all replied in the negative.

A few minutes later, a piece of lace was seen protruding from the gown of one of the nuns. They were immediately taken from the train and searched by a woman customs official.

This search disclosed a large quantity of first quality lace sewed into specially made petticoats which they said they had obtained at a convent on Saint Dominick street in Montreal yesterday.

All professed inability to speak English at first but after extensive questioning by a French interpreter they are reported to have begun answering questions in English.

They disclaimed knowledge of how the lace came to be in their petticoats and said the clothing was given them at the convent without any mention that it was filled with contraband. An examination of their baggage disclosed a quantity of cans filled with a French patent stomach medicine. Some of the seized lace bore price tags and one small piece was priced at $150.

The nuns asked to have counsel and a Burlington lawyer was notified. They made no effort to get in touch with their convents. They will be arraigned before the United States Commissioner, here Monday.

ONE KILLED IN BLAST NEAR FASCIST MEETING

Auto Gas Tank May Have Exploded, but New York Police Suspect Bomb.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—When a Ford roadster with three men in it stopped shortly after 9 o'clock tonight near an open-air Fascist meeting, Police Sergt. Leo Ferda glanced idly at it, then turned to keep an eye on the meeting. There was a deafening explosion. Apartment windows for more than a block around were shattered.

Where the automobile had been was only a heap of wreckage. The three occupants lay motionless 20 to 30 feet away.

One of the men was dead. The others, badly mangled, were Alfred De Mardo and Joseph Paciocco, both unconscious.

One theory is that the gasoline tank of the car had exploded. Police nevertheless set to work on the theory that a bomb, perhaps intended for the meeting of Fascist sympathizers, had exploded prematurely, but search failed to uncover a part of a bomb in the vicinity of the wrecked car.

SCOPES CASE FACES REVERSAL AS RESULT OF '$50 ERROR'

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, Tenn., Sept. 11.—The famous Scopes evolution case is expected to be reversed by the Tennessee Supreme Court by reason of a matter involving $50.

An ancient and somewhat neglected provision of the State Constitution limiting to $50 the amount of a fine that may be imposed by a trial Judge on any defendant has been dug up by attorneys interested in the evolution trial, which, even in the absence of other error in the lower court, may entitle John Thomas Scopes, the high school teacher, convicted of teaching evolution, to a new trial.

The anti-evolution statute sets the fine for persons convicted under it at from $100 to $500. The Scopes jury, when returning its verdict of guilty, left the amount of the fine to the trial Judge, and Judge John T. Raulston imposed the minimum fixed by the act of the Legislature. Now it is contended that only the jury could impose a fine larger than $50.

Attorney-General Stewart, who prosecuted Scopes in the Dayton court, in a statement today, admitted the possibility of reversal by the Supreme Court by reason of the "$50 error."

$5,000,000 FOR INDIAN MOVIES

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Sunday Express announces that six Indian princes have combined in a scheme to spend £1,000,000 ($5,000,000) to promote British picture films in India in an endeavor to break the American grip on the movies.

BUTLER URGED NEW HEARING OF SACCO, VANZETTI

Italian Vote Strong in Massachusetts and Senator May Suffer for Deeds of Party's Men.

NEW EVIDENCE TO BE HEARD TOMORROW

Vanzetti Doesn't Want Mercy, but Justice — Sacco, With Martyr Complex, Is Called a "Nut."

THIS is the concluding article of a series, printed in the Post-Dispatch, giving the history and background of the celebrated Sacco-Vanzetti case which will be reopened for the hearing of new evidence tomorrow at Dedham, Mass. Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti are under sentence of death following their conviction of the holdup murder of a paymaster and his guard at South Braintree, Mass., on April 15, 1920.

By JOHN J. LEARY JR.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—Much water has passed under the bridge since Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted of murder July 14, 1921. Much also has happened at home and abroad in connection with the case.

At home, Sacco and Vanzetti have been in and out of insane asylums, the case in one way or another has been continuously in the courts, all of the lawyers originally for prosecution or defense have withdrawn from the case or retired from office, witnesses who identified the prisoners have recanted their testimony and then recanted their original recantations, both sides profess to have new witnesses.

The new witnesses obtained by the State are, according to Dudley P. Ranney, who has succeeded to the work done by three generations of District Attorneys, those who were intimidated from testifying at the time of the trial.

The new witnesses for the defense include some named in earlier proceedings as having been known to the State and their existence and concealed by it. One of these, as stated in the records of the case, was shot at by the murderers and was positive in his declaration that neither Sacco nor Vanzetti were in the murder party.

Attack on U. S. Embassies.

Abroad the case has been made an excuse for demonstrations against United States embassies and consulates, including attempts to blow up Ambassador Herrick in Paris and diplomatic buildings elsewhere until today embassies, legations and consulates in all parts of the world are under guard.

The first of the more impressive demonstrations abroad came Oct. 19, 1921, when the valet to Ambassador Herrick in Paris suffered a maimed hand opening a package addressed to the Ambassador and marked "Perfumery."

On the same day a mob of Belgian Communists attempted to storm the United States embassy in Brussels.

Two days later hundreds of Sacco-Vanzetti meetings were held in Paris and cavalry had to be used to keep them from the embassy.

About the same time there were anti-American demonstrations, many of them of an extra violent character, in Bordeaux, Marseilles, Lyons, Rome, London, Vera Cruz, Algiers and other places, including Lisbon, where an effort was made to blow up the consulate. More recently there have been bomb explosions in Montevideo and other South American cities.

These early demonstrations and explosions were the direct result of the efforts of a committee of three radicals in Boston. Operating from a small room in the North End, they established a periodical which they called L'Agitatione, and circulated it and another literature calling for protests against the conviction of the two men.

A. F. of L. Urges New Trial.

There also have been many demonstrations in American cities and labor unions, led by the American Federation of Labor, which termed the convictions a gross miscarriage of justice, and urged that the men be given a new trial.

A new trial also has been urged by many representative women, including Mrs. Leonard Elmhirst (Mrs. Willard D. Straight, as she then was known), Mrs. Lois Rantoul of Boston, granddaughter of James Russell Lowell, and Mrs. William James, widow of the philosopher.

More recently, in fact at the moment, the case threatens to be an important factor in State politics. In his State, the Italian-American vote is numerous and, save in Boston, where it is largely Democratic, it is normally Republican. United States Senator William M. Butler, mentor and friend of President Coolidge, involved in the hardest kind of a fight to retain his seat, will need them to win against the popular David I. Walsh, who formerly held the seat now held by Senator Frederick H. Gillett.

Butler comes into the case as a sort of innocent bystander. He has had no connection with the prosecution, but every person connected with the prosecution is a Republican.

Butler Likely to Suffer.

Whatever others may think about the case the Italians, regardless of their political or economic beliefs, are pretty generally convinced that Sacco and Vanzetti did not get the fair trial they were entitled to. Therefore they are inclined to punish Butler for the sins, real or imagined, of members of his party.

So far as the record goes, Gov. Fuller—who had declared that under no circumstances would he respite Celestino F. Madeiros, wanted as a witness in any new trial the men may get, unless Judge Thayer or Attorney General Benton so requested—changed his mind after listening to an argument of William G. Thompson, counsel for the defense, and consulting with Judge Thayer at a conference arranged by his (Fuller's) secretary.

In political circles, however, pleas of Senator Butler's friends are understood to have been a controlling factor in the granting of the respite, although the Governor is not rated as the best political friend the Senator has in Massachusetts.

"If this were an ordinary case of mistake, there would be no difficulty in getting a new trial for Sacco and me. But so much has been done that is wrong they dare not give us a new trial. They must save the face of the Commonwealth. They are afraid."

Vanzetti Foolish, He Admits.

Vanzetti, sitting in the rotunda of the State Prison in Charlestown, thus summarized the opposition to a new trial for himself and Sacco.

"Afraid of what?" he was asked.

"The truth," he replied.

Vanzetti five years after his conviction is a different Vanzetti than reports of his trial pictured. At the trial he was the uncouth immigrant testifying through an interpreter. In the prison rotunda he spoke.

"I could not and would not deny that I am an Anarchist. I do not know what they mean by philosophic Anarchists when they say it to distinguish them from other Anarchists.

"The only anarchists I have ever known have been men and women who want to end exploitation of the masses.

"We, Sacco and I, are not criminals. The worst that can be honestly proved against us is that we may have been foolish.

"We may have been foolish when we lied when we were arrested. We were foolish. But we knew nothing of these murders. Yes, we had heard of them. Who did not?

"We lied. I lied to the police because we were afraid of what would be done to us because we were radicals. They were doing many things to radicals. We did not wish to be deported. We did not want done to us what had been done to others. Yes, we were afraid and foolish.

"I do not want to talk about our trouble. All that could be said has been said. There is nothing new.

"You may say though, that we do not want mercy. We do not want charity. We want justice."

Sacco Has Martyr Complex.

Vanzetti gives the impression of a man who wants to live. Sacco, on the other hand, impresses one as a man who has the martyr complex and rather welcomes the chance to die. Given a chance to talk and he will prefer to expound his political views rather than discuss his case.

He is, he insists, not concerned in valuing human life, that his concern is to make it easier for people to live.

"I know why I am here," he tells visitors. "I am here because I am a radical. I never took a life. I couldn't do such a thing. I am not a thief. There never was any reason why I should want to steal.

"They have said we did that holdup to get money for Salsedo's widow after he was killed in New York. That is nonsense. We radicals could easily have raised all the money she might need.

I was framed up because I am a radical. I proved that I was in Boston when the holdup was done. Yet I was convicted. Why? Because I am a radical.

"I would not mind being executed because I am a radical, but for this frightful thing! I could find comfort in dying for a cause.

"Of course I hope for a new trial. I have always hoped for one. But there have been so many disappointments I do not know that it will come. If I die, I will die innocent of anything but being a radical."

Jail attendants describe Sacco as "a nut."

ATTEMPT TO KILL MUSSOLINI FANS HATRED OF FRANCE

this evening in massing of thousands in Colonna Square.

There is scarcely a window that does not fly a flag, big or little, the tricolor for Italy or the black and gold of Fascism.

All the walls, the hoardings and even the pavements are covered with posters of every size and color exhorting the citizens of Rome to express their relief over the Premier's escape in paeans of thanksgiving. The narrow streets of the central part of the city seemed to be in constant flow with the parades of men, women and even children. The blaring of the hundreds of bands frequently was drown out by the Fascist cheer.

Blackshirts Patrol Streets.

Thousands of Blackshirts armed with pistols and carrying heavy clubs acted in a double capacity of guides and police. They led the parades and likewise kept on the alert to suppress possible excesses of the hotheads.

Police say the attempt this morning was patently a political crime.

It is accepted throughout the city that Giovannini was backed by Antifascist Italians in France. The feeling against France, which at various times these last few years had to be quelled by Mussolini's admonishing voice, again is at the boiling point.

"Tell America and the Italians there that neither pistols, bombs or other instruments of death can make me desist from my course," Mussolini declared tonight to the Associated Press correspondent.

"This is the third attempt against me in the space of several months, but, like the others, this one has not disturbed me in the slightest."

Two Previous Attempts.

The last attempt, prior to today's, to kill Mussolini was made last April 7 by Miss Violet Albina Gibson, 50 years old, a daughter of the late Lord Ashbourne of England. Admittedly insane, she was sent to an asylum afterward. She shot the Premier in the nose just as he emerged from the Capitol at Rome after addressing a congress of surgeons.

An alleged plot to kill the Premier was uncovered last Nov. 4 when Zaniboni, former Socialist deputy, Gen. Louis Capello and others were arrested. Police reported finding a rifle in Zaniboni's room in Hotel Draconi, the window of which faced a balcony in the Chigi Palace from which Mussolini was scheduled to speak. This plot was said to be an outgrowth of agitation over the Matteotti case.

DRIVER HITS 3 CARS, LAMP POST AND PORCH OF RESIDENCE

Harold Spaulding, 26, Held for Intoxication, Says Another Machine Struck His.

Three automobiles, a street light and the front porch of a house were hit in rapid succession by the automobile of Harold Spaulding, 26 years old, a musician, of 814 Hamilton avenue, while he was driving west on Delmar boulevard near Taylor avenue early yesterday.

When, after hitting the automobiles and damaging each one slightly, then knocking over a street light, Spaulding brought up against th front porch of the residence occupied by Mrs. Ellen Peisch, he was severely dazed and shaken. He explained to police that an eastbound automobile had "side-swiped" him and had caused him to lose control of his machine.

But at City Hospital physicians expressed the opinion that Spaulding had been drinking. He was charged with careless driving, destruction of property and driving an automobile while intoxicated.

HALF BILLION TAX CUT DEMANDED BY DEMOCRATIC CHIEF

Senator Simmons Says Republicans Are Trying to Hold Off to Aid Presidential Aspirants.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. — A half billion dollar tax reduction will be demanded by the Democrats at the next session of Congress, Senator Simmons, North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee, declared tonight, in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee.

He charged the Republicans with deliberately attempting to hold off another reduction until next year to further the ambitions of Republican presidential aspirants, and to provide political capital.

A surplus of $562,000,000 will be available for reduction at the coming session of Congress, Senator Simmons said. It is the clear duty of Congress, he added, to distribute this "unneeded treasury surplus, and to put a stop to this unnecessary taxation as soon as possible."

Surplus Twice as Great.

If the overburdened taxpayers were entitled to a reduction at the last session of Congress because of their estimated surplus of only about $300,000,000, why, with a surplus in the treasury nearly twice as great, are they not entitled to another reduction at the coming session of Congress?" asked the North Carolina Senator.

"This enormous surplus of more than a half a billion dollars represented taxes paid in excess of ordinary expenditures and unneeded for the purpose for which collected. It would seem clear that this unnecessary exaction should be discontinued as speedily as legislatively practicable.

"Evidently, if this great hoard is withheld from the taxpayers, as proposed by the administration, until the spring of 1928, the incomes and earnings of industry for the calendar year of 1926 would get no relief from the reduction, while miscellaneous tax payers for the calendar year, 1927, would get no relief from unneeded taxation for a full year after relief is due. On the other hand, if the reduction is made at the coming session of Congress, reduction in income rates would retroactively cover earnings of 1926, and most, if not all, miscellaneous excise taxes except on a few luxuries would be repealed or reduced a year sooner than under the administration program. The next reduction will deal almost entirely with rates.

Political Expediency Alleged.

"Certain circumstances connected with the last reduction aroused suspicion that the administration, supposedly for political reasons, had deliberately planned two separate reductions: a small one for use in the bi-election campaign this year, and a bigger one, to become effective immediately preceding the presidential campaign and the election of 1928. However that may be, with an actual and estimated surplus of $562,000,000 available for reduction at the coming session of Congress, it is difficult to discover any good reason for withholding and postponing that reduction for a full year except to promote the ambition of Republican presidential aspirants, and to provide political capital for the Republican party."

Senator Simmons declared that liquidation of the war debt was closely connected with the question of tax reduction, and that, when Congress meets in December, the minority will demand not only sweeping tax reduction but that since the foreign debtors have been given 62 years in which to pay their debts, the tax payers of the United States be given at least half that time in which to liquidate the indebtedness incurred by the foreign loans.

MAINE CROWDS WELCOME MACMILLAN EXPEDITION

Col. Roosevelt Among the Thousands to Greet Returning Explorers at Wiscasset, Me.

By the Associated Press.

WISCASSET, Me., Sept. 11.—Commander Donald B. MacMillan and his 1926 expedition to the Far North received a tremendous greeting of speeches, cheers and band music today when the schooners Bowdoin and Sachem arrived here, the commander's home port. The schooners were escorted up the Sheepscot River by dozens of motor boats.

Ashore William Tudor Gardiner, speaker of the Maine House of Representatives, welcomed the explorers in the name of the state. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, former assistant Secretary of the Navy, and himself an explorer, also extended a welcome and stressed the traditions of Maine on the seven seas.

Stanley Field, president of the Field Museum of Chicago, thanked the members of the expedition for the treasures they have brought back to be added to the collections of that institution.

MacMillan, in an address, reviewed his summer's work and told of his plans for a permanent station for a five-year period in Labrador.

1927 MISSOURI AUTO LICENSES TO BE WHITE ON BLUE FIELD

State Awards Contract to St. Louis Firm at 14 7-10 Cents a Pair.

Automobile license plates for 1927 will be white upon a blue background.

O. G. Steininger, automobile license commissioner in the Secretary of State's office, yesterday announced the awarding of the contract for the new plates to the Grimm Stamp & Badge Co. of St. Louis. This company was low bidder at 14 7-10 cents the pair, which is lower than last year's price when a fraction above 15 cents was paid by the State for the plates. The new contract, it is said, will total about $110,000.

According to Steininger, the State orders 550,000 pairs of license plates to start the new year and reorders at the contract price to meet further requirements. Besides automobile plates, the State expects to use 65,000 pairs of truck plates, 25,000 chauffeurs' licenses, 2500 motor cycle plates, 3000 dealers' plates and 1400 pairs of official license plates.

HOW AMERICAN ESCAPED A FIRING SQUAD IN MEXICO

B. H. Turner, Who Murdered Maine Lawyer for Revenge, Killed Partner in Mexico City in 1921.

By Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 11.—The killing of James D. Hallen of Falmouth, Me., by Benjamin H. Turner, recalls the circumstances of Turner's escape from a firing squad here three years ago. Hallen, whom Turner deserted at that time after accepting $1200 to serve as his attorney, is the second victim of Turner's revenge.

In January, 1921, Turner killed Ramon Arguelles, a cotton worker, in the offices of International Detective Agency here. He confessed that he had carefully planned the murder. He was acquitted two years later on the ground that he had acted under great provocation and when in a state of high emotional excitement.

Quarrel Over Commission.

Turner said Arguelles had withheld a commission due him in a cotton deal in which they were partners. The amount involved was 1500 pesos. Turner went to the offices of the International Detective Agency for a meeting with his partner. It developed that Turner carried two revolvers and a knife. The head of the agency, Augustin Lopez, after advising the partners to come to a settlement, left them together in a room.

Lopez had scarcely closed the door when there was a fusillade of shots. Passers by saw a man clamber over the balcony of the detective agency building and throw himself into the street below. He was killed.

A stream of bullets came through the window, causing panic in the streets. One pedestrian was seriously wounded and a policeman was shot in the foot.

Turner rushed out of the detective agency firing right and left until a policeman knocked him down and clubbed him into submission. At police headquarters Turner at first raved like a madman. For several days he was under medical treatment. At a preliminary examination he declared Arguelles had defied him. Turner declared that he defied the killing.

American Women Aided Him.

Several American women took interest in the prisoner. They furnished him with food and clothing and frequently called on him. Since he was without funds they passed subscription papers among to raise money for his defense. Many well to do members of the American colony contributed because they were averse to having an American face a firing squad. The most eminent criminal lawyer in Mexico, Jose Maria Lozano, was retained to defend him. More than two years after the killing Turner was brought to trial. The proceedings lasted three days. On the third day Lozana rose to plead for the prisoner's life. He spoke and had the spectators in the courtroom weeping in sympathy for the defendant. He rested his argument on the extreme provocation. Turner had been under the victim as a professional murderer, declared Mexico was well rid of scoundrel, and ended by exhorting the jurors to give the United States an example of justice. Turner was promptly acquitted.

Shortly afterwards Turner left for the United States. A year later the proprietor of the hotel Ansonia, where he had lived, received a check from Turner and a letter apologizing for not having been able until then to pay his board bill.

WOUNDED ITALIAN DENIES BEING SHOT IN CUCKOOS' FEU

Vito Giannola, Leader of Clique, at St. Mary's Under an Assumed Name Since Wednesday.

IDENTITY FIXED BY CITY DETECTIVE

Brother of Man Questioned After Two Murders Leader May Says He Hurt Self Accidentally.

Vito Giannola, leader of a dope town Italian clique, now a patient in St. Mary's Hospital under assumed name, last night was holding to his first story to the physician, that he accidentally shot himself in the left chest Wednesday night while cleaning his revolver.

He has steadfastly denied a report made through underworld channels to St. Louis detectives that he was accidentally wounded by another Italian Wednesday noon in an attack upon the Cuckoo gangsters near Collinsville.

Giannola is a patient of Dr. T. Coughlin, chief surgeon at St. Mary's and professor of surgery at St. Louis University. Explaining that his patient is in a critical condition Dr. Coughlin has allowed no one to discuss the case with him.

Identity Fixed by Detectives.

The identity of Dr. Coughlin's patient was fixed by Detective Sergt. Sam Stewart and Detective William Hefele, who were allowed to view him yesterday after they had been informed that he was Vito Giannola.

So far, Giannola has failed to explain why he used an assumed name on entering the hospital. His record stands as follows on St. Mary's records:

"Vito Gemeno, 1126 North Seventh street, treatment ordered by Mary Giannola, case No. 8810, room No. 259, age 33 years, occupation butcher; born in Italy, lived in St. Louis 16 years. Physician, Dr. T. Coughlin."

The bullet, which wounded Giannola, struck him in the left chest ranging through the body and emerging from the back—narrowly passing within a quarter of an inch of the heart. He also has a wound in the left wrist which physicians believe was caused by the same bullet.

Dr. Coughlin told a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that he took Giannola as a patient for Dr. Robert Keaney, of 5738 Maple avenue. Dr. Keaney said he had returned over the case to Dr. Coughlin, but refused to tell where he had been called to attend Giannola or who had called him.

Giannola lives at 7160 Princeton avenue, University City. Last night Patrolmen Baker and Burnett of the University City police force questioned John Giannola at his address, but he declined to answer any question touching on his brother's injury.

Brother of Wealthy Grocer.

Vito is the brother of John Giannola, wealthy grocer and coal and sugar dealer who was sought for questioning last May following the discovery of one of his automobiles near the Horseshoe Lake farm where Constable Ohmer Hoch and his pal, John Balke, were murdered by moonshiners.

Some days after the bodies were discovered in a shallow grave police arranged for the surrender of the brother, who was arrested here by Federal officers on a charge of interstate transportation of a stolen automobile. The charge has never been pressed however, since the Government could not make out a clear case against him.

At that time it became known, however, that John Giannola and his associates did an extensive sugar business in Madison County and a huge store of corn sugar belonging to him was seized in a Madison warehouse and hauled away to Edwardsville by Deputy Sheriffs.

Bootlegger Gang Disclosed?

The discussion of the case developed, too, that Madison and Clair Counties were the choice fields of an elaborately organized gang of bootleggers ruled from headquarters in St. Louis.

With its liquor-laden trucks using the East Side roads, bridges and ferries during the night and early morning hours, the syndicate naturally became the prey of a band of whisky robbers who held up its drivers on the road and either took the cargo or, as grew to be the more common practice, exacted from them a toll of $1 for each five gallon can of alcohol.

To stop the invasions the bootleggers are believed to have appealed for help to the Italian members of the "East Side Mob," an aggregation of Cuckoos and Italians which had been doing a thriving holdup business in East St. Louis and which sometimes even invaded St. Louis.

Reprisal Theory of Murders.

These hired gunmen are believed to have killed the young Cuckoo, Harvey Dunn, in revenge for Cuckoo raids on liquor shipments. Dunn's body was found near Horseshoe Lake last June. The sho man. For several days he was under medical treatment. At his preliminary examination he declared Arguelles had defrauded him. Turner declared that justified the killing.

American Women Aided Him.

Several American women took an interest in the prisoner. They furnished him with food and books and frequently called on him. Since he was without funds they passed subscription paper around to raise money for his defense. Many well to do members of the American colony contributed because they were averse to having an American face a firing squad. The most eminent criminal lawyer in Mexico, Jose Maria Lozana, was retained to defend him. More than two years after the killing Turner was brought to trial. The proceedings lasted three days. On the third day Lozana rose to plead for the prisoner's life. He speedily had the spectators in the court room weeping in sympathy for the defendant. He rested his argument on the extreme provocation Turner had been under, denounced the victim as a professional swindler, declared Mexico was well rid of scoundrel, and ended by exhorting the jurors to give the United States an example of justice. Turner was promptly acquitted.

Shortly afterwards Turner left for the United States. A year later the proprietor of the Hotel Ansonia, where he had lived, received a check from Turner and a letter apologizing for not having been able until then to pay his board bill.

WOUNDED ITALIAN DENIES BEING SHOT IN CUCKOOS' FEUD

Vito Giannola, Leader of Clique, at St. Mary's Under an Assumed Name Since Wednesday.

IDENTITY FIXED BY CITY DETECTIVES

Brother of Man Questioned After Two Murders Last May Says He Hurt Self Accidentally.

Vito Giannola, leader of a downtown Italian clique, now a patient in St. Mary's Hospital under an assumed name, last night was holding to his first story to his physician, that he accidentally shot himself in the left chest last Wednesday night while cleaning his revolver.

He has steadfastly denied a report made through underworld channels to St. Louis detectives that he was accidentally wounded by another Italian Wednesday noon in an attack upon three Cuckoo gangsters near Collinsville.

Giannola is a patient of Dr. W. T. Coughlin, chief surgeon at St. Mary's and professor of surgery at St. Louis University. Explaining that his patient is in a critical condition Dr. Coughlin has allowed no one to discuss the case with him.

Identity Fixed by Detectives.

The identity of Dr. Coughlin's patient was fixed by Detective Sergt. Sam Stewart and Detective William Hefele, who were allowed to view him yesterday after they had been informed that he was Vito Giannola.

So far, Giannola has failed to explain why he used an assumed name on entering the hospital. His record stands as follows on St. Mary's records:

"Vito Gemeno, 1126 North Seventh street, treatment ordered by Mary Giannola, case No. 8810, room No. 259, age 33 years, occupation butcher; born in Italy, lived in St. Louis 16 years. Physician, Dr. W. T. Coughlin."

The bullet, which wounded Giannola, struck him in the left chest ranging through the body and emerging from the back—after passing within a quarter of an inch of the heart. He also has a wound in the left wrist which physicians believe was caused by the same bullet.

Dr. Coughlin told a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that he took Giannola as a patient from Dr. Robert Keaney, of 5738 Maple avenue. Dr. Keaney said he had turned over the case to Dr. Coughlin, but refused to tell where he had been called to attend Giannola, or who had called him.

Giannola lives at 7160 Princeton avenue, University City. Last night Patrolmen Baker and Burnett of the University City police force questioned John Giannola at that address, but he declined to answer any question touching on his brother's injury.

Brother of Wealthy Grocer.

Vito is the brother of John Giannola, wealthy grocer and corn sugar dealer who was sought for questioning last May following the discovery of one of his automobiles near the Horseshoe Lake farm where Constable Ohmer Hockett and his pal, John Balke, were murdered by moonshiners.

Some days after the bodies were discovered in a shallow grave Vito arranged for the surrender of his brother, who was arrested here by Federal officers on a charge of interstate transportation of a stolen automobile. The charge has never been pressed however, since the Government could not make out a clear case against him.

At that time it became known, however, that John Giannola and his associates did an extensive sugar business in Madison County and a huge store of corn sugar belonging to him was seized in a Madison warehouse and hauled away to Edwardsville by Deputy Sheriffs.

Bootlegger Gang Disclosed?

The discussion of the case developed, too, that Madison and St. Clair Counties were the chosen fields of an elaborately organized gang of bootleggers ruled from a headquarters in St. Louis.

With its liquor-laden trucks plying the East Side roads, the bridges and ferries during the night and early morning hours the syndicate naturally became the prey of a band of whisky robbers who held up its drivers on the road and either took their cargo or, as grew to be the more common practice, exacted from them a toll of $1 for each five-gallon can of alcohol.

To stop the invasions the bootleggers are believed to have appealed for help to the Italian members of the "East Side Mob," an aggregation of Cuckoos and Italians which had been doing a thriving holdup business in East St. Louis and which sometimes even invaded St. Louis.

Reprisal Theory of Murders.

These hired gunmen are believed to have killed the young Cuckoo, Harvey Dunn, in revenge for Cuckoo raids on liquor shipments. Dunn's body was found near Horseshoe Lake last June. The shooting of three men in front of the Santa Fara Club at Eighth and Biddle streets on Aug. 19, was seen as the Cuckoo's reprisal on the Dunn murder.

Ten days later, Joseph Schambra, an Italian bootlegger, was shot by gunmen and on Sept. 2 Caesar Cipriano, Italian gunman, and Joseph Manzella, an associate, were murdered.

The next shooting was last Sunday, when Pete Webbe, a Cuckoo gangster, was killed and Thomas Brennan, another Cuckoo, was wounded. Then followed the shooting at Collinsville last Wednesday, in which Herman Tipton, a Cuckoo, was wounded and two companions escaped unhurt. The last two shootings, detectives believe, are reprisals for the Cipriano and Schambra shootings.

QUEER FISH SHOWN AT SHAW'S GARDEN

Aquarium Society Awards Cups for Displays — Exhibit Open Today.

Queer fish and pretty fish by the score are on display in the fifth annual show of the Aquarium Society at Shaw's Garden, which will continue through today.

Most of the queer fish are pretty fish as well, but a few, to the lay observer, are just plain queer. They come from the Amazon, the East and West Indies, Africa and Asia and Ceylon. They come big and little, from a common goldfish a foot long to lovely peacock fish not an inch long.

The tail in the Oriental varieties seems to mean a great deal. There are fantails and veil-tails, even the comets are named for the comets which have tails. Then there are the Mexican swordtails, which terminate in a long gold and black rapier.

Admittedly there is something poetic in a veil, or a languid, plumy fan, or possibly even in a sword. It's something of a surprise, however, that the broadtails are among the handsomest of them all, with undulant tailfins, delicately veined with pink and a bright mother-of-pearl body strikingly splashed with crimson along the back and gills.

One curiosity is the Chinese telescope fish, which carries popeyes to the extreme of having them stuck on a sort of arm, so that, one imagines, this fish is the next thing to a periscope for seeing around a corner. Another well-named, with the same sort of goggles, is the black moor, which has such a midnight duskiness that it seems to shadow the water about it.

Edwin A. Lemp received a cup for the best collection of Oriental fish and O. C. Beldt another for the best display of tropical fish. Lemp's exhibit included the big gold-fish. Beldt also won a cup for a pair of brand-new hybrids.

For the most novel exhibit a cup was awarded George C. Paulus, who won another for the best Shubunkins. Part of the novelty was a rock found near St. Louis somewhat resembling a man's head. Paulus named it "Jokosh," dressed Jokosh up with a wreath of water-plants and rigged up a bower below him, with a stone walk over which played strange fish leading from the mermaid's bower to a merman's castle.

Otto Buder received a cup for the best peacock fish. Eugene Crutcher won cups for the best Danio, from India, and the best Mollensia, which suddenly became common along the Florida coast three years ago after a hurricane which may—or may not—have swept them up from their native Caribbean.

GENE CULVER'S EX-WIFE JILTS PHILADELPHIA MAN

"Father Does Not Want Me to Marry So Soon," She Explains at Chicago.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO Sept. 11.—Beautiful Maxine Stresenreuther-Culver, who, before she was 17, had been wooed by nine noblemen, has broken her engagement to W. Atmore Robinson of Philadelphia and Rhode Island. He is a stepson of Prof. Herman V. Hilprecht, educator and archeologist, who died in 1925. His mother is one of the Croziers, a family socially prominent in Philadelphia.

Shortly after her debut Maxine was married to Gene Gordon Culver of St. Louis, son of the president of Culver Military Academy and vice president of the Wrought Iron Range Co., but she divorced him last June. She and young Robinson met at Palm Beach last winter.

Next week she is going to Philadelphia to visit Robinson's mother and while there she will return the engagement ring. "Father does not want me to marry so soon, especially after the unfortunate experience I went through in my first marriage," she explained today. "Mr. Robinson is a very charming and fine young man and the broken engagement is in no way a reflection on him."

Robinson, it appears, is a good game sort of sport, for he is to give a "broken engagement" dinner-dance in her favor.

IDENTIFIED AS ONE OF MAIL ROBBERS WHO GOT $135,000

Chicago Man Taken in Investigation of Holdup of Grand Trunk Railroad Car There Friday.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Nick Kramer, henchman of the Sallis-McErlaine gang of beer runners, was identified late today as one of the two men who got $135,000 in the robbery of a mail car of a Grand Trunk train yesterday.

John J. Kelly, one of the mail clerks, identified Kramer. He was taken today at his home and insisted that he had no knowledge of the mail robbery and that he was asleep at home when it happened.

The search continued today for Harold "Fat" Watkins, who has been partially identified by Kelly and who has been sought since the Dearborn Station mail robbery here several years ago.

The loot obtained yesterday by the mail robbers was fixed definitely today by postal inspectors at $135,000. Much of the amount, they said, was in new bills, serial numbers of which are in the possession of officers and should enable detection of the robbers if they attempt to put them in circulation.

INQUIRY BEGUN INTO CRASH THAT KILLED MRS STOCKSTROM

Witnesses Heard Behind Closed Doors at Barnstable, Mass.; Open Session Wednesday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 11.—Behind closed doors, Special Justice Thomas Otis of the Barnstable district court today heard the story of the accident on Monday in which an auto driven by Douglas I. McKay of New York, upset another machine and Mrs. Mary Stockstrom of St. Louis was killed. The court's finding will be made known next Wednesday when McKay appears in open court to answer a charge of reckless driving. McKay is said to be on the verge of a nervous collapse.

Among witnesses heard today was the driver of a car which McKay passed going in the same direction a few moments before the fatal crash. It was while McKay was more or less on the left side of the road that he sideswiped the car of Mrs. Thomas E. Kelley in which Mrs. Stockstrom was a passenger.

12 INDICTED ON STORY OF BOX-CAR ROBBER

St. Louisans and East Siders Accused in True Bills Voted at Danville, Ill.

Indictments charging conspiracy to rob interstate shipments and possession of goods stolen from interstate shipments have been returned by a Federal grand jury at Danville, Ill., against 12 residents of St. Louis, East St. Louis and Belleville as the result of statements by Sam B. Dukes, the Negro "king of box car robbers."

Arrested last May Dukes confessed that he had stolen $10,000 worth of freight in a series of 10 robberies in Illinois in the last year. He pointed out to Department of Justice agents places where he asserted he had disposed of his loot. Warrants were then issued against Dukes and 11 others. These warrants are now replaced with indictments.

Those indicted, besides Dukes, are:

Julius Seifert, automobile agent at 1000 State street, East St. Louis; John Cookson, head salesman for Seifert's agency; Ed Thorman, head mechanic at the agency; Sam Krutansky, merchant, of 733 Trendly avenue, East St. Louis; Mrs. Lena Krutansky, his wife; Jacob Beckerman, merchant, of 1439 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis; Walter Caton, Terminal Railroad switchman, of East St. Louis; Joseph Wilson, East St. Louis saloonkeeper; Charles Prahin, St. Louis; Aleck Roufa, East St. Louis; and Dewey G. Miller, Belleville.

All the defendants, except Dukes, have denied the charges, and have furnished bond.

Dukes, who has served two prison terms for freight thefts, estimates his total loot at $80,000. He asserts that in the robberies of which he was convicted a large part of the loot went to railroad police for protection.

56 NEW NAMES AMONG 320 ST. LOUISANS IN 'WHO'S WHO'

Edition of 1926-27, Vol. 14, Just Issued, Includes Number of Changes.

Three hundred and twenty St. Louisans are listed, and biographical facts concerning them are printed, in the 1926-1927 edition of "Who's Who in America," or Vol. 14 of that biennial work, which has just appeared.

Of the 320 names, 56 appear for the first time. In the previous volume, for 1924-1925, 289 St. Louisans were listed. A number have been dropped because of death, or because the persons named have ceased to hold official positions. Several who were in the previous volume, especially clergymen and teachers, appear for the first time with St. Louis addresses.

U. S. TO ATTACK OWN WITNESS IN DAUGHERTY CASE

Richard Merton, German Metal Magnate, Has Told More Than Prosecution Intended He Should.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Richard Merton, German metal magnate, will find himself in a legal No Man's Land here Monday when he returns to Federal Court to continue as a witness against former Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, former United States Alien Property Custodian. Merton was induced to come here by the Government to testify as a Government witness, but the Government now intends to attack him.

Merton's testimony, up to adjournment yesterday, has changed the prosecution's original plan to treat him considerately. He was supposed to testify simply that he came here in 1921, paid a bribe of $441,000 and obtained the return of $7,000,000 worth of property from the office of Miller. This act required the approval of the office of Daugherty. Merton was also to testify that he was allowed to put in a fake claim in behalf of "neutral" owners of shares of American Metal Co. stock seized by the Government in 1918, although the president of the company reported to the Government, as required by law, that the Merton family, German, was the real owner.

Congress has not yet prescribed how Germans may regain the property seized during the war, but Merton got his five years ago.

The prosecution had intended to let Merton stop with the presumption of conspiracy. The prosecution then would devote the rest of the trial to tracing the $441,000 to the Daugherty and Miller.

But Merton stepped outside the Government lines after William S. Rand, on behalf of Miller, began the cross-examination which is to be continued Monday. Merton denied the Government's presumption that his claim was a fake and insisted that it was a sound, well-founded claim which Miller and Daugherty should have allowed, anyway.

Now the Government intends to ask Merton about the claim in detail and to prove it really was a fake.

NUMEROUS BLACKBIRDS IN WEST END ANNOY RESIDENTS

One Complainant Desired Permission to Fire Weapon to Scare Them Away.

Blackbirds or grackles, are flocking to the vicinity of Bartmer and Goodfellow avenues in such number that residents of the neighborhood are complaining to police. Yesterday a man called the Page Boulevard Station with a request for permission to discharge a shotgun in his yard. He said he believed if several of the birds were killed others would take alarm and leave the vicinity.

He was informed it was against the law to discharge firearms within the city limits. He then made a similar request of the Chief of Police, but without success.

The complainant told police the birds were roosting at nights in trees and making noises which disturbed his peace.

Joseph M. Schenck, head of the United Artists' companies, in Detroit yesterday, said theaters would be built in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Cleveland, and Minneapolis. No definite plans for the St. Louis theater have been made, Schenck said $5,000,000 would be spent.

ROBBERY WARRANT FOR WOMAN WHO HELD UP MOTORIST

Mrs. Esther Laurcielli, 21, Is Accused of Taking Auto and 35 Cents From Lloyd McClees.

A warrant charging first-degree robbery has been issued against Mrs. Esther Laurcielli, 21-year-old mother, but she insists what she did to Lloyd McClees, 30-year-old cook, wasn't robbery at all—at least not permanent robbery.

At the Clayton jail yesterday, she admitted that she and a girl friend known as Meg had taken McClees' automobile from him at the point of a revolver, leaving him to walk to his destination, but she declared this was done on the spur of the moment, without premeditation, and more or less in reprisal for "freshness" upon the part of McClees. The automobile later was abandoned by the women and recovered by McClees.

McClees, whose home is at Taussig avenue and St. Charles road, St. Louis County, was driving west through Wellston at 10 o'clock Thursday night when two young women, strangers to him, asked him for a lift to the Carson road.

"Hop in," said McClees, not wishing to see anyone walk as long as there was room in his car.

Woman Drew Revolver.

"When we reached the Carson road," McClees related, "the taller girl, sitting next to me, pressed a revolver against my ribs and ordered me to raise my hands. I grabbed for the gun and she passed it to the other girl, who also poked the gun against my ribs. Then the tall one searched me, took 35 cents and cigarettes and made me get out."

"That man didn't tell everything," Mrs. Laurcielli told reporters. "As we were going out in his car, he got fresh toward Meg and asked me to get out and let them ride alone. I didn't know Meg had a gun, but she drew it out about this time. When he grabbed for it, she handed it to me, but I just held it loose-like. I didn't search him—Meg did that; then she put him out and drove on."

The two women, returning to St. Louis before McClees, abandoned the car at Hamilton and Easton avenue. Then Mrs. Laurcielli and others went to the Sheriff's office at Clayton to arrange a bond for a friend, arrested for peace disturbance. She was there when the report of the automobile theft came in, but said nothing. She was arrested Friday morning when McClees recognized her as he passed an automobile in Wellston in which she and friends were sitting.

She and a 2-year-old daughter have been boarding at 5905 Easton avenue. Formerly she was a telephone operator and a shoeworker, but she has not been working lately. Her husband, Frank Laurcielli, also is unemployed, she said. Her father deserted his family, her mother died, and her brothers, Fred Dowdall, is serving a term for robbery in the Maryland State Penitentiary, she related.

Authorities are seeking Meg, the "gun woman," last name unknown.

Search for Raymond D. Dunham.

Mrs. Lula Dunham of 1544A Lafayette avenue has asked the Post-Dispatch to aid her in locating her husband, Raymond D. Dunham, 31 years old, who disappeared from his home on Aug. 27 last. He weighs 160 pounds, is 5 feet, 8 inches tall, has blond hair and blue eyes. He was wearing dark trousers, tan shoes, straw hat and a white shirt.

HELD FOR ROBBERY

MRS. ESTHER LAURCIELLI

PHYSICIAN, 50, TO WED OFFICE ATTENDANT, 23

Dr. G. E. Cook, Who Recently Divorced First Wife, Also Files Pre-Nuptial Agreement.

A prenuptial agreement whereby the bride-to-be disclaims all interest in her husband's property and the husband-to-be agrees, in the event they separate, to pay her $500 a year so long as she does not remarry, was filed yesterday at Clayton.

The signers were Dr. George E. Cook, 50 years old, of Webster Groves, and his office assistant, Miss Gertrude Watkins, 23. They also obtained a marriage license.

Dr. Cook divorced his former wife last February, on the grounds of desertion. He has a 17-year-old daughter, Helen, who lives with him at 946 Newport avenue. Miss Watkins gave her address as 1809 North Ninth street, where Dr. Cook has maintained an office for 25 years.

They explained last night that they met a year ago when she came to him as a patient, shortly thereafter entering his employ. They will be married at 9 a. m. today at Greeley Memorial Presbyterian Church, Blair and Warren avenues, leaving immediately on a trip to Canada.

BOY, DODGING TOMATO THROWN BY ANOTHER, SERIOUSLY HURT

Hugh McDonald, 11, Falls From Running Board of Vegetable Truck.

A tomato thrown by a small boy shortly before noon yesterday resulted in serious injuries to Hugh McDonald, 11-year-old son of Mrs. Elizabeth McDonald, a widow, of 7526A Michigan avenue.

Hugh, who works as helper on a vegetable truck driven by Victor Riedy of 7017 South Broadway, was riding on the running board of the vehicle in the 7600 block of Michigan avenue when a tomato rolled off and fell in the street. A lad of about Hugh's age, who was playing in the street, picked it up and threw it at the boy on the machine. In attempting to dodge the missile, Hugh lost his balance and fell, a wheel of the truck passing over his body.

He was rushed to the City Hospital suffering from several fractured ribs and internal injuries. Physicians said his chances of recovery were slight.

A living room suite, combining the necessary dignity for the formal occasion with that desirable coziness for family comfort and presenting an unusual appeal to people of good taste and fine perception.

DEMOCRATS EXPECTED TO BASE FIGHT IN MISSOURI ON REPUBLICAN SCANDALS

G. O. P. Stand on Its Record Indicated on Other Hand With Campaigns of Both Parties Opening.

By CURTIS A BETTS.

With the Republican and Democratic candidates' conventions in Jefferson City Tuesday, the formal opening of the Republican State campaign the following day in Jefferson City, and the formal opening of the Democratic State campaign Friday in St. Joseph, both parties will be well into the biennial state political contest with the chief object of each the election of its candidate for the United States Senate.

Although the exact type of campaign cannot be told until after the adoption of the party platforms Tuesday, early conferences of party leaders have indicated the Democrats will make the official scandals of the Republican State administration a leading issue in the fight, with the possibility that the indorsement of Senator Williams by the Ku Klux Klan in the primary campaign will become an important point.

Republicans are expected to make opposition to the League of Nations and to the World Court, and the progress of Missouri during Republican administrations, as the basis of a campaign, in which they will attempt to keep out controversial questions.

It is not improbable that the Democratic platform declaration on the World Court will follow the primary statement of its senatorial candidate, Harry B. Hawes. This was that the developments in European politics had made it inadvisable for the United States to become involved with foreign nations.

The Republican platform probably will go to the length of declaring that the United States should withdraw from adherence to the Court.

To Stress G. O. P. Scandals.

It is known to be the intention of Democratic leaders to stress the Republican state scandals. Frank C. Millspaugh, former State Finance Commissioner, who was removed by Gov. Baker on request of Supreme Judge Otto, when the latter, as Attorney General, investigated irregularities in the Finance Department, will become an issue. Charles S. Prather and Heber Nations, office holders under former Gov. Hyde, who were indicted in the Griesdieck beer scandal, likewise will be issues, and preparations are under way to give publicity to conditions at the state penitentiary under the management of Dr. Cortez Enloe.

Prohibition will cause both parties some trouble in the conventions. There would be little difficulty if it were possible to have two editions of each platform, one a country edition for the "drys" and the other a city edition for the "wets," but, as that is impossible, they will have to do the best they can. Both, of course, will have planks declaring for the enforcement of all laws, and both may openly declare against Proposition No. 4, which is to be voted on at the November election, and which provides for the repeal of the state dry enforcement act.

Senator's Reed's recent statement of opposition to Proposition No. 4 is taken generally to mean that the Democratic platform will take the same position.

Neither state convention is expected to be much more than a routine affair. Through conferences, the party leaders have worked out satisfactory plans for the organizations of the committees, which will meet at 10 o'clock Tuesday.

Fordyce to Be Chairman.

Sam W. Fordyce of St. Louis will be chosen chairman of the Democratic State Committee; Mrs. Katherine Halterman of Joplin, secretary; Fred G. Zeibig of St. Louis treasurer, and Erastus Wells of St. Louis, assistant treasurer. Former Judge Moses N. Sale of St. Louis will be chosen chairman of the Finance Committee.

While at first thought, this organization undoubtedly was looked upon by out-state Democratis as being dominated too strongly by St. Louis, it fits in well with the campaign plans. The Democrats are out this year to revive the old Democratic strength in St. Louis and to build up a party organization which has been weak for many years. They recall that, when there was a strong organization in St. Louis they carried the state, and as the organization here became weaker and weaker, the the state more often was carried by the Republicans.

A new State Executive Committee will be chosen at the Jefferson City meeting, either by direct vote of the State Committee or by resolution authorizing Fordyce to appoint it. Russell Dearmont of Cape Girardeau will be its chairman. A woman, probably Mrs. Kate Morrow of Warrensburg, will be chosen vice chairman of the committee.

Kiel to Be G. O. P. Head.

Former Mayor Kiel will be chosen chairman of the Republican State Committee, and probably Miss Katherine Carlon of Brookfield, secretary. The vice chairmanship seemingly will be contested, three being under consideration: Mrs. Pearl Gehrig of Salisbury, Mrs. Sylvester Wells of Kansas City and Mrs. L. Cunningham of Bolivar.

The conventions will meet at noon, the Republicans in the hall of the House of Representatives, and the Democrats in the Senate chamber. There will be no business before the Republican convention except the adoption of a platform, the speechmaking having been postponed until the formal campaign opening the following day. Organization details for the Republican convention had not been worked out yesterday.

The Democrats will have many speeches while the platform committee is at work. Former United States Senator X. P. Wilfley will be temporary chairman. Congressman C. C. Dickinson of Clinton, the member of longest service in the Missouri delegation in Congress, is slated for the permanent chairmanship.

The speakers will include Senator Reed, Congressman Hawes, Mayor Louis J. Stigall of St. Joseph, Mrs. W. K. James of St. Joseph, Dr. J. C. Whitsell, nominee for Congress in the Fourth District; W T. Kemper, Democratic National Committeeman; Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee; Circuit Judge E. S. Gantt of Mexico, nominee for Supreme Judge;; Charles A. Lee of Butler, renominated for State Superintendent of Schools, and Dearmont. The convention will be called to order by Mrs. Dora Hall Stagner of St. Joseph, a new member of the Democratic State Committee, who will introduce Fordyce.

An attendance of several thousand Republicans is expected for the Republican convention and campaign opening. Wednesday morning there will be 16 congressional group meetings, which will be addressed by the nominees for Congress. The regular program will begin shortly after noon, with Senator Williams the principal speaker. Others on the program are R. R. Brewster of Kansas City, Gov. Baker, former Gov. Hyde, Herman Langworthy of Kansas City, Mayor Beach of Kansas City and James A. Finch of New Madrid.

While Hawes will speak briefly at the Democratic State convention, he will postpone outlining the issues of the campaign until the opening meeting in St. Joseph Saturday.

The Second Most Beautiful Car in America

You will scarcely believe your eyes when you first step inside this beautiful new Jewett and see the luxury that surrounds you. Certainly no earlier car, at so moderate a price, has ever approached the atmosphere of style that envelops this car.

Every line, every fitting, every appointment is in perfect taste. The instruments are clustered in a beautiful, indirectly-lighted panel. The deep cushions, over nested springs, have cleverly placed arm rests, and silken toggle-straps are in easy reach to assist entrance and exit. Skillfully inlaid walnut-finish panels, twin smoking sets and corner lights complete the custom-built air.

Mechanically, this Jewett is dependableness itself. A larger motor than former Jewetts possessed gives even quicker acceleration, smoother performance, longer service. Paige-Hydraulic 4-Wheel brakes insure maximum safety. Every proved mechanical superiority of the day is here—such features (associated usually with cars of highest cost) as an air cleaner, balanced crankshaft, high-pressure lubrication, bronze-backed bearings. Larger balloon tires and snubbers for comfort.

Come see this car soon. Drive it—enjoy its luxurious charm. Come in any time, there's no obligation.

"I would found a city"
—JOSEPH DARST

Darstdale

The Prospective City

Olive Street Road

BETWEEN WALTON AND WOODSON

An Extraordinary Opportunity for Homes, Industries, Stores, Builders, Investors, and Speculators

The Fundamental Facts

IN EVERY metropolitan city, industry is seeking the open spaces, wherein its works and officers and employes may be adequately housed · · a location convenient to the metropolis, not only providing cheap power for production and the facilities of city life for its people, but also insuring the physical vigor and the contentment imparted by the freedom and comfort of suburban living.

A Revelation of Opportunity

That there should be an area adjacent to St. Louis adapted to so tremendously important a project as the establishment and upbuilding of a self-contained community · · in fact, a new city · · will be a revelation to a multitudinous public which has regarded the subdivision as the only means to local and nearby real estate development.

The Location

On Olive Street Road, nine miles from Broadway, St. Louis, and three miles from the city limits, is such an opportunity · · a tract ideally located for the formation of a modern industrial and residential city. It is reached from the east and the west by the widest concrete pavement entering St. Louis. It occupies both sides of that great thoroughfare, between Walton Road, east, and Woodson Road, west.

It is known as DARSTDALE.

The Evolution of Darstdale

Prior to 1925 Darstdale was rolling acreage · · of late years too valuable for farming · · idle, and, save for a building or two, vacant · · but marvelously situated for the purpose here presented.

In February, 1925, a part of the present Darstdale was purchased and plotted for residences and streets. A number of lots were sold and quite a few attractive homes have since been built.

As the idea of founding a city was devloped, other acreage was added, so that today Darstdale is ready as the greatest real estate project in the history of St. Louis and St. Louis County.

The entire area is completely laid out and zoned for individual residences, two-family and apartment buildings, churches and schools, commercial purposes, and smokeless industrial plants, together with avenues and alleys. The industrial district is on the Terminal Railroad, affording direct connections for nation-wide distribution. Fast truck deliveries provide for manufacturers catering to the local St. Louis trade.

A Locality for Fine Homes

Darstdale presents a new appeal for suburban residence. High elevation insures excellent natural drainage; the crisp, country air is the finest thing in the world for the children; the cost of building is as economical as elsewhere; the prices for all table supplies will be controlled by competition · · in all, the man with a family will do well to give careful consideration to the exceptional advantages offered by this prospective city of health, happiness and enjoyable living.

Quick Action a Requisite

A city charter will be applied for in due course. The making of this new city will therefore require fast selling of the property and an active building of residential properties. Stores of every description, automobile agencies, filling stations, banks, and motion picture theatres have now first choice of locations which at a later time will undoubtedly be held at a premium.

Speculation on a Sound Basis

The present estimated value of the unsold lots in Darstdale is $1,000,000.00 · · an extremely conservative valuation. What this figure will run to as the promotion proceeds is beyond anyone's ability to forecast.

Go to Darstdale Today!

The time to buy is now. Darstdale, as a prospective city, will be opened to the public, Sunday, September 12th. Drive out in your car, or take the bus at the Delmar Loop. There is an office on the grounds and a number of well informed salesmen to show you just what Darstdale has for you as a resident, merchant, manufacturer, or investor. See for yourself the possibilities awaiting those who avail themselves of this outstanding prospect.

STATE COURT WILL HEAR SUIT OVER EDENBORN ESTATE

Federal Judge Faris Rules He Is Without Power to Halt Action of Mrs. Sophie L. Meier.

POINT SCORED FOR CLAIMANT

Injunction Had Been Sought by Four Nieces and Nephews of Man Who Left $76,000,000.

In the first legal skirmish over the $76,000,000 left by William Edenborn, railroad owner, Mrs. Sophie L. Meier, farmer's wife of Gumbo, St. Louis County, yesterday scored a point against four nieces and nephews of Edenborn.

Mrs. Meier sued in Circuit Court for a daughter's share of the Edenborn estate, alleging Edenborn was her father. The nieces and nephews —August Mann, Otto Mann, Emma M. Logan and Lena M. Wigton—then sued in Federal Court to enjoin Mrs. Meier from continuing with her suit. They alleged the Circuit Court lacked jurisdiction as the chief defendant, Edenborn's widow, resides in Louisiana.

After considering arguments pro and con for weeks, Federal Judge Faris yesterday denied the application for an injunction. Authorities agree, he said, that Federal Courts have no power to stop pending actions in State Courts.

Leave to Reinstate.

Federal Courts, however, have the right, if they see fit, to enjoin enforcement of judgments handed down in State Courts, according to Judge Faris. Therefore he granted Edenborn's nieces and nephews leave the reinstate their application for injunction in the event a judgment is rendered in Mrs. Meier's suit in Circuit Court.

The request of the nieces and nephews that they be granted title to St. Louis real estate worth about $60,000, which was assigned to them by Mrs. Edenhorn, will be passed upon later by Judge Faris. Mrs. Meier is seeking title to the same real estate in Circuit Court.

Edward J. White, one of several lawyers for the nieces and nephews, notified Judge Faris he would appeal from the adverse decision.

In a brief filed with Judge Faris, Mrs. Meier's lawyers, John T. Fitzsimmons and the firm of Laughlin, Frumberg, Blodgett & Russell, attacked lawyers on the other side in this language:

"In support of their contention that this Court should stay a suit pending in the State court when and after the jurisdiction of the State court had fully attached, counsel have filed a printed brief of some 36 pages, which is entitled to the unique distinction of citing 19 separate authorities, most of which have not the slightest application and not a single one of which lends the slightest support to complainants' contention."

Attempted Rush Act Charged.

It is asserted that, immediately following oral arguments before Judge Faris, complainants' counsel "attempted the rush act and asked the Court to sign on the dotted line" an order to show cause why an injunction should not be granted, and that "an examination of this case may possibly disclose the reason for this haste on the part of counsel for the complainants, for it discloses that this authority is everything that counsel said it was not, and is not anything which counsel says it was.

"The authorities cited by complainants utterly failing to sustain their contention, the defendant (Mrs. Meier) is not required to make an elaborate argument to show that Section 265 of the Judicial Code clearly means what it plainly says. What it says is that:

"'The right of injunction shall not be granted by any court of the United States to stay proceedings in any court of a state, except in cases where such injunction may be authorized by any law relating to proceedings in bankruptcy.'"

Mrs. Meier's suit to establish her claim to a daughter's share of the Edenborn estate is based upon allegations that Edenborn was her father, recognized her as such and promised to provide for her in his will. No will was found after Edenborn, a former St. Louisan, died May 14, at the age of 78, at his Shreveport, La., home. Her claim is being resisted on the ground she was not a legitimate daughter of Edenborn, and has no lawful right to share in his estate.

WTAL BROADCASTERS STRIKE

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 11.—Protesting that their profesional standing is injured because they are limited in the material they can broadcast by virtue of the fact that the station does not have a license agreement with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, several regular WTAL broadcasters have called a strike. WTAL, since it does not pay the fee demanded by the society, cannot broadcast music controlled by this organization. The entertainers, in a resolution, state that their standing is impaired as a result.

MEN AND WOMEN OF AMERICA VALUED AT $1,500,000,000,000

Human Assets Worth Far More Than Property, Insurance Statisticians Estimate.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—America has in its men and women economic assets worth about five times its material wealth in buildings, railroads, livestock, land and all other physical assets of the country, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. estimates.

Its statistics on the earning power of the adult population were made public today. The men of the country were valued at $1,144,000,000,000. Adding the value of housewives and mothers, on the basis that the work they perform is half as valuable as that of the men, increased the total to $1,500,000,000,000. It was admitted figuring the economic value of women at 50 per cent of that of men was a "rather meager allowance."

A. J. HELLMICH OUT OF PRISON, WILL BE HOME HERE TODAY

Former Internal Revenue Collector at St. Louis Had Served 8 Months of Two-Year Prison Term.

Arnold J. Hellmich, who took his medicine and went to prison under two years' sentence after his conviction as one of the conspirators who milked the Jack Daniel warehouse of 891 barrels of whisky, is expected home from Leavenworth penitentiary today.

He was released on parole yesterday at 10:15 a. m., having served a few days more than eight months, the minimum time in which he was entitled to parole.

Hellmich, formerly influential in politics—so influential as to obtain one of the appointive plums, that of Collector of Internal Revenue for the Eastern District of Missouri —left prison shorn of citizenship. He cannot now vote, though his attorneys are hopeful that clemency of the President can be obtained and his citizenship restored at some future time.

Case Closed Incident, He Says.

His only comment upon leaving prison was: "This is a closed incident. I will not discuss it now nor at any future time."

Of all the 15 St. Louis and Cincinnati men who went to prison last January, Hellmich seemed to suffer the worst mentally. He was greatly bowed. He, however, declined to permit his attorneys to appeal his conviction as did most of the others. Consequently he was not released as were Nat Goldstein, former Circuit Clerk, and all other St. Louisans except William J. Kinney, when Supreme Court Justice Butler granted supersedeas appeal bonds. "I'll stay here and get it over," Hellmich said. His attitude made certain that none of the Federal prosecutors or the trial Judge would oppose his application for parole.

Hellmich was at work in the prison printshop yesterday when informed that his certificate of parole had been received. He left his ruling machine, of which he had had charge since his arrival at prison, and the hour's task of dressing him out was begun. He declined the civilian suit which the Government provides for departing prisoners and put on a blue suit with white stripe and a gray fedora hat, almost identical with his dress when he entered prison. He carried a new black traveling bag, walked to the prison gate with the discharge officer and entered an automobile for Kansas City.

Thanks Prison Officials.

He said goodby to prison officials quietly, thanking them simply for courtesies and fairness and commented that the Government could be proud of Leavenworth as an institution.

Only two of the Jack Daniel conspirators now remain in Leavenworth—John Marcus and Edward Meininger of Cincinnati, both under 18 months' sentence.

Whether the other St. Louis men must return to Leavenworth will be decided by the United States Court of Appeals in Chicago next month. The court can affirm their conviction, discharge the men, supporting an argument of lack of jurisdiction of the Indianapolis court, or order retrial.

ACTION TO SAFEGUARD BONDS HANDLED BY MILLER & CO.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—A Protective Committee has been formed to safeguard the interests of those who own bonds underwritten by the investment house of G. L. Miller & Co., which went into receivership Sept. 3, it is announced today by Parry & Taber, Inc., mortgage investment agents.

This action to protect investors was decided upon, said the announcement, because certain of the Miller bond issues were behind in payments of interest and principal.

Miller & Co. gave its assets as $9,636,987 and liabilities as $6,915,824 at the time of the appointment of a receiver. Deputy Attorney-General Keyes Winter said at that time he did not believe the receivership would affect the safety of the company's bonds.

AIR RACE VICTOR GOES 180 MILES AN HOUR

Lieut. C. T. Cuddihy of Navy Wins Free-for-All, Setting World's Record.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—Lieut. C. T. Cuddihy of the Navy today won the free-for-all military pursuit ship race, the feature event of the national air race meet, held here this week.

In winning the 120-mile race over a 12-mile triangular course, Cuddihy was announced as having established a world's record for standard pursuits ships. His average time was 180.495 miles per hour.

Cuddihy flew a Boeing FB-3 plane equipped with a 600-horsepower Packard motor. Close behind him in the second place was Lieut. L. C. Elliott, of the Army, whose average speed was 178.609 miles an hour. Third place was captured by Ross Hoyt of the Army, with an average speed of 170.909 miles. Lieut. C. C. Nutt, also of the Army, was fourth, averaging 170.795 miles.

In winning the race, Cuddihy captured the trophy offered by the Rotary Club of Kansas City.

The only other race of the day was that for air transports, in which speed and efficiency counted. This event was open only to civilians and was won by C. C. Thompson Jr., of Washington, D. C., who flew a Wright-Bellanca plane with a Wright whirlwind motor, capturing the trophy offered by the Detroit News.

Ten thousand persons, the largest crowd of the week, saw the races and other aerial stunts.

TC-5 LEAVES DAYTON FOR LANGLEY FIELD

Army Non-Rigid Airship Took Off From Scott Field Under Excellent Conditions.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, O., Sept. 11.—After a brief stop at Wilbur Wright Field, the army blimp TC-5 took off at 5:45 p. m., Eastern standard time, today for Langley Field, Va. During the stop, the semi-rigid airship was serviced with 400 gallons of gasoline and 100 gallons of oil.

The TC-5 found exceptional flying conditions, with little wind and brilliant clarity, when it took off at Scott Field at 8:30 a. m. yesterday. Lieut. W. A Gray, commanding the airship, planned to reach Langley Field early today.

Just opposite were the conditions when the TC-5 set out from Langley Field on the second longest flight ever made by a dirigible of its type. The purpose of the 750-mile flight was to test the ability of that type to withstand storms. The crew was hoping for rough weather—and they got it.

Two storms, one from the Alleghenies and the other over Indiana and Illinois, drove the ship off its course for 450 miles. But the non-rigid ran true to its type. It landed safely at Scott Field Sept. 3, 36 hours after it left Langley Field, and on the anniversary of the destruction in an Ohio storm of the Shenandoah, which was of rigid design.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

M. A. C.—See answer to Daily Reader in this column.

STATISTICS.—The latest population figures gives Los Angeles credit for 1,222,500 persons.

PERPETUAL.—The word apparatus is pronounced ap-par-at-us. The third letter (a) is pronounced as in rat.

E. R.—Stamp and coin catalogs may be obtained through the St. Louis Stamp and Coin Co., Merchants-Laclede Building, St. Louis.

B. C.—For a full description of the Swope Scholarship Fund see the Post-Dispatch for Dec. 24, 1925, on file at the Public Library.

DAILY READER. — We do not publish such information about motion picture stars or films. Consult the various motion picture magazines.

CURIOUS READER.—Demography is defined as the science of statistics as applied to questions concerning the social well-being of the people. In a narrower sense it deals exclusively with vital statistics.

MISS B. H. S.—An oratorio is a sacred composition for solo voices, chorus or an orchestra. It is usually semidramatic and the text is taken from the Scriptures. It is sung without costuming, scenic effects or acting.

MRS. G. H. M.—The first practical electric iron was marketed about 1906. Electric fans were introduced about 1895. It is estimated that 10,000,000 homes use electric irons and about 2,600,000 use electric fans.

CIVIL PRIDE. — Unless you know some member of the St. Louis Merchants Exchange who might procure Veiled Prophet ball tickets for you, you will not be able to get them. The ball is purely invitational and tickets cannot be purchased.

V. L. P.—The Labrador current brings many icebergs near the main lines of travel in the North Atlantic and so endangers shipping but it also teems with marine life and affords breeding and feeding grounds for some of our best food fish.

POST-DISPATCH READER.—Plate glass makes the best mirrors. To silver glass in making a mirror spread a sheet of pure, new, smooth tinfoil on a flat, level stone table. Cover tinfoil with a layer of mercury ⅛-inch thick. Slide the perfectly clean glass over the mercury so as not to make bubble form under the glass. The work must be done all over if any bubbles appear. Put a heavy weight on glass to press out excess mercury and let glass remain under pressure for 24 hours. Next stand the mirror up on edge to drain. We do not guarantee that results will be good, as the quality of the work depends on the operator.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

R. C.—In the State of Missouri a wife has no interest in lands held in joint tenancy by husband.

L. W.—You must have a license to operate a beauty shop in your home. Punishment for violation of law is usually a fine of $25 to $200.

INFORMATION. — You can recover the money you spent on the place the real estate man let you improve and then sold over your head.

READER.—If the woman had no children the husband inherits one-half her own estate after debts had been paid. The other half is divided equally between the woman's mother, father, brother and sister, if any. Your mother-in-law cannot claim all the valuables.

THANK YOU. — A man cannot sue and obtain a divorce in Illinois when his home is legally in Indiana. Sleeping in Illinois every third night does not make him a legal resident of that State. A previous divorce and remarriage would not influence the court in the man's favor. You should file cross-complaint at once and see a lawyer if suit has been filed in Illinois. A wife can recover court costs and attorneys' fees in Illinois.

H. J. O.—Massachusetts can collect an inheritance tax from a Missouri resident if the Missourian's inheritance is some Massachusetts property consisting of stock. A survivor does not have legal access to a safety deposit box in Missouri when the joint holder dies. In the State of Kansas property deeded to a wife is subject to one-half inheritance tax if survived by her husband. A fee of 5 per cent is charged on all disbursements when property is left in trust. In figuring inheritance tax the full value of real estate is used. From one-half of one per cent to 15 per cent of an estate, depending on the amount of the estate and the exemptions allowed, is taxable. Farm property can be willed in such a way that a creditor cannot take the share of the child.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

B. M. B. W.—It is unusual for such a condition to exist at your age, but it is by no means impossible. It occasionally occurs in quite young women.

ANXIOUS.—Nerves may become inflamed from many causes, such as any infection, disease, undue exposure, wounds, malaria, tuberculosis, Bright's disease and diabetes.

HOPE. — Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and repeat your question, signing yourself the same way, and we will send you the diet lists and answer all your questions personally.

WORRIED.—It is quite possible to have both tuberculosis and syphilis at the same time. It might be well to have another test made for tuberculosis if no test has been made for a year and the patient seems to have been cured.

MAPLEWOOD READER.—Your case appears too complicated for a correct diagnosis to be made without an examination and study of your symptoms. We advise you to consult a physician and to be governed by his advice. You may attend the free clinics at any of the larger hospitals.

FAITH.—Surgical operation is the surest and quickest cure for a bunion. But bony structure of the foot is involved in a bunion, not simply the flesh. Some relief may be obtained by wearing plasters and bandages, but they are not apt to give permanent relief. There is nothing that we can suggest in the way of treatment for your other trouble.

In sad but loving memory of our darling baby, Frank Volten, who died five years ago, Sept. 17, age 5 years and 11 months.
Sadly missed by his mother, sisters and brothers. (c)

In loving memory of Christ Finke, who died Sept. 8, 1917.
Not dead to us;
Only those who have lost can tell
Of grief that is borne in silence
For the one we love so well.
Sadly missed by MRS. MARIE FINKE AND DAUGHTER, MRS. A. MERKEL.

In loving memory of Ed Hellmann, who died Sept. 10, 1921.
Not dead to us;
We love you, Ed.
Not lost, but gone before.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving tender memory of our beloved mother, Clara D'Cruttenden O'Brien, who passed away four years ago, Sept. 12, 1922:
Mother, God's greatest gift to all.
Sadly missed by daughters:
IRMA ROTHWELL, BERTHA JONES.

In loving memory of our dear brother, nephew and grandson, Frank Velten, who departed this life five years ago, Sept. 17, 1921.
Today recalls sad memories
Of the loved one gone to rest;
Those who think of him today
Are those who loved him best.
Sadly missed by his aunt Kate and all who loved him.

In loving remembrance of our dear wife and mother, who departed this life Sept. 11, 1925.
Mother, although you are no longer with us,
We feel your presence everywhere.
And when we gaze upon your picture,
It is with fond remembrance of the once happy home you left.
May you always rest in peace.
FRANK RUND AND FAMILY.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Buettgen, who departed this life Sept. 13, 1925:
A precious one from us is gone
The voice we loved is still
A place is vacant in our home
That never can be filled.
Mother he'de lbe one a last farewell.
She said goodby to none
Her loving heart had ceased to beat;
And before we knew it she was gone.
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

In memory of John Smoktalski Rooney, died three years, Sept. 13, 1923:
With tiny hands you knocked one day.
Upon my heart, its door,
I let you in and then you played
Upon that heart, its floor.
It loved to hear your pretty laugh.
It loved to see your play;
You never caused that heart a pang
Until you went away.
Sadly missed by Loving Mother, Stepfather, Aunts, Cousins, and many friends.
DEBORAH ROONEY. (c)

In loving memory of a dear son, sweetheart and friend, Alfred August Kaltung, who departed this life on Sept. 9, 1925:
God of the heights where men walk free,
Above life's fire, beyond death's sting;
Lord of all souls that rise to Thee,
White with supreme self-offering;
Thou who has crowned the hearts that dare,
Thou hast nerved the hands to do.
God of the lights, give us to share
Thy kingdom in the valleys, too.
MOTHER AND MIRIAM.

NUMEROUS LOANS PENDING, SAYS LONDON REVIEW

Special Wireless to New York Evening Post
LONDON, Sept. 11.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of the Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in a financial review today says:
"Numerous loans are impending and capital resources are still considerable. While the economic factors may be adverse to Great Britain, still it is believed that American and British central banks both have the ability and the will to prevent excessive stringency in either center. Moreover, our stock exchange position is intrinsically sound.
"It is believed that Poincare's plans for a consolidated loan are proceeding rapidly and there is talk of three or four billion francs for conversion of national defense and treasury bonds. A further consolidation of the French short-term bonds, it is hoped, is a good feature and it is believed the situation is being handled ably by the Governor of the Bank of France.
"Nevertheless it is also considered that the failure to ratify the external debt agreements and to formulate a definite plan for stabilization of the franc may yet occasion trouble and may conceivably create another ministerial crisis.

HOGS CLOSE WEEK ON A LOWER BASIS

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last wk.	Prev. Wk.	Yr. Ago.
Cattle and calves	45,406	46,075	29,529
Hogs	71,088	67,884	61,297
Sheep	18,716	22,566	11,455
Horses and mules	1,455	630	1,377
Totals	136,663	137,105	103,598

There was no definite trend in livestock prices at the St. Louis National Stockyards last week. Hogs closed lower, fat lambs closed 25c stronger, sheep steady, horses and mules firm and cattle 50c higher to 25c lower. The combined receipts were of good volume, at approximately 136,662 head, a slight loss from the previous week's heavy run, but a substantial gain over arrivals for the corresponding period in 1925. A similar condition prevailed at most other markets throughout the country. Arrivals of cattle and calves locally were more than 45,000 head, one of the largest runs in several years. Beef steers, notwithstanding the heavy run, advanced sharply, while butcher stock varied today's estimate of the crop of the three Canadian provinces conservatively at 367,000,000 bushels, against 303,000,000 bushels delivered to country elevators 2,000,000 bushels. Minneapolis wheat stocks increased 275,000 bushels for one day.
Corn showed much strength after an opening din. Closing prices were unchanged to 1¼c higher and for the week 2c to 4¾c higher. September 79¾c, December, 85¾c to 85¾c. May, 91¾c to 91¾c.
A private forecaster, out with a prediction that weather will be rainy until Sept. 21 and then will be followed by frost. This forecast, if realized, will greatly injure the crop and it had a bullish influence. Locals took heavy profits on their long line and there was some buying for outside account. The Government report was a little more bearish than expected, indicating a yield of 2,698,000,000 bushels. Shipping sales were 15,000 bushels.
Oats were strong. Buying was stimulated by the Government report which showed 661,000,000 bushels less than the August report. Closing prices were ¾c to 1¼c up for the week. The week's range: September, 37¾c; December, 32¾c to 42¾c; May, 47c to 47¼c. Shipping sales were 8000 bushels.
Lower hogs caused selling of lard and lower prices. The close was unchanged to 2½c higher in sympathy with grain.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

New York, Sept. 11—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Impressive outbursts of strength in the market have been followed by spells of profit-taking until it is difficult to say whether the week has left stocks in better or worse position than they were before the Labor day recess. About the most that can be said is that the averages stand slightly lower than they did and that in the performance of the market for the month to date may be found no evidence of a definite trend. That is not surprising in the circumstances. A pronounced upward swing in stocks since late spring had lifted values to a level at which good business for the immediate future was discounted. In the absence of any new signs of inflation in business or even marked expansion, the speculative traders see no reason to accumulate fresh lines. They have not been able, furthermore, to attract so broad a general public demand for stocks as had been expected and as still they hope for.

Industrial Situation Review.

"To the man that watches the fluctuations of stocks as a means by which to judge the changing position of industry, the significant thing now is that the market reflects confidence in the soundness of the general business structure. Activity in the key industries continues at a pace that assures good trade for the autumn. Building operations again have surprised the prophets, who hold that recession must inevitably come, but the F. W. Dodge figures published today show that very close to another high record was established in August. Special influences often distort the monthly figures on building, however, and the August gain should not blind us to the solid fact that the country is catching up on its requirements. Within the last two years and more especially within the last year the shortage in structures of various types has been reduced until now it is becoming less profitable to undertake new jobs.

Demand for Steel.

"In the steel industry the demand for materials is broad and the automobile companies are busily engaged in designing new models to accelerate sales that now promise to reach a new record high mark for the year. That the prosperity of the country has been stimulated by the installment plan is a contention that now is rejected by a majority of the authorities but nobody denies that this method of extending credit has accelerated trade. Perhaps in some instances installment selling has been pushed too far, for thoughtless people have been encouraged to mortgage their income over long periods to pay for luxuries, but we have no conclusive evidence that our prosperity is to be suddenly cut short through abuses of the system.

No Hard Fast Lines.

"No hard and fast lines can be set up between what types of goods may and what may not be safely purchased on the installment plan. No basis is at hand for judging who should and who should not use this credit instrument. About all that can be done is to teach individuals the importance of formulating a program for attaining financial independence, of putting aside something for old age and thus help each person to decide wisely for himself what may be done without ultimate injury. Signs of slightly dearer money have brought predictions of various sorts but there is nothing unusual about firmer rates at this season of the year and the ready oversubscription of the large Treasury issue of 3½ per cent obligations shows plainly enough that the reservoir of credit still is ample.

Bond Market Improves.

"The improvement in the bond market has been noteworthy. Numerous leading issues have gradually crept forward until they now stand at their best levels for the period. Flotations of new issues have increased in number within the passing of the seasonally dull weeks and the prospect is that the originating houses will be somewhat busier for the remainder of the month than they have been since early summer. The position of bonds has been helped by the sagging tendency of commodity prices for investor in fixed income-bearing securities may look forward to an increase in their purchasing power as the dollar commands more and more of any particular thing.

Irregular Market Saturday.

"Professional speculators for the decline continued to dominate the stock market today and were successful in bringing about declines in most of the leading issues. The close was steadier and somewhat above the lowest of the day. Traders were inclined to take profits in anticipation of a general technical setback and as a result support for stocks was rather feeble. Suggestions in commission house circles that shares might be bought at lower levels encouraged selling pressure throughout the list. The Government's crop estimates were construed as bearish in the grain markets and led to general liquidation in wheat and corn.

Motors Lead Decline.

"When it became apparent soon after the opening that the market lacked sustained rallying power, offerings quickly increased and the decline that got under way at yesterday's close gained momentum. New low records for the movement were reached in many of the standard favorites. Motor shares led the reaction. General Motors falling back easily and Mack Trucks continuing under pressure. Yellow Truck was further depressed, while many of the low priced shares lacked support. Studebaker continued in good demand, however, holding around the high of the recent recovery. U. S. Steel was singled out for attack and broke below 147, while other leading industrials sagged in sympathy.

Clearing House Statement.

"Evidence of a readjustment in the money market after the heavy shifting of funds for Labor day needs was provided in the weekly statement of Clearing House banks today. An increase in surplus of $63,338,340 was revealed, resulting in an excess reserve of $50,487,900. Loans, discounts, etc., declined $21,842,000."

Rails Join Reaction.

"Although shares of the more prominent railroads received better support, nevertheless the trend in this group was toward lower levels. Louisville & Nashville and Nickel Plate were fairly well supported, while St. Louis-Southwestern was in good demand, but Delaware & Hudson and several other recently active favorites sagged in response to profit-taking.

Exchange Market Quiet.

"Trading in the foreign exchange market was quiet and fluctuations held within narrow limits. A generally steadier tone prevailed, sterling improving slightly and rates on Paris holding firm. Lire eased off a trifle, while Spanish exchange recovered further.

SHARES SOLD

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Total sales for the week on the New York Stock Exchange were 8,196,220 shares, compared with 9,237,400 last week, 7,291,300 same week a year ago and 4,073,700 two years ago.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted foreign exchange review, says:

"The feature of foreign exchange trading this week was the reversed movements in continental exchanges following the brief advance last Saturday, when other markets were closed on account of the triple holiday. At the beginning of business on Tuesday those exchanges were offered in large volume, which was augmented when the week's operations were resumed on Monday those exchanges were offered in large volume, which was augmented when those who looked on the strength of last Saturday as being only a flash that quickly disappeared. Italian lire selling cut 3.85 a week and declined in the first few days of the week to below $3.60, and French exchange moved in the same way, falling from $3.96 at the end of last week to $3.85. Belgian followed French on its downward movement but did not decline to the same extent. Sterling moved within a narrow range, yielding from $4.85⅝ to $4.84⅞ for demand and then had a moderate rally. There had been an interval of profit-taking in bills, but their supply was scattered and mostly in small lots, exerting little influence on the market.

"Spanish exchange was unsettled because of the political uneasiness in Spain, but after the removal of martial law pesetas made a quick recovery, ranging from $15.08 to 15.30. Greek exchange was not influenced by the reports of unrest and dissension in the Greek Cabinet.

"Exchange in Hungary had a sudden turn from a premium of 1-32 to a discount of 1-16 for cables. South American was generally well maintained. Argentine developed a strength toward the end of the week. Brazilian was heavy for a time, but quickly became steady and showed little change as a result of the week's movement. Peruvian exchange, which has been firm for some time, was also in increased demand, moving up more than 2 points. Mexican exchange asserted its position in unison with the market for the metal, showing weakness for a time, but becoming firm in the last few days. Japanese was again in demand, yen making a new high for the year at 46.40.

"Trading in the foreign exchange market Saturday was quiet and fluctuations held within narrow limits. A generally steady tendency prevailed, improving slightly and rates on Paris holding firm. Lire eased off a trifle, while Spanish exchange recovered further.

Weekly Metal Review

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The steel trade shows signs of improvement in the tail advances, and, generally speaking, the undertone has become firm with an upward tendency to prices. Nine mills have been working at 90 per cent of capacity, while tin and sheet mills are also active. At Pittsburg the leading interest is reported to be producing between 80 and 85 per cent of capacity, with a good demand; other mills are working at about the same capacity.

More activity is also being shown in pig iron, especially in the New York district, some business being taken for fourth-quarter shipment.

In copper there has been no revival of demand since the holidays. The larger domestic consumers are believed to have covered their needs for September and in some instances well into October, and have been holding off in view of the easier ruling of the markets abroad. No selling pressure of consequence has developed, and producing interests generally were said to be holding for 14¾c at the end of the week. This price was being shaded, however, and small lots are reported to have sold at 14.30c to 14.35c for electrolytic delivered.

Tin was strong, reaching the highest level since the war, due to a scarcity of straits and the tight position of nearby supplies.

Lead, because of heaviness abroad, was barely steady, but with former quotations maintained by producers. The movement into consumption continued liberal.

Zinc, firmer, reflected the more favorable statistical situation and a much better forward-line demand.

Antimony firmer, reflecting the unfavorable Chinese situation, although demand is not very active.

Bank of Germany Statement.

PARADE MARKS ST. LOUIS DAY AT EXPOSITION

Mayor Miller Leads Procession and Speaks on Arrival at Forest Park Grounds.

EXHIBITORS NOT TO EXTEND SHOW

St. Louis German Shepherd Dog Club Will Hold Its First Field Trial Sept. 18 and 19.

A parade from the fringe of the downtown district to the Exposition grounds and a speech by Mayor Miller were the special events yesterday, which was St. Louis Day at the Greater St. Louis Exposition in Forest Park.

The parade was from Twelfth boulevard and Market street, north to Locust and thence by Locust and Lindell to Kingshighway and the exposition grounds. Mayor Miller and other city officials led the procession. They were followed by a band, three companies of the Sixth Infantry and the battery of artillery which participates in the nightly sham battle. Cossacks rode their horses and were followed by several bus loads of performers in the various exposition entertainments.

Exposition to Close Next Sunday

A large contingent of firemen were in the line with old and new fire apparatus, the old being horse-drawn and the new motorized. The firemen's band marched and there was a third band of the local musicians' union which rode in a bus.

The Mayor, in his address, declared the exposition was merely the forerunner of a greater St. Louis. "It is visual evidence," he said, "of the city's progress in industry, comerce, education and religion. It is the precursor of greater things in the onward march of the city. St. Louis today is engaged in the greatest construction program ever undertaken by any city in history. We have now under way approximately $65,000,000 in public improvements." He pictured the splendor of a new courthouse, a new auditorium and a 100-foot driveway from the river to the outskirts of the city.

250,000 Visitors Last Week.

More than 250,000 persons attended the exposition during the first week, which ended yesteday, according to an estimate by William T. Findly, general secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. This figure includes the attendance of 50,000 yesterday, the largest of any one day with the exception of Labor Day when 70,000 were on the grounds. One of the chief points of interestt o visitors was the amusement arena where the "Exposition Frivolities" are staged. This afternoon at 2:15 a dirigible from Scott Field manned by Col. John A. Paegelow and several officers of his staff, will land in the arena if weather conditions are favorable for the flight. The landing crew will comprise 100 soldiers of the Sixth Infantry.

A special attractio tomorrow will be the appearance of "Princess America II" who recetnly was proclaimed the most beautiful Indian girl in the United States. The contest in which she participated was conducted by the National Union Congress.

The exposition will close next Sunday. The Exhibitors' Association has voted down a suggestion to continue it through Veiled Prophet on Oct. 5 and 6. At the same time, the exhibitors voted to penalize any of their number who withdrew exhibits before closing day, by requiring their resignation from the association which is being organized upon a permanent basis. If the Chamber of Commerce makes a profit on the exposition, the proceeds probably will be used as the nucleus of a fund with which to establish an annual exposition, preferably in a permanent building.

Police Dog Field Trial.

The newly formed German Shepherd Dog Club of St. Louis will give its first match show and field trial at the exposition on the afternoons of Sept. 18 and 19. This show is sponsored by the American Kennel Club and will be judged by Roland Wilson of Peoria, Ill.

The field trial will show the super intelligence of these dogs through their various stunts, such as retrieving hidden articles, tracing fugitives and high jumping. Entries will close Sept. 16. They should be sent to M. F. English, 6308 Audrey avenue.

Fire Causes $7000 Damage to Store

Fire in the basement of the Conrad Grocery Co., 409 North Eighth street, early yesterday, burned for more than an hour and caused damage estimated at $5000 to the stock and $2000 to the building. The flames were discovered by a policeman on the beat and two alarms were turned in. A threatening blaze spread to the Cobweb Bar in the basement of the Victoria Building but was put out with $200 damage.

Avoid "Backfires!"

Did you ever express your opinion of a person hastily and then awake to the fact that you were wrong?

There exists an idea, satisfying to some, that first impressions are generally correct, but be this as it may, there is no denying the fact that the object of our opinion should be "weighed in the balance."

Opinions formed without reasons can easily do injustice to those on whom we direct them.

Moral: Always give the "other fellow" the benefit of the doubt!

a, b and c coupled.

Scapa Flow showed high speed from start, stood a long drive gamely although swerving in the final furlong, and outlasted Candy Queen in the final drive. Latter showed good speed from start, moved into the lead when called upon, but tired right at end. Valorous came with a rush on the inside and finished strong after overcoming interference. Adois showed a good effort all the way. Gun Royal held on gamely to end. Termagant, well up first half mile, stopped under pressure. Pantella could never get to leaders. Lord Chaucer went well. Aromagne and Sun Forward could never get up.

Odds: Scapa Flow, place, 6 to 5, show, 3 to 5; Candy Queen, place, 4 to 1 show, 2 to 1; Valorous, show, 1 to 4.

By G. F. T. Ryall.

BELMONT PARK, Sept. 11.—Walter M. Jefford's Scapa Flow, called Man o' War's best son, redeemed himself for his defeats at Saratoga by winning the thirty-eighth running of the Futurity, America's classic for 2-year-olds, before a crowd of 30,000 at Belmont Park this afternoon.

The son of Man O' War and Florence Webber was driving and out to the last ounce to beat Candy Queen half a length, while Valorous of the H. P. Whitney trio, a favorite, was third, a length behind. The time for the short seven furlongs was 1:22.

The Futurity, the richest race for two-year-olds and one of the richest races of the year, was worth $65,980 to the winner, Walter M. Jeffords receiving an additional $2000 for having bred the colt. The full purse was approximately $80,000.

16 Youngsters in the Field.

Sixteen two-year-olds faced the starter and during the short delay at the post Scapa Flow was the most unruly. When the break came, however, he was away well from the extreme outside post position. Pantella, of the Whitney string, was first to show in front in the dash down the Widener course but Candy Queen, running much better race than in the Hopeful a fortnight ago, was well forward while Scapa Flow charged to the front from the outside. Half way down the stretch these three fought it out. Termagant, which was supposed to show so much speed, was back of the leaders and driving to keep her position.

Coming to the last quarter, Candy Queen went to the front for a dozen strides and Fator went to the whip on Scapa Flow. Here Valorous came out of the bunch on the inside and closed with a rush. Sande, who rode Valorous, said after the race that he would have won had Fator not pulled over on him deliberately and shut him off, as it was Valorous was forced to take up right in the last sixteenth.

Adios Fast at Close.

Adios, which was beaten so easily in the Champagne Stakes, closed with a whirlwind rush at the end to take fourth money, while back of him came Pantella, Lord Chaucer, the Hopeful winner, General Lee and Bonnie Maginn, the paddock tip and the outsiders.

It was the first futurity run over the new Widener course and many thought that it would not be marred by interferences such as marked those races out of the old chute in the past, but there was just as much swerving as in the other big races and not a few horses suffered thereby. However, the crowd enjoyed the spectacle hugely, it being the first time that it could have a clear view of the race.

Loughran Makes Dempsey Extend Himself to Limit

Champion Has Roughest Two Rounds Since He Has Started Training.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 11.

Tommy Loughran, 175-pound dynamo from Philadelphia, today gave Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, the most aggressive workout Dempsey has experienced since he started training for his title contest against Gene Tunny.

Loughran, boxing Dempsey for the first time, stepped two wicked rounds with the champion. He carried Dempsey along at a terrific pace, forcing him to extend himself to the limit to avoid being shown up by Loughran, a masterful boxer, who had no trouble in popping straight lefts into Dempsey's reddened face and shooting over rights to the chin.

Dempsey apparently did not enjoy the spectacle of being on the receiving end. Twice he crowded Loughran into the ropes, cutting loose with a flurry of punches as if he was fighting in earnest. In the second round, after Loughran had nailed Dempsey with a left hook Jack drove a left to the pit of the stomach that slowed Loughran up. A few seconds later Loughran jerked Dempsey off balance as he was coming in and the champion sprawled into the ropes, nearly falling down.

Dempsey, however, got even for this trick by backing Loughran into the ropes, and scoring four punches without a return. As the round ended, Dempsey crowded the Philadelphian into a corner and nailed him on the chin with a left hook. It looked as if Loughran was going to crumble but he survived the furious exchange.

Loughran, who fought eight close rounds with Tunney, praised Dempsey's showing. He declared the champion was punching sharp, hard, and often.

After the two furious rounds with Loughran, Dempsey stepped a round with Charley Anderson, winding up with Mike Arnold.

Both of these heavyweights received a battering around the body as Dempsey kept working his left hook overtime.

Reds Gain Ground in Race, Winning Over Pirates, 10-6

Cincinnati Pounds Carmen Hill and Yde Off Hill, Twice Scoring Four Runs in an Inning—Every Man on Team Makes at Least One Safety.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 11.—The Reds threw cold water on the Pirates' pennant aspirations and for that matter, second place money, when Carl Mays submarined the Pirate craft in the final game of the season at Forbes Field.

Mays turned in a neat job of trimming the sails of the Buccaneer craft and never was in danger of losing his advantage. His mates gave him plenty of support with the stick and drove 10 big handsome tallies across the platter and it was not until the underhand expert had a commanding lead that he allowed any undue familiarities with his delivery.

Late in the game he rested and George Grantham hit a home run with two men on the paths, but he still had sufficient margin to get the victory.

Prior to that the Bucs had scored just three runs.

Frank Titterton of New York Wins 15-Mile Race

Jacob Kaysing and John Probst of St. Louis Finish Second and Third.

Frank Titterton, 26-year-old New York bank teller, won the National A. A. U. 15-mile championship run at the Greater St. Louis Exposition arena last night in one hour, 32 minutes and 54 seconds. Titterton's victory, his first attempt at any distance longer than 10 miles, was witnessed by an attendance of spectators which swelled from a crowd of 100 to more than 10,000 persons, the night exposition gathering.

The new champion, who succeeds "Whitey" Michelson of Portchester, Conn., proved master of the field throughout the contest and carried the colors of the Millrose A. C. six laps ahead of the runner-up, Jacob Kaysing, running for the Coliseum Athletic Club. A short distance behind Kaysing, John Probst of Forest Park Highlands, finished third, relinquishing the runner-up position after a bitter duel over the major part of the long grind.

After Titterton had finished the course, the remaining runners were stayed by officials, who granted places in the order in which the men were then running. The following places were awarded: George Stetzen, East St. Louis, fourth; Briston Grigsby, unattached, fifth; Oreon S. Moore, unattached, sixth, and August Schmid Jr., national guard, seventh. Antie Farrell, East St. Louis, and Frank Casciaro, unattached, also started but retired. Michelson, the 1925 champion, and Schoer Christenson of Chicago, failed to appear after having posted entries with local officials.

The new champion, who had his race well in hand from the crack of the starter's gun, complained at the finish of the bumpy condition of the track. Titterton stated that his time, which was 12 minutes slower than the world's record for the distance was slowed probably seven minutes by the poor conditions.

RICKARD ANNOUNCES TICKET SALES HAVE PASSED $1,300,000

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 11.—Twenty-two thousand tickets for additional seats for the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship fight on Sept. 23 will be placed on sale Monday morning. The extra seats are now being erected at the north end of the sesquicentennial stadium and will be priced at $5.50 to $7.50 and $11.

The work of arranging the ringside seats, which will necessitate the placing of about 16,000 chairs on the field surrounding the ring, is about complete, and the first installment of chairs is epected Monday.

Promoter Tex Rickard will provide a special clock to be used by the timekeeper, with the approval of local officials. It embraces all the principles of a split-second stop watch.

At Rickard's office it was said tonight that ticket sales have reached approximately $1,300,000, about $100,000 representing today's business. It was announced that all the branch ticket offices, with the exception of Rickard's New York office, were closed tonight because all tickets allotted have been sold. These branch offices included those in Washington, Baltimore, Wilmington, Detroit and Chicago. Both Detroit and Chicago sent telegraphic orders for additional tickets, but none could be supplied.

Brown's Single Off Rhem's Glove and High's Ordinary One-Baser, Which Takes a Bad Bounce for a Triple, Beat Rhem — Hornsby Hits in Pinch Three Times in Twin Bill.

By J. Roy Stockton
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—An infield single and a fluke triple enabled the Boston Braves to break even with the Cardinals in a doubleheader here this afternoon, and the Cincinnati Reds, by taking the measure of the Pirates, reduced St. Louis' lead to two games.

Pittsburg's chances were jolted by the defeat, the champions dropping a game farther behind the Reds and half a game farther below the Cardinals.

Jess Haines scored a 2-0 shutout in the first game of the afternoon, and while Rhem was hit harder in the second and beaten 4 to 3, he would have been returned victor had it not been for that infield single and the fluke triple.

Two Breaks Against Cards.

Hornsby and his men had broken a 2-2 tie by scoring a run in the sixth inning and Rhem had retired two Braves when Brown shot a grounder toward the box. Rhem put up his glove and stopped the ball, but Thevenow could not get to it in time to make a throw to first, and it had to be called a single. That was the first break. Moore followed with a solid smash to right center, a three-bagger that sent Brown over the plate and tied the score.

Then in the eighth, with one out, High shot a safety to center. It was an ordinary single when it started, but the ball took a queer bounce past Douthit, who did not play it any too well, and High reached third before Southworth, backing up Douthit, could retrieve the ball. Brown sent a sacrifice fly to Douthit and High scored with the winning run. Moore followed with a tap to the box so that the run would not have scored if Douthit had smothered the hit.

The Boston field appears to be a treacherous one, cut up from the spikes of football teams in practice.

The ball may have hit one of the scars left by the gridiron warriors. Douthit appeared to play the ball too confidently, trusting to making the stop with his glove instead of getting in the path of the ball, so that if his hands missed connections, his body would stop it.

Scoring in Second Game.

Each team scored two runs in the first inning of this contest. Billy Southworth doubled with one out and scored when Hornsby singled to right. Hornsby went to second when Welsh's throw-in took a bad hop over Taylor's head and Rogers scored when Bell singled to center.

The Braves tied the score with two in their half of the inning. Rhem walked Jack Smith, the first batter, and Bancroft singled to left, sending Smith to third and taking second on the play for Smith. Welsh crashed a single to center and both runners crossed the plate.

The score remained tied until the sixth, when Douthit, leading off, was safe on Moore's fumble. Southworth sacrificed and Hornsby singled to center, scoring Douthit.

Then came the infield hit that paved the way to one run for the Braves and the fluke triple that paved the way for the other.

The Cardinals out-hit the Braves by 8 to 6 in this game and played errorless ball, while the Braves made three misplays. However, Johnny Cooney, who went to the hill after Goldsmith had pitched the first inning, was more effective in the pinches.

Haines Wins Pitching Duel.

The first game was a pitching duel between Jess Haines and Robert Smith. Each allowed four hits, but Haines was invincible in the pinches and all the Boston hits were singles, whereas the Cards bunched two doubles in the third with a Boston error to produce the only runs of the game.

Southworth started the rally with a double to the scoreboard in left center and Hornsby scored him with a double that caromed off Bancroft's glove. After Bottomley had grounded out, Jack Smith dropped Lester Bell's high fly and Hornsby scored.

The Cardinals did not show their usual punch, but they never have been able to do much with the Boston pitchers.

Bob Smith held them hitless after the fourth inning in the first game.

Scoring Chances Wasted.

In the second there were many opportunities to score, but the St. Louisans could not deliver with men on bases, except in the first inning and the sixth. In that same sixth inning two Cardinals were on the bases with only one out and there was a chance to put the game away, but a sacrifice fly that sent Hornsby to third was the best Lester Bell could contribute and Hafey forced Bottomley at second.

Southworth led off in the eighth with a single, but Hornsby forced him, Bottomley forced Hornsby and Bell forced Bottomley, the sluggers failing to get the ball out of the infield.

Again in the ninth inning O'Farrell singled to right with one out, but two pinch hitters failed. Holm batted for Thevenow and fouled to Taylor and Flowers, batting for Rhem, sent an easy fly to Jack Smith.

Only 13 More Games.

Only 13 games remain on the Cardinals' schedule now. Hornsby and his men will be idle tomorrow while the Reds are playing the Dodgers and the Pirates meeting the Giants. Monday the Cards will conclude the season's hostilities with the Braves and then, after an open date Tuesday, they will move to Philadelphia for a series of six games in four days.

Hornsby may save Sherdel for duty against the Phillies. Left-handed pitchers take the sting out of the short right field fence at Philadelphia and Sherdel usually

RED SOX ROUT WINGARD IN NINTH AND DEFEAT BROWNS, 5 TO

Jacobson's Triple Breaks Tie; Sisler's Men Rally in Vain

Home Team Scores in First and Second Innings Without a Single Hit—Failure of Squeeze Play Ruins a Scoring Chance in Eighth.

By Herman Wecke.

Seventh place is not yet safe for the Browns. The Boston Red Sox, with a 5 to 4 victory in the opener of the series yesterday still have a mathematical chance of overtaking Sisler's men. The chance is remote, but it nevertheless is there. All Boston has to do is to win all its remaining games, while the Browns lose all they have to contest.

The Sox won out in the ninth. In fact, this was the only thrilling round of the game.

Rigney started with a pass and then our old friend "Baby Doll" Jacobson smote a triple. Shaner walked and Wingard was taken out. Davis going in. Regan filed to Bennett and Jake scored. A bit later Manager Sisler missed a throw from Davis and Shaner hiked in from third with the final run of the round.

But the Browns were not through. They came right back, but not far enough. Bennett opened the home half with a single. Rice followed with a sock to right which Tobin let roll to the fence. Bennett, as a result scored and Rice hiked to third. Then Lee Fohl wig-wagged Welzer to the bench and sent in Wingfield. Sisler sent out a sacrifice fly but that ended it. And that's the reason the Browns still have a mathematical chance to finish in the cellar before the close of the 1926 campaign.

Wingard Pounded at Start.

Singles by Rigney, Jacobson, Shaner and Regan netted the Sox one run off Wingard in the first. But the lead was short lived. Mr. Delmar Lungren, on the hill for Fohl and the Sox defense saw to it that Bennett walked. Rice hit to Rigney and both runners were safe when the shortstop threw high to second. Sisler walked to pack the corners and Bennett scored while Miller was forcing Sisler. McManus struck out and Schang popped out to end it.

Mr. Lundgren was still on duty in the second and he was as generous as ever. He walked Hargrave and then got rid of Gerber and Wingard. That was too much prosperity for the young right-hander. So he proceeded to walk Bennett, Rice and Sisler to force in Hargrave. And then he walked—to the bench. Welzer taking his place. The newcomer got Miller on a tap to the box to end it.

Two Doubles and No Score.

Stupid base running or call it what you want, deprived the Sox of a tally in the third. Shaner opened with a double. Regan sent a long smash to Bennett. Shaner first went back to second and then tried for third. He was easily doubled. Todt followed with a double which would have counted Shaner, but it went for naught.

The Sox tied it in the fourth. Welzer walked and Tobin bunted safely. Rigney put down a sacrifice and Welzer tallied when Jacobson drove Bennett back for his long drive.

Inability of Wingard to bunt on an attempted squeeze play cost the Browns a run in the eighth. Schang singled to start and Hargrave walked. Gerber's martyr death sent the pair along. The runners were in motion on the first pitch to Wingard, but the hurler missed and Schang was caught off third. Then Wingard tapped to Welzer and it was all over.

A few more than 800 persons saw the game.

The Browns and Red Sox will end their season's play with a double-header today. Joe Giard and Elam Vangilder probably will hurl against Harris and Ruffing. The first game at 1:30.

Manager Sisler trotted out another changed battle front. Harry Rice showed at third base in place of Gene Robertson and Wally Schang was again in left field.

Bill Jacobson, old teammate of the Browns, crossed the home guard in the first. He hit with a 3-1 call and socked a single to center. It was a line drive, on which Gerber just missed a glove-hand catch.

It took the noble athletes just 25 minutes to finish the first inning.

This young Regan is a hustling ball player. He made several fine catches of pop flies.

The Browns failed to get a hit off Lundgren during his stay on the hill. They couldn't. He walked six men in less than two innings before Fohl sent Welzer to his relief.

Both clubs had five men left on bases in the opening two rounds. The Sox had five hits and the Browns none.

Muny Semifinals To Be Played at Fairground Today

Hard to Pick Favorites in Title Contests; First Game at 1:30.

The semifinal round in the elimination series for the city baseball title will be played at Fairground No. 1 today, starting at 1:30 o'clock.

The Shells and Pants play in the opener and Laclede Gas and Sunlight in the second contest.

Both games are likely to be closely contested affairs, and the winners are tough to pick. The Shell-Pants engagement will probably prove a pitchers' battle. John Haamer is almost certain to open for the Pants and either Min Hardin or Pete Gardner will be on the mound for the Shells.

The Sunlight conquered last year's champions, the Schenbergs, but will find real opposition in the Lacledes, whose hurler will be Eddie Steinman. Muick will probably start for Sunlight.

Ada Mackenzie Wins.

WINNIPEG, Canada, Sept. 11.—Miss Ada MacKenzie of Toronto added the Canadian ladies' closed golf championship to her list of victories, defeating the defending champion, Miss Helen Paget of Ottawa, in the final here today, 7 and 6.

Bill Friel, business manager of the Browns, announced last night that the club had recalled seven players from the minor leagues. He also announced the purchase of George Blaeholder, leading hurler of the Western League who is with the Tulsa club.

The players recalled from the minor leagues are as follows: Bob La Motte and Claude Jonnard from Milwaukee, Tom Porter from Terre Haute, Stuart Bolen, Walter Beck, Tommy Rego and Ellis Austin all from Tulsa. Jonnard, Bolen, Beck and Blaeholder are all hurlers. Beck and Blaeholder will report to the club Sept. 20.

Flukes Give Braves a Game And Even Break With Cards

baffles Fletcher's men. However, Hornsby may decide to shoot the little southpaw against the Braves in the series final and let the Philadelphia contests take care of themselves.

Sunday was meant to be an open date for the Cardinals when the good schedule makers met during the winter, but the Cardinal money changers fooled 'em and instead of having a day of rest, the Cardinals will play an exhibition game for a few dollars.

In the first game each team filled the bases in the first inning without scoring. After two were out Hornsby and Bottomley walked and Bell scratched a single past Bancroft. Hafey followed with a fly straight to Brown.

Two walks and Bell's high throw filled the sacks for the Braves with two down, but Moore popped to Thevenow.

Unconscious Strategy.

Burrus was safe on Thevenow's fumble to start the Boston second and the Braves then showed something new in unconscious base stealing strategy. Burrus dashed for second and Zach Taylor threw his bat at Haines' feet. Jess had to jump into the air and was in the way of O'Farrell's throw and Bob had to throw high. Of course Burrus stole the base.

Southworth's double in the third was a line drive to left center that Jack Smith finally retrieved near the score board. Bill might have reached third but he played it safe. It was well, for Hornsby doubled off Bancroft's glove, scoring Southworth.

The run that Hornsby scored was a donation on the part of Jack Smith, who muffed an easy fly from Bell's bat.

First Errorless Inning.

The fourth was the Cardinals' first errorless inning. Bell made a bad throw in the first. Thevenow missed a grounder in the second and Hafey muffed a line drive in the third.

In the fourth and fifth Thevenow had to make stops with two down to prevent the Braves from scoring. He came up with the ball each time.

Bancroft gave the grounds keeper a calling down this morning, it was learned. Bannie said Thevenow did not deserve much blame for his boots of yesterday.

Smith pitched hitless ball after the fourth and Haines was a no-hit pitcher after the fifth.

Smith gave four bases on balls and Haines three.

A Shaky Ninth Inning.

Haines gave the Cardinal followers their usual thrill when he walked Burrus to start the ninth, but Zach Taylor kindly hit into a double play.

Four hits for each team, but the Cardinals bunched two of theirs and both doubles with that Jack Smith muff.

Les Bell singled in the first, the two doubles were made in the third and O'Farrell singled to start the fourth for the last hit off Smith.

The Boston safeties were made in the third, fourth and fifth. Welsh singled with one on and none out in the third. Zach Taylor and R. Smith singled with one gone in the fourth and Welsh started the fifth with a single.

Three Errors, No Runs.

It was unusual that the Cardinals were able to make three errors without giving the enemy a flock of runs.

The attendance was estimated at 15,000, one of the best crowds of the season at Braves Field.

The Second Game.

Hal Goldsmith, who started to pitch for the Braves in the second game, is said to be a lucky pitcher. Bancroft did not believe in his luck after the Cardinals plastered him for two runs in the first inning and after the Braves had tied it in their half, Johnny Cooney was sent to the hill.

Southworth started the first inning rally with a double and Hornsby scored him with a single to right.

O'Farrell sent a terrific smash straight at Cooney in the second, but the pitcher knocked down the ball and threw out Bob at first.

Rhem had his usual poor start. He walked Jack Smith and Bancroft singled, sending Smith to third and taking second on the play for Smith. Welsh lined a single just out of Hornsby's reach and the score was tied.

Rhem turned 'em back in order in the second and third, but High started the fourth with a single to right and stole second after Brown struck out. Moore filed out and Burrus walked, but the dangerous Taylor tapped to Rhem.

Four Cardinals hit Cooney hard in the fourth, but only one of the drives went safe. Hornsby lined to Burrus, Bottomley lined deep to Welsh, Bell singled to left and Hafey sent a long fly to Brown.

Hornsby drove in another run in the sixth inning. Douthit was safe on Moore's fumble to start the inning and Southworth promptly sacrificed. Hornsby delivered with a slashing line single to right center.

The Cards did not hold the lead long. Rhem got the first two batters in the Boston half, but Brown scratched a single off the pitcher's glove. Moore then sent a triple to right center, scoring Brown.

Rhem whipped over two strikes on Burrus and then walked him. However, Zach Taylor obligingly grounded to Thevenow.

Southworth opened the eighth with a single to center and on Hornsby's slow roller, no shortstop in the world except Bancroft would have tried for a force-out at second.

But Bannie, all doubled up to stop the ball, made an underhanded toss to Moore and Southworth was forced.

Cards Pennant Favorites 9-5 On Wall Street

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.

ODDS of 11 to 10 on the New York Yankees to win the world series were offered today in a Wall Street wager which placed $5500 against $5000. The St. Louis Cardinals were quoted as 9 to 5 favorites to nose out the Reds, Pirates and Cubs in the final lap of the National League race.

Several large bets also were made on the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight battle, with the champion ruling a 11 to 5 choice. A wager of $5000 against $75,000 that Dempsey will score a knockout in the first round was announced by one firm.

Peltzer Breaks 1500-Meter Mark In Beating Nurmi

German Clips Second and Half Off Record; Former Champion Third.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—Three marvelous distance runners finished a race here today so close that less than two seconds marked their finish. Dr. Otto Peltzer, the German crack, took the 1500 meter race at the Charlottenburg sport club. Emil Wide, of Sweden was second and Paavo Nurmi, of Finland was third.

The German flyer's time was 3 minutes and 51 seconds, a world's record, breaking the previous mark set by Nurmi in Finland on June 19, 1924, when he ran the distance in 3 minutes, 52.6 seconds. Wide's time today was 3 minutes, 51.8 seconds. Nurmi's time was 3 minutes, 52.8 seconds.

More than 25,000 German spectators went frantic when Peltzer was announced the winner. The national anthem was sung in a mighty chorus. As the crowd carried the champion on their shoulders to his dressing room, an airplane swooping to within 50 feet of the ground dropped a garland of roses accurately on Peltzer's shoulders.

At the beginning of the race, Nurmi took the lead with his characteristic stride. Wide running second and Peltzer third. This order was kept for almost half the race, when Nurmi fell back to third and in that order they continued until the last 50 yards when Peltzer with an unexpected lightning burst of speed bounded to the front and breasted the tape a yard or so ahead of Wide.

Nurmi's trainer said after the race that the runner had not expected such opposition and had not timed himself correctly.

MULLEN PREDICTS $100,000 GATE AT BANTAM TITLE BOUT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—The 10-round bout for the world's bantamweight championship between Charley Phil Rosenberg, the New York title holder, and Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., here next Thursday night will be the first such contest Chicago has witnessed in 32 years. Away back in 1894 Jimmy Barry, now a clerk in the county building, knocked out Casper Leon, who died recently in New York.

Both Taylor and Rosenberg are completing their training here and after today's workouts both were under 120 pounds, with five days left in which to make the weight limit of 118 pounds.

Jim Mullen, the Chicago promoter, expects the contest, which will be staged in Cubs' park, to draw a gate of well above $100,000.

from Indianapolis, and who has a pair of victories to his credit, started the ball rolling for the Pirates and it kept on rolling as long as he adorned the hillock. He disappeared in the first inning, four runs being recorded before he was lifted from the game to allow Yde to serve up his left-handed stuff.

Yde got by for a couple of innings and then he, too, was shelled off the hill. Mays having a big hand in the proceedings by hitting a triple with the bases loaded. One more hit was recorded off Yde, however, before he gave way to Koupal, who lasted until the dawn of the eighth.

In that time the big Bohemian was nicked for one run, which was not earned. Songer finished and he was found for a tally, which sent the Reds' total up to ten.

While the Pirates still have a mathematical chance to finish first, few here believe they will get anywhere near the Cardinals.

HOT OFF THE BAT!

BY John E. Wray

Yes, We Have Rules.

RULES to govern the Dempsey-Tunney fight have been promulgated. Those black sheep of the altruistic boxing world, the kidney, rabbit and pivot punches, all are barred, as usual. Fighters must "break clean," quite according to the prescription laid down by the modern boxing doctors. The men must fight "with one arm free," and the gentlemanly participants will at all times break on the order of the referee.

In THEORY!

In practice it has been found that boxers, in the heat of the fray, either accidentally or with malice aforethought, violate all the rules of decorous boxing. I do not remember to have seen one heavyweight championship fight in which a strict interpretation of the rules would not have resulted in the disqualification of one or both principals.

Referees Unwilling to Act.

A REFEREE is loath to strictly interpret and enforce violations of rules that involve half a million dollars or more; nor can one blame him.

Dempsey, has, in his day, been both an offender and a victim, in the matter of rule violations. In his battle with Firpo there were several technical and one actual reason why he should have been disqualified.

The outstanding ones were concerned with his receiving aid in returning to the ring, after having been knocked out of it, and with his reported act in striking Firpo in the second round before Luis' finger tips had left the floor, as he was rising from a knockdown.

The assistance he received, after having been pushed out of the ring by Firpo might be ignored, because it is manifestly unfair to expect a man who falls head downward and backward out of the ring to regain the fighting floor in the same 10 seconds which he is allowed if he is merely knocked to the canvas.

As to striking Firpo when the Argentine was down, it is a debatable matter whether Firpo was technically ripe to be hit, under the rules. The fact seems to be that Dempsey was permitted to be illegally close to Firpo as the Argentine was rising from a knockdown, and was thus tempted to strike before it was good sportsmanship. He was within the rules.

Dempsey Not Foul Fighter.

THERE were other claims of "kidney" and "rabbit" punching made against Dempsey, but they were not admissible. A kidney punch, under ordinary boxing conditions, is not illegal. It is wrong only when, the men being clinched, one boxer uses his free hand as a mallet to beat down on the back of his opponent.

Dempsey does not hit the "rabbit" punch illegally. He strikes at the base of the enemy's neck when his opponent seeks refuge in doubling up; but the champion strikes with his knuckles and not in mallet fashion.

Dempsey is not an advantage taker. But he is a rough, tough fighter who can maul if he has to. He much prefers to stand up and trade punches; but at this game he finds no takers.

At Shelby.

AT Shelby the crowd continually yelped "Foul" at Dempsey. Dempsey did hit Gibbons on the thigh two or three times. But the masterful Gibbons himself brought this about by his unexpected evolutions in avoiding Dempsey's blows.

If an opponent wants to indulge in a clean, fair fight all he has to do with Dempsey is to stand up and swap. But probably this will not happen Sept. 23. Tunney will emulate Gibbons, and it would not be surprising if he, too, would make Jack miss and throw some wild punches by skidding around the ring in high gear.

But Dempsey's blows will not be foul unless Tunney's movements make them so. Dempsey is not a foul fighter in any sense if intention be considered. He doesn't have to be.

Colored Stuff.

WE read a great deal about Tunney the "student." The world likes to think that intelligence and erudition can dominate sheer native power.

In such instances as give intelligence a fifty-fifty break with animal strength and efficiency, intellect can swing the scales.

But before intelligence can win, the physical conditions between two contestants must be almost equal.

No amount of poetry, good taste or refinement can prevent Tunney from being knocked out if this polish hasn't plenty of real physical substance to back it up.

Gymnasium Built.

GENE TUNNEY asserts that ever since he saw Dempsey fight Carpentier he has been "building himself up for this event."

That makes a good impression, but it doesn't measure up. The ability to "build up" anything does not solely rest with the INTENTION, or even with the effort.

Nature must have built the framework for the building before anything can be done in the way of reconstruction.

Tunney has built to some purpose. He has grown; he has taken on weight, he has taken on more and better muscle. But an examination of his photos reveals one thing: That most of the muscle taken on is under the arms, in the region set aside for swimming, wrestling and kindred uses. The "teres major" plays little part in the fight game, unless wrestling happens to be injected into it. And wrestling never wins fights.

About Jim Flynn.

IT'S an old publicity stunt, this "building" up a man. In Las Vegas, N. M., when Jim Flynn and the black champion, Jack Johnson, were being prepared for their title encounter, reports were sent out that Flynn was building up from 185 to 205 pounds. Details were given of the work he went through to add bulk and power to his various body muscles.

Nothing could have been worse "bunk." At the time Flynn was a mature fighter, well into the thirties. He had previously been beaten by Johnson—knocked out in fact, so it was necessary to re-establish him in the minds of the fans by the stories of "building" him up to equality with the 200-pound black giant.

All they "built up" in Flynn's case was adipose tissue, which was just so much handicap. They might as well have let him train down fine and then wrapped 12 or 15 pounds of lead around him and sent him into the ring. His new weight became mere extra saddle bags.

Tunney is not so old as Flynn. He has lived better and cleaner. He is a better type of man in every way. But when they tell one of building Gene UP at the age of 28, they tell of something that should not be done.

The only effective thing that can be done with 28-year-old muscles is to perfect their co-ordination. Even increase in size is of doubtful value, in fighting.

The chances are that it all is mere publicity in Tunney's case. If they really are trying to "build up" Tunney they are hurting, not helping, his flyhting efficiency.

$80,000 Futurity Classic Is Won By Scapa Flow

Jockey Club Gold Cup at two miles, that was the secondary feature of the card. This time it was Espino which made the running, with Crusader just off the pace. They ran that way for a mile and a half, Altawood running third, and Nurmi and Mars, the other starters, lengths behind, and then when they set it down to a sprint—they ran the last quarter in 0:24 4-5—the son of Man o' War just came away from Espino to win as he pleased. Altawood held on well to be third. The Jockey Club Gold Cup was salve for the feeling of S. D. Riddle for the defeat in the Realization in as much as it is worth $13,300 to the winner, which included a handsome piece of plate.

The fractional times for the two miles are interesting. They were as follows: 0:25 3-5, 0:50 2-5, 1:16 3-5, 1:42 3-5, 2:09 1-5, 2:36, 3:02 4-5, 3:26.

Maiden, it should be said in passing, rode a much better race on Crusader than he did the week before.

Ruth Gets Forty-Second Home Run; Pennock Batted Out in Fourth.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 11.—[illegible] in the ninth inning, New York scored six runs, overcoming a three-run lead, and beat Detroit, 10 to 4, in the first game of their series today. Ruth's forty-second home run was one of six hits [illegible] the Yankees in the ninth. They scored two runs ahead of the rally. New York used five pitchers in winning the game, Pennock being driven from the box in the fourth inning, when Detroit scored five runs.

Fothergill improved his [illegible] leading batting average, getting three hits in as many times at bat, and Ruth crowded closer to Heilmann, runner-up in the batting averages, getting three hits in four times at bat.

INDIANS SCORE A TRIPLE PLAY, WIN 2 FROM SENATORS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11.—The Cleveland Indians took a double header from Washington, 3 to 1 and 2 to 1, here today and galloped on the leading New York Yankees. George Uhle hurled the first for the Indians and it was his twenty-fourth victory of the season. In that game the Indians drove Walter Johnson from the box and fanned and looked at three other National pitchers with success.

The second was a pitchers' duel for eight innings between Burns and Coveleskie. Burns hit his thirty-first double of the season in the sixth inning of that encounter. The game was a see-saw battle until the eighth, when the Indians scored the winning run, Speaker's two-base hit being the big factor. Roseberry replaced Coveleskie after Speaker's hit and Burns' fly scored him sent in the winning run.

The Indians made a triple play in the first game. Judge and Harris were on third and second when Tate bounced to Uhle. The Indian pitcher threw out the batter, while Harris was caught off third trying to score, Joe Sewell to Burns to Joe Sewell, and Judge was out trying to score, Joe Sewell to Luke Sewell.

George Burns made his [illegible] first double of the season, setting a new record.

Babe Disagrees With Writers in Selection Of Two Star Players

Goslin, With but Two Votes, Named Over Bob Meusel and Joe Sewell Is Selected Over Wright, Pirates' Shortstop.

By Babe Ruth.
(Copyright, 1926.)

For the past five years I have picked an all-America team, and what started as a sort of clubhouse hunch has developed into a pretty serious business.

As in previous seasons, I am thankful to a committee of baseball writers, representing each city in the two major leagues. When I first hit on the idea of a committee, the object was principally to offset any feeling that my annual selections are based entirely on my own opinion.

BABE RUTH.

The committee also gives me valuable information regarding some of the National League players I have not seen play very often. In a number of cases where a National leaguer had a strong claim on a position for which I had an American leaguer in mind, I have switched my selection.

But while the committee is of great assistance it also makes it hard, because it's hard to agree on some of the players they favor.

As mentioned in the beginning—selecting an all-America team has developed into a serious business. It's no cinch picking 10 players out of 500 and keeping everybody satisfied.

To Receive Certificates.

Every year I receive letters from fans where newspapers have conducted a contest in connection with our all-America team. These fans complain that the team contains names of one or two players put in just to "make the contest hard." Nothing is further from the truth. If there are any players included this year who don't seem to "belong" I want to say it's because I believe they absolutely deserve the job. And one of my best personal friends has been left off this year even though he got strong backing from the writers.

A very interesting development this year will be the presentation of a certificate to each member of the team. Players on pennant-winning teams will receive certificates during the World Series.

The Committee of Baseball Writers is as follows: George H. Daley, New York World; John E. Wray, St. Louis Post-Dispatch; Howard Reynolds, Boston Post; Tom Swope, Cincinnati Post; Kirk Miller, Washington (D. C.) Times; Warren W. Brown, Chicago Herald-Examiner; J. C. Isaminger, Philadelphia Inquirer; Bert Walker, Detroit Times; Joe Williams, Cleveland Press; Ralph Davis, Pittsburg Press.

Each writer selected his own team and also included many interesting and logical reasons to back his opinion. But it is most interesting to note the difference of opinion even among professional baseball writers. For example here are two teams submitted by committee members in separate cities:

Cleveland.	Position.	Detroit
Cuyler	R. F.	Heilmann
Mostil	C. F.	Manush
B. Meusel	L. F.	Fothergill
Burns	1st B.	Bottomley
Collins	2d B.	Critz
Wright	Shortstop	Wright
Bell	3d Base.	Traynor
O'Farrell	Catcher	Hargrave
Uhle	Pitcher	Pennock
Pennock	Pitcher	Uhle

Burns, Named for First Base, Best Right-Hand Hitter Today

The same difference of opinion exists among the fans. I followed the contest with a great deal of interest in the New York World, Boston Post, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Washington Times, and other papers. Fans, of course, permit friendship and local pride to affect them more than newspaper writers do. I saw where one fan sent 200 teams to the New York World contest. My criticism there would be that he was not even certain in his own mind just who does belong on the All-America.

The vote for players and positions by the Writers Committee follows:

First base—Grantham, 2; Bottomley, 2; BURNS, 5; Gehrig, 1.

Second base—HORNSBY, 4; Collins, 1; Frisch, 1; Critz, 3; Lazzeri, 1.

Shortstop—J. SEWELL, 3; Wright, 4; Hunnefield, 1; Bancroft, 1; T. Jackson, 1.

Third base—TRAYNOR, 8; Bell, 1; Lindstrom, 1.

Center field—MOSTIL, 7; Roush, 1; Simmons, 1; Manush, 1.

Right field—CUYLER, 5; Hellmann, 4; B. Meusel, 1.

CATCHER — HARGRAVE, 6; Cochrane, 1; O'Farrell, 2; Collins, 1.

Pitchers—UHLE, 6; Rhem, 2; Kremer, 1; Carl Mays, 1; PENNOCK, 8; Shocker, 1; Grove, 1.

Second Base—Hornsby.

Hornsby goes to second base for the fifth year in succession. He is the only five year man and the only player selected in 1922 to repeat in 1926. This is a record for consistency, I'd like to own.

Hornsby isn't hitting as he did before this season but .315 in 115 games—plus all the other things Hornsby has done for St. Louis this year gives him the first call with little argument. I understand Critz of Cincinnati is a fine second baseman. He is the second choice of the Writers Committee. He has done a lot to keep the Reds in the fight but even his greatest boosters can't overlook the fact that he trails Hornsby by 35 points in the batting averages.

FIRST BASE—BURNS.

At first base we find George Burns—a new name in All America circles, but an old familiar name in the list of hustling and popular players. And when I say popular, I mean with the players as well as fans.

Burns has batted as he never did before and an average of .361 finds him close to the batting championship. I think he is the best right handed hitter in the game today and Yankee pitchers consider him the hardest of all to fool in a pinch. His fielding has been wonderfully improved. Two-base hits are his specialty and he has passed the record of all time formerly held by Speaker.

Grantham of Pittsburg and Bottomley of St. Louis, are a toss up after Burns. If Bottomley and Hornsby had hit up to standard this year there just wouldn't have been any pennant battle in the National League.

THIRD BASE—TRAYNOR.

"Pie" Traynor is the white-haired boy with the Writers Committee and I agree with them. They give him eight votes for third base with only one to his nearest competitor. Traynor is just about the best third baseman in the game today. He seems to hit any kind of pitching and is a steady fielder. He is fast on the bases. Traynor's attitude toward his work is shown by the fact he is first out for daily practice and last to leave the field. He gets along with everybody and it was no surprise when they made him Captain to succeed Max Carey.

Hargrave's Work One of Reasons For Reds' Success This Season

SHORTSTOP—SEWELL.

At shortstop it seems to be neck and neck between Sewell of Cleveland and Wright of Pittsburg. The popular choice might favor Wright, but I favor Sewell. I know Wright is a fine shortstop having seen him play many games, including the last world series.

In batting, Sewell leads by 10 points, in fielding they are about even. Players on all the American League clubs rank Sewell with Burns and Uhle in explaining Cleveland's great drive for the pennant. He is the most improved shortstop in the American League and the best, I believe, in either league.

LEFT FIELD—GOSLIN.

If it hadn't been for his broken ankle Bob Meusel would get left field honors. He is a fine fielder, a dangerous batter and baseball's greatest thrower. But Goslin of Washington has played 40 games more than Meusel and bats 15 points higher. Goslin deserves first call. I think he is one of the most improved players in the major leagues. They used to call him clumsy but he's a finished player. He is the slugging type at bat but an average of .350 shows he is a consistent. Fothergill of Detroit is another player with a great batting average, but his absence from nearly 50 games spoils his claim to All-America honors.

CENTER FIELD—MOSTIL.

Johnny Mostil is one of the best outfielders that ever wore a White Sox uniform. Hitting, .335 and fielding all around the place earned him seven votes from the Writers Committee and I certainly indorse their pick. Roush, Manush and Simmons receive one vote each for this position.

RIGHT FIELD—CUYLER.

Here is a spot like the shortstop job—a close decision. Right field honors in the American League easily go to Hellmann of Detroit. Cuyler of Pittsburg is the best at that position in the National. Harry has a better batting average than his Pirate rival but in throwing and base running and general value to his club Cuyler has the edge. Cuyler has few equals in throwing. He is one of the swiftest men in the game and the best base runner in his league.

Catcher—Hargrave.

Big league ratching talent isn't as classy as in some other years but Hargrave of the Reds deserves worlds of credit for his batting, handling of pitchers and his gameness. Several attacks of appendicitis have benched him but he refused an operation as long as Cincinnati had a chance to win the pennant. He has caught nearly 100 games to date and shows a batting average of .370.

The best boost for his batting consistency is that Manager Hendricks has had him hitting number four, six or seven the entire season. Hargrave is slow but once on base he keeps going fast enough to score in front of ordinary hits. His wise catching noodle is responsible for much of Cincinnati's fine pitching.

Pitchers—Uhle and Pennock.

There has been some great pitching this year with Pennock, Uhle and Rhem running one-two-three. In votes received from the committee, Pennock divides popular honors with Traynor by getting eight out of a possible 10. Rhem receives two votes. One vote each goes to the following. Shocker, Kremer, Greve and Carl Mays.

Many fans will ask "How do you account for the absence of such pitchers as Johnson, Vance, Rommel, Coveleskie, Gray and Luque—after their fine work in 1925?" Answer that and you answer—"What keeps up interest in baseball?"

Pennock is a southpaw and Uhle right handed, the ideal pair for an All-America team. Many left handers are wild and erratic but Pennock's control is almost perfect. He is unusually smart and in the opinion of many, he has the best curve ball of any left-hander in the game.

Above all—Pennock inspires confidence in his ball club, and every time he starts, the Yankees just seem to feel the game is in the bag. I dont' mean they loaf but they play with that old winning zip that comes on days when a team knows it is right.

As for Uhle—he is the greatest comeback in baseball. Almost "through" in 1925 he is now pitching Clevelond to the very heights—if not to a pennant. I think Uhle has more stuff than he had three years ago, in his last big year. And if you doubt my word ask any American League player.

BADEN BARGE RACE TO CONCLUDE SEASON

The curtain will be drawn down on local rowing activities for the year with a barge race at the Baden Rowing Club, 9400 Riverside Drive, this afternoon.

All the local clubs have been invited to participate in this event, but most of the shells have been put away until next spring and their crews out of training. The Centrals and North Ends will join the Badens in this race, which is a half-mile up-stream for the G. A. Bauer trophy.

The program will be concluded with a dance and barbecue prepared by Otto H. Huehn.

Rodowe Abeken will be starter and Ben Phillpoon referee.

LONGWHITE, INDIAN, WINS 12-MILE RUN AT CANADIAN MEET

TORONTO, Ontario, Sept. 11.—C. Longwhite, Indian runner from Detroit, won the 12-mile run of the Canadian National Exhibition track and field meet today. His time was 1:7:54 4-5.

C. A. W. Snell of Toronto, finishing second, was beaten by the Indian with a burst of speed in the last lap. Billy Reynolds of Galt, Ontario, finished third.

Cardinals Were Favored in Many Team Positions

O'Farrell, Bell, Thevenow, Hornsby, Southworth and Rhem Ran Well.

The Consensus Team.

THE consensus team picked by the 2100 Babe Ruth All-America contestants, viewing their individual selections in the light of votes, disagrees with Ruth's in respect to four players. It also puts Cuyler in center field instead of right.

The team follows:

Burns, Cleveland, first base.
Lazerri, Yankees, second base.
Wright, Pittsburg, shortstop.
Traynor, Pittsburg, third base.
Cuyler, Pittsburg, center field.
Heilmann, Detroit, right field.
Hargrave, Cincinnati, catcher.
Pennock, Yankees, pitcher.
Uhle, Cleveland, pitcher.

George Burns, whose achievements for the year include the smashing of the two-base hit record, ran far ahead of the ticket and was the most overwhelming favorite of the entire contest. With Sisler and Bottomley suffering "off" years, Burns' only competition came from Lou Gehrig of the Yankees whose youth was against him.

The physical handicaps which overtook Rogers Hornsby in mid-season apparently scared off a large number of followers who otherwise would have named him for second base. It is worth noting, however, that the latest entries to come in, arriving at a time when Hornsby was on the upgrade and bulldogging the Cardinals to the top, gave him the preference over all others.

A Battle at Third.

In the absence of Hornsby, the majority of the fans swung over to Tony Lazerri of the Yankees. Eddie Collins was the only other competitor in a large way. Hornsby's selection is his fifth straight time on the mythical All-America club. He is the only player in baseball to have achieved this distinction.

The big surprise in the fuss over shortstop was the strength with which the contestants rallied behind Tom Thevenow, Cardinal player, whose low batting average was offset in the minds of his admirers by his great defensive work, quick thinking and timely hitting. Wright, however, ran well ahead of Thevenow with Joe Sewell, Ruth's choice, a good third, and Travis Jackson of the Giants fourth.

At third it was a battle between Pie Traynor and Lester Bell, the lead changing from week to week. No one else had a look-in. Toward the close Traynor forged ahead and won by a safe margin.

Fothergill, Cuyler and Heilmann were the public's choice in the outfield. Of these Cuyler polled the biggest vote. Goslin finished fourth with Roush, Mostil, Falk, Southworth, Meusel and E. Rice all enjoying popularity.

They Liked Old Bob.

O'Farrell ran a surprising race against Hargrave of Cincinnati. Again the power of the bat swung the balance and Hargrave finished ahead of the reliable Cardinal by a one-third majority.

Pennock and Uhle were top-heavy favorites with the fans and will be popular choices on the all-star team. Others who ran well were Rhem, Meadows, Shocker, Kremer, Grove, Mays, Root and Donohue.

Altogether, more than 200 major league players received mention in the selections offered by the fans.

IOWA WILL PLAY ILLINI AT HOMECOMING OCT. 16

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
URBANA, Ill., Sept. 11.—It will be master against pupil when the University of Illinois football team meets the Iowa State University eleven in the Illinois Stadium Oct. 16 in the opening conference game here. Robert C. Zuppke, famous Illini coach, and Burt A. Ingwersen, former Illinois star and tackle and pupil of "Zup," but now coach at Iowa, will match wits against each other.

Ingwersen is a graduate of Illinois and during his collegiate career he won nine varsity letters, participating in football, basketball and baseball.

The Iowa game has been selected for the annual Homecoming football attraction.

Iowa has eight veterans back from the machine which defeated "Red" Grange and mates last year, 12-10, and that means that Zuppke will have his hands full trying to start the Big Ten campaign with a victory.

HITCHINGS REALIZES THE "GOLFER'S DREAM"

A. H. Hitchings, a member of the Glen Echo Golf Club, returned from his vacation with the "golfer's dream" realized. Hitchings made a hole in one at the Wequetonsing Golf Club at Wequetonsing, Mich., on the 144-yard hole No. 15.

Hitchings was accompanied by H. H. Evans, Joseph S. McIntyre, both of St. Louis, and Frank Dyche of Chicago.

This is the first time this feat has been accomplished on this golf course.

HELEN'S BABE WINS CLOSING FEATURE AT LINCOLN FIELDS TRACK

ROTHERMEL IS SECOND IN A CLOSE FINISH

30,000 Attend Closing Day Program—H. P. Headley's Horses Win Four Stakes During the Meeting.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LINCOLN FIELD, Ill., Sept. 11.—One of the best received and most successful inaugural meetings ever attempted n this country came to a conclusion this afternoon when Lincoln Fields rang down its curtain for the 1926 season. About 30,000 fans witnessed the closing day program.

The Steger Handicap, at one mile, which provided a meritorious feature for the closing day's racing was productive of a rattling good contest and rousing finish that found H. P. Headley's three-year-old filly, Helen's Babe, a victress by a short neck over J. N. Camden's four-year-old filly, Rothermel. The latter was coupled with Devon. Six lengths back of Rothermel, the Idle Hour Farm's Beneficent took third money. Thistlewood was fourth, Chicago fifth, Smiling Gus sixth and Devon a very distant last. The winner negotiated the distance in 1:37 4-5, very fast time in view of the fact that the track was not at its best. She earned for her owner $5340.

A Record for Headley.

In winning today Helen's Babe established a record for the Headley stable enabling the Lexington breeder and owner to carry off all of the four stakes for 3-year-olds and upward offered at the meeting. Helen's Babe had scored previously in the Dixie handicap while Supremus, another horse in the Headley barn, had accounted for both the Crete and Lincoln handicaps. The latter the richest stake decided at the meeting. In today's stake Helen's Babe shouldered top weight of 116 pounds and conceded eight pounds to Rothermel, regarded as her strongest competitors in the race. The speculation centered largely around Helen's Babe and the Camden entry with the latter having a slight call for popular favor at post time.

The victory of Helen's Babe was achieved largely by the splendid ride put up by L. Pichon, who displayed splendid horsemanship. He got the winner away well in motion but dropped her back behind Rothermel and allowed that filly to go out and set the pace. He kept his mount in striking distance of the leader, however, and made his move at the psychological moment.

A Stirring Finish.

This came after the field swung into the home stretch, where Pichon unlimbered on Helen's Babe and the latter gradually cut down Rothermell's lead of a length and catching her at the sixteenth pole beat her to the finish in a stirring drive.

Thistlewood showed some speed but subsided in the stretch. The other three were outpaced all the way.

The weather for the final day's racing was made to order and a generous-sized crowd that taxed the plant turned out to bid adieu to the horse. The track was in better condition than it had been for the past 10 days.

Beau of West Wins Hamilton Cup Handicap

Hijo Races to Place, Beaten by Length After Furious Drive.

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 11.—A Beau of the West upheld the reputation of the Canadian-owned Seagram stable when he accounted for the closing day's feature, the Hamilton Cup handicap, which brought out five of the best long-distance performers to go over the mile and one-quarter route. Edisto, the champion handicap horse of that establishment, was withdrawn, thus leaving the burden of the province-bred son of Calgary-Belle Mahone to sport their colors. Hijo, coupled with Wheatstick as the Ross entry, was the one to race to the place beaten out after a furious drive by a length and one-quarter. A length further back came P. F. Joyce's Harry D. J. Baker. Wheatstick finished fourth and Norseland, winner of the Labor day handicap, last.

Hijo, from a good start, went into the lead, with Harry Baker's Beau of the West. Wheatstick and Norseland following in the order named. The latter being far back rounding the turn for home. Beau of the West was sent up on the outside and matched strides with the Ross starter for a furlong, he gradually forged to the front and taking the lead a furlong out was winner under a drive. Harry Baker encountered early interference and weakened to some extent. When the real issue came Wheatstick was close up at all stages but was never able to menace the leaders when set down.

BRYAN DOWNEY IS ORDERED AWAY FROM GENE TUNNEY'S CAMP

Challenger's Manager Alarmed at "Butting" Of Former Champion

Billy Gibson Unwilling to Take Chance of Accident to His Principal at This Late Date—Has Several Narrow Escapes in First Workouts.

By Robert Edgren.
(Copyright, 1926.)

STROUDSBURG, Sept.11.—Gene Tunney may not worry about hurting his hands or getting cut lips. He may like to have his sparring partners pound him where he's been cut and bruised before, to make him more alert in avoiding Dempsey's blows. But Billy Gibson can't see the sense of risking the challenger's end by having Tunney crippled.

Last Thursday Gibson arrived in the pace in a long finish fight. camp just in time to see Bryan Downey go two rounds with Tunney. Returning in the hotel after the training bout Gibson called a henchman and said: "Get that fellow Downey out of here as quick as you can. Get him away. I don't want him here at all."

Downey happened to be walking up behind Gibson at the moment and he heard what Bill said. Half a minute later he was going out the door, grip in hand.

It was given out that evening that Bryan wanted too much money. But this is the low down of it! The real trouble was Downey's head. Through the two rounds Downey rushed at Tunney, swinging both hands like a windmill. That part was all right. But every time they came together, which was often, Downey went in head first and brought the top of his head up sharply under Tunney's chin. Sometimes Bryan jumped a little and gave the old bean a wiggle.

Downey Inclined to "Butt."

That may be his way of fighting in the ring, Bat Nelson stuff. Several times Tunney had to throw his head back to avoid a collision that might have meant a split eyebrow or a broken nose or a cut lip and he did take a few bumps on the chin that weren't softened by any boxing glove or padded headgear. Bill Gibson, who was standing right beside me, jumped nervously every time Downey's head brushed Gene's whiskers I knew Downey was through as a sparring partner.

There is all the difference in the world between the training of champions in Jeffries' time and today. Jeff used to go off into the mountains, far away from crowds, where he could work and not be bothered with questions and stared at by critical visitors. Often he dodged even the "war correspondents" by getting out on the road at 4 o'clock and doing his boxing before breakfast. When he wanted to crowd a lot of work in without being watched he took a rifle, announced that he was going out for a deer, and left camp at a pace that no one else could follow.

Jeff Tramped the Mountains.

Sometimes Jeff didn't come back for three days and then waltzed into camp with a 200-pound buck over his shoulders. Not that it took him three days to get a buck. He spent his time covering tremendous distances over the mountains to toughen his legs and perfect his wind and shot a deer on the way in. Jeffries wasn't afraid of becoming overtrained and he never was overtrained.

Other first-class fighters trained as hard, although in different ways. Corbett hardly eased up in a month and a half of steady grinding away to get into fighting trim. The second time he fought Jeffries that last month and a half was just the sprint at the finish of several months of hard work and the fight he put up against the gigantic bollermaker for 23 rounds showed that he knew his stuff.

Bob Fitzsimmons couldn't get too much work in preparing for a fight and had his hardest workout a couple of days before the event.

It was nothing unusual for the champions of former days to box 16 rounds a day. Some even put themselves through a 20-round "try out" to see if they could hold

HORNSBY'S ARTISTRY

A recent league game was protested because the uniforms worn by the players were not alike. Is that good ground for protest?—A. T. F.

Hardly to be considered so. The remedy is to have players removed from the game if the uniforms are not alike. As a matter of fact this uniform matter is strictly big league requirement.

Is home plate in fair ground or foul ground?—M. P. B.

All of home plate is in fair ground. Look at the diagram in the baseball guide.

Sparta Held To 3-3 Score By Brooklyn

European Tourists Play Rough Game—Spectators Riot.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The Sparta A. C. of Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, displaying a mediocre brand of soccer, could do no better than tie the Brooklyn Wanderers, three goals each, at Ebbetts Field this afternoon. About 7000 spectators, most of whom were strong supporters for the recently imported Jewish stars of the Hakoah organization which toured the country last spring, witnessed today's game.

At intervals the visitors flashed pretty pass work, but they seemed to rely on their aggressiveness to net the ball. Hajny tallied first after 17 minutes, but Brooklyn equalized five minutes later through a fine effort by Konrad. Hajny again put his team in the lead five minutes before the interval, but Burness drew level two minutes before the close and Silny gave Sparta the lea with a peculiar goal just before the teams crossed over. Within three yards of the goal he pushed the ball in with the side of his foot.

Twelve minutes after the start, Nelson headed the last goal of the game and immediately after this the referee sent Perner to the showers for rough play. While the Sparta players were endeavoring to persuade the arbiter to allow their teammate to continue in the game a small sized riot took place, in which Nat Agar, owner of the Brooklyn team, took a leading part.

Lineup:

Brooklyn (3)	Positions.	Sparta (3)
Smith	Goal	Kaliba
Robertson	Right fullback	Perner
McMillan	Left fullback	Steiner
Drucker	Right halfback	Kolenaty
O'Brien	Center halfback	Cravn
Morris	Left halfback	Herverny
Neufeld	Outside right	Malown
Konrad	Inside right	Polacek
Schonfeld	Center forward	Silny

Joe Cunningham, linesman; Jim Cunningham, C Creighton, referees.

Substitutions: Brooklyn — Jose for McMillan, McManus for O'Brien, Nelson for Sconfeld.

Score at half time: Sparta, 3; Brooklyn, 2.

Goals scored for Sparta: Sajny (2), Silny. Goals scored for Brooklyn: Konrad, Burness and Nelson.

Jack Dempsey, Near Turning Point of Training, Worn and Tired Looking Leonard Finds Lighweight Champion Thinks Heavyweight King Bigger Than Ever Before and Lacking in "Pep"—Thinks Jack Will Round To in a Few Days.

By Benny Leonard,
Undefeated Lightweight Champion of the World
(Copyright, United States and Great Britain, 1926.)

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 11.—The first impression I got of Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, in training to defend his title against Gene Tunney in Philadelphia on Sept. 23 was one of his immensity, Dempsey looks much bigger to me than he did the last time I saw him stripped for ring action, and he is bigger. I know, because I've had him on the scales, and he is many pounds heavier than he ever scaled at this stage before a fight.

After studying Jack and boxing with him, I have come to the conclusion that the world's heavyweight champion is rounding up to the turning point of his training. From now on I expect to see a sudden improvement in Dempsey in every way.

When I watched him for the first time the other day, he looked a bit worn, tired and appeared to lack "pep." I viewed him from a point of vantage alongside the ring, where he was good enough to place me, but while I watched him closely I couldn't help but hear some of the remarks of the experts among the spectators. They were complaining that Jack looked slow, even tired; that is to be expected. I've been through this training grind and I know what it is. As a matter of fact, the first thing Jack said to me after we exchanged greetings was: "Well, Benny, I'm back at the old grind."

Dempsey Near "Turning Point."

Training is real hard work. The hardest part of a contest, as a matter of fact—that's why I call it the "grind."

I know that Dempsey, who is a fighter through and through, is coming to the turning point, so far as training goes, he'll wake one of these mornings light of foot, fast of arm, keen of eye and chock full of the old pep and energy. He'll lose that tired look and worn expression and you'll see a fast, perfect, fighting machine in action.

This coupled with the fact that Dempsey is a much bigger man than he was in the old fighting days, explains why he looks slow to some of those who are used to looking at Jack with eyes of yore.

Dempsey's Arms Heavy.

Dempsey's arms will lighten up when he gets to the turning point, and he'll hit faster. The fact that Dempsey's arms are heavier is one of the reasons why he doesn't hit so often now as he used to.

Dempsey is clever and tricky in his own way. He has a style all his own. His cleverness and trickiness lie in his weaving and bobbing of his head and shifting of which so much has been written.

He comes in forcing his opponent all the time, head bent low, weaving and shifting. To the onlooker it appears that his one aim is to hit—that he's not watching the other fellow's punch. But all the time while he is forging in, he's watching sharply out of the corner of his eye, watching his opponent's arms. The reason Dempsey bobs his head is because his opponent is punching at it and he bobs to escape the blows.

When Dempsey shifts, he doesn't shift all the way around, with a long sweep like Stanley Ketchell used to do. He shifts short. About a third of the way around, thon bang, he pops over from the other side, just wait till he reaches that turning point, and his arms will be like a couple of piston rods in action.

I plan to tell you about my boxing with Dempsey in my article which will be published Monday or Tuesday. I will stick here with Dempsey until next Thursday. We may have a few surprises for you.

Benny Leonard

Will tell you all about the condition, training and chances of both Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, from day to day in the Post-Dispatch.

As a former champion himself, Leonard's views should prove of exceptional value.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—Elizabeth Ryan of Santa Monica added two titles to her long string of tennis honors today. She won the Middle States singles championships and then, paired with Mrs. George W. Wightman, Brookline, Mass., she captured the doubles title.

Miss Ryan won the singles honor by defeating Mrs. Wightman in the final round of the tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, 6—3, 6—2. In the doubles, Miss Ryan and Mrs. Wightman defeated Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, New York, and Miss Edith Sigourney, Boston, 7—5, 6—0.

Mrs. Wightman, who years ago as Miss Hazel Hotchkiss, won the women's national championship, played a splendid game in the singles, but was not quite able to cope with Miss Ryan's tricky slice, her powerful driving or her all-court covering.

While the singles finalists were fighting it out, Mrs. Mallory and Miss Sigourney eliminated in the semifinal round of the doubles Mrs. A. H. Chapin Jr., Springfield, Mass., and Miss Penelope Anderson, Richmond, Va., 6—1, 6—1.

Closer competition was expected in the final of the doubles. Mrs. Mallory and Miss Sigourney gave their opponents a hard battle in the first set, but were defeated with ease in the second, Mrs. Mallory showing signs of fatigue, while Miss Ryan appeared to have boundless energy.

Y. M. H. A. GRIDDERS TO OPEN PRACTICE TODAY

Most of the regulars of last year's Y. M. H. A. football team will be present today when Coach Cook opens practice, which has been called for 9 o'clock at Junior High campus.

The one regular who will be missed is I. Sarason, 1925 captain and halfback, who has been drafted by the Laclede Gas in the Muny baseball elimination finals. If the Lacledes win and play out of town, the "Y" will be minus his services.

Cook will have Gamm, 190-pound fullback and 1926 captain, who won his spurs in the Interscholastic League; Kessler, Sachar and Horwitz in the backfield. Games have been scheduled with the Scott Field Aviators, Jefferson Barracks and the K. of C. of Springfield, Ill. The Y. M. H. A. manager may be reached at the Jewish Center, Union and Enright.

ST. LOUIS FIGHT FANS PLAN TO TAKE SPECIAL TRAIN OUT OF CHICAGO

Efforts to arrange a Dempsey-Tunney fight special out of St. Louis thus far have not been successful. Phil Campbell, a Chicago fight promoter who has arranged specials to several title events in the past, yesterday wired St. Louis friends to sound out the sentiment here, intending to arrange a special out of the Mound City direct to the fight.

Campbell advised friends here that he had tentative arrangements with a railroad for a special from here to Chicago, where it could be hooked on to the Morrison Special from the Windy City to Philadelphia.

Campbell, at the request of the Post-Dispatch, furnished the following details of the proposed trip of which St. Louisans may take advantage. Campbell writes:

"Our special, all drawing room and compartment cars, leaves Chicago at 4 p. m., Sept. 22, and arrives in Philadelphia Sept. 23 at noon, next day. Passengers bunk on the train during the entire trip and will sojourn two days at Atlantic City and New York before returning on Sept. 25. I am supplying the tickets which are all ringside and are now the only ones obtainable in the West, as Rickard has called in all tickets outstanding. Fans can make the round trip from Chicago for $150, with one ringside seat included."

Campbell, who is engineering the plan, can be reached at Hotel Morrison, Room 1139, Chicago.

BILL TILDEN, INJURED, DEFEATED BY LA COSTE IN DAVIS CUP FINAL

BUT U. S. WINS FROM FRANCE IN SERIES, 4 TO 1

"Big Bill," Trying to Make Clean Sweep for America, Twists Knee Reaching for Hard Shot.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—The 1926 Davis Cup challenge round came to a dramatic close today with the defeat of William T. Tilden, American champion, for the first time in six years of singles competition for tht world's championship tennis trophy.

Rene La Coste, the solemn-faced 23-year-old French stylist, accomplished the downfall of "Big Bill" in four stirring sets as the American, handicapped by a badly twisted left knee, fought a game, but losing battle.

A crowd of close to 9000 wildly cheering tennis fans urged Tilden on as he fought against the combined odds of his own injury and La Coste's brilliant attack after twisting his knee in a fall near tne end of the third set. For a time it seemed tha the tall champion, in spite of all obstacles, would stage one of his characteristically triumphant finishes. He did get within a point of winning the fourth set and later staved off defeat in several critical moments but La Coste's unfailing steadiness in the pinches pulled him through to victory.

Johnston Defeats Borotra.

Tilden's sensational defeat came after "little Bill" Johnston had registered America's fourth victory by vanquishing the "bounding basque," Jean Borotra, in another match that was hard and tensely fought, even though decided in straight sets by scores of 8-6, 6-4, 9-7.

Although neither match had any bearing on the outcome of the challenge round, which was decided yesterday by America's triumph over rance in the doubles, today's encounters furnished the greatest thrills of the series. Whether it was because of improvement in the rench attack, relieved of the strain of cup seeking, or whether it was due to a letdown on the part of the Americans, both contests developed duels of such stirring character that they contrasted sharply with the decisive reverses met by the French in the first three matches.

America's final margin was convincing enough, four victories to one for France, but the French lifted an unexpected, even though belated portion of glory in the closing battles.

Accident Is Turning Point.

While Tilden's injury unquestionably upset the American's game and played a big part in his defeat, little credit can be taken away from La Coste, who came back after a slow start to fight the American champion to a standstill in a match that was contested almost entirely from backcourt. "Big Bill's" accident, however, was the turning point, coming as it did in the midst of a terrific duel and at a time when they were deadlocked in sets at one-all and in games at 6-all.

Two questionable line decisions cost Tilden the critical thirteenth game o fthe third set after he had led at 40-15. The last one brought the count to duece and it was in a stab for La Coste's cross-court shot near the line that the American fell heavily to the turf. He not only was badly shaken by the tumble, but his knee, which has given him trouble before, seemed so badly twisted that it was a painful effort for him to take his serving position again.

A double-fault and a wild return cost Tilden the game and he lost the set in spite of a gallant effort in which he twice held off La Coste, with the latter needing only a single point for victory.

With the crowd now cheering his every winning shot, Tilden made his last stand in the fourth set. Trailing at 2-3, then 2-4, he warded off impending defeat with a flashing rally that carried him through three games victoriously and later to within a point of winning the set in the twelfth game. The effort affected his control, however, and La Coste rallied to square the count once more.

La Coste Remarkably Speedy.

Tilden carried both of the last two games to deuce but yielded to La Coste's brilliant court covering, his superior steadiness and control. Match point was called twice in the last game before La Coste sliced a passing shadow in the allaye for the deciding point with Tilden on the ground from another fall in his effort at recovery.

Johnston's victory over Borotra in a nip and tuck struggle was decided by a hard driving attack, coupled withfrequent sorties to the net that enabled the American to beat back the basque's more spectacular efforts. They fought tooth and nail for every point in protracted exchanges, but while Borotra flashed sparkling rallies that carried him to the lead in ecah set, he was beaten back by Johnston's indominatable defense. The basque was within a point of taking the first set, led at 4-3 in the second, also at 4-3 and 6-5 in the last, but each time he was unable to sustain his attacks in the face of "Little Bill's" gritty And winning comebacks.

Suzanne's Temperament Is an Asset To Her in Tennis, Says Helen Wills

Arguers and Foolers Make No Progress After Certain Point, She Warns Young Players.

By Helen Wills.

Copyright, 1926.

THERE are many things which go to make tennis a more difficult game to learn than it should be. An unfortunate temperament is one thing which stands in the way of some beginners. Some young players are not hindered by temperament at all, others go forward to a certain point, and then their games stand still.

Among the junior players of every club there are usually one or two who are afflicted with an unfortunate tennis temperament.

I've seen them on the courts. First comes an argument over a point, then slammed balls, an attitude of "Oh, I don't care about your old shots," and then haughty indifference. These are the "arguers."

About the "Foolers."

Then there's another sort who will never learn the game. They are the "foolers." Their court is pandemonium, and their loud conversation and exclamations ring out over the whole club.

There is another kind of unfortunate tennis temperament that doesn't quite belong to the two classes I've already mentioned. There are some very good players who are affected by it. It usually shows itself in match play and has its origin in the nervousness brought on by the strain of competition. A player makes a poor shot, becomes angry with himself, and can't do his game justice for the rest of the match, just because of irritation. This can be overcome, I know, for one of my tennis acquaintances has so controlled it that it hardly ever appears any more.

I know that it is rather dangerous to claim that I know what makes up an "ideal" state of anything, but I think that I do, or almost do, when it comes to tennis temperament.

I am going to pick out the points in several players' games which I believe to be the most impressive and the most valuable.

Mrs. Mallory's Courage.

The new national champion, Mrs. Franklin Mallory, has just finished impressing upon tennis followers that she is a wonderful sportswoman. Coming up from behind, with the score at a stage where it would have discouraged almost any other player, she conquered an opponent who had been conceded, by nearly everyone, to be the better player.

HELEN WILLS.

Coolness, Confidence and Level Headedness of Star Performer in Tournaments Cited.

Determination is another factor which lifts the mechanical side of Mrs. Mallory's play to a higher level.

I imagine there will be some who will think that my choice of Mlle. Lenglen is not a good one, for the impression is general that she is a very nervous player on the court, that it is merely the mechanical perfection of her strokes which carries her through, and that she usually plays under great mental strain.

I think, on the contrary, that Mlle. Lenglen is a great match player, and that she has, in actual match play, many of the qualities which are indispensable to the ideal tennis temperament.

Cool and Level Headed.

Her greatest asset in match play is her ability to think in a cool and level-headed fashion. She is calculating and confident as well. One is impressed by her serenity of purpose. It is covered up by her natural vivacity, yet it is there, a cool, smooth stream.

Experience and confidence go hand in hand in tennis. They should grow, together, along with the game of the beginner. They are small and shy qualities, at first, with every player, when he is learning the rudiments of tennis. Then they grow gradually, until they are linked, in the end, inseparably with the thoroughly developed game. They have a chance to develop in the everyday tennis at home, of course, and need the routine of daily play, but where they have the greatest chance for rapid and strong growth is in the environment of actual tournament competition.

THE HUNTING - - CALL - -

By ALEC MERMOD

AS PREDICTED, the heavy rains have made dove shooting rather uncertain, though the gunners lucky enough to hit the right spot have had no trouble in getting the limit.

The writer, with Webster Tilton, paid a visit to Highland on the opening day, and were guests of Sam Jenny.

At "Round Pond," which is a famous stand for doves, we had a most enjoyable half day, with the birds coming across a large pasture in twos and threes, with every once in a while a flock of a dozen or more. They came in just often enough to keep us on edge, and they flew fast enough to make the shooting real sport.

We were not located near enough to the pond for any hovering shots, and every bird was going as fast as green-wing teal, and you may be sure that every shot did not stop a bird. Had this been the case our limit would have been reached before we had any sport.

He Gets the Range.

Mr. Tilton was shooting his new 20-gauge over and under gun for the first time, also it was his first experience at dove shooting, and for awhile he wasn't burdened with a heavy bag. However, after he had fired a box of shells he began to score and killed his share of the birds.

Mr. Jenny, besides being a splendid field shot, ranks among the best at the traps, and is now the amateur champion of North America, having won the title at the Grand American Tournament held at Dayton, O. Mr. Jenny deserved to win this event, for his score was 199x200. Ninety-nine and a half per cent is a good score, even in these days of good shooting.

A few blue wing have made their appearance and some of the enthusiastic and optimistic gunners are trying to make themselves believe that we will have an early flight of blue wing.

Since the ban was placed on spring shooting, a great many ducks have taken advantage of conditions and have set up housekeeping near by and have raised nice families.

Popular Theory Wrong.

The popular theory concerning the migration of duck is that they do not leave the North until driven out by cold weather. However, this idea is not borne out by facts. For instance, the flight following the eastern slope of the Rockies starts early, and by the opening day Texas gunners have good shooting.

In Colorado excellent sport is to be had early in September. Greenwing teal are the first to come in, then the much-despised spoonbill, mallard and widgeon next. Very few blue wing show up in Colorado, neither have I seen many bluebill.

The yellow-leg, plover, once so plentiful in this part of the country, is almost a thing of the past.

This splendid bird of many names, among which is golden plover, upland plover, grass plover and in the South "Poppa Botte," used to arrive here about the middle of August, and we had very good shooting for a short time.

As a table bird the plover ranks with the jack snipe, although the flavor is quite different. This bird fattened rapidly when he can get the desired food.

Two Ways of Bagging.

There is still some plover shooting to be had in Western Kansas and Northern Texas.

There are two ways of bagging this wary bird. One is to select a likely looking spot where the birds have been "using" and establish a small grass blind. Plant your decoys out about 30 feet beyond the blind.

If you are an expert caller, so much the better, but unless you can imitate the call perfectly, better let it alone.

Another way to get within range of this plover is by the use of a team and wagon. As soon as you have spotted a bunch, drive to within a hundred yards, then get out and walk behind the wagon, having your driver approach in a quartering manner. In this way it is possible to get close enough for a fair shot. Hold yourself in readiness to jump out from behind the wagon at the first sign of flight.

Walking behind the wagon is much better than riding, for when the birds take wing they are out of range before the team can be stopped and you steady yourself for a shot.

Amateur Training.

We are starting a series of articles that we believe will be of interest to those who wish to train their own dogs.

We will endeavor to make these articles plain and concise so that any one who loves dogs and will exercise a little patience can train his dog if he will follow instructions.

As to the breed, we leave that to your own individual taste or desire, will only say that, as a rule, the pointer is more easily started in field work and shows the pointing instinct at an earlier age than the setter.

Choose a puppy from known hunting stock without paying too much attention to pedigree.

Choose a short name of one syllable such as Pat, Dan, etc.

Call him by name and give him a pat or a small piece of food and he will soon know what is wanted, and will come to you immediately when his name is called.

A puppy should be fed regularly and give this food to him yourself so that he will connect your presence with something to eat.

A certain amount of meat is absolutely necessary, and a bone once in a while should be given him, but do not give him any chicken bones, as they are apt to splinter and a piece lodge in his throat.

Puppies are like children in that they want to play, so see to it that he has plenty of yard room where he can run freely. The companionship of another puppy or grown dog is desirable.

Outside of teaching the puppy to come to you at the call of his name, do not attempt to start his training until he is two or three months old, and you have his full confidence.

Do not abuse or frighten him at any time.

Drewes Faces Josties Today at Forest Park

Old Rivals Meet in Municipal Tennis Semi-final.

By Davison Obear.

Theodore R. Drewes and Fred O. Josties will meet in the remaining semi-final match of the St. Louis District tennis championship at the Triple A Club this afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock. The winner will gain the right to play Wray Brown for the championship later in the week. Drewes is the present district champion.

Drewes and Josties have not met in a singles match in several seasons. While Drewes owns a majority of victories over Josties the two players nearly always produce a hard-fought battle which usually goes the limit of five sets. Both players appear to be in excellent condition and some interesting tennis is expected. Close observation of their playing in previous matches during the past week indicates that Josties is a slight favorite to win today's contest.

Play in the men's doubles is now in the semi-final round. Two good matches are on the schedule for this afternoon. Richard Rosebrough and Proctor Wright, holder of the Arkansas and Kansas State doubles titles, will oppose Joseph Smith and Herbert Weinstock in the first of the semi-final round contests. The other will bring together Drewes and Serrano, the present district champions, and Fred Josties and Teddy Eggman.

Brown and Stuckman Lose.

The most outstanding upset of the district tournament took place yesterday in a third rond doubles match. Rosebrough and Wright defeated Wray Brown and Forrest Stuckman in a three-set battle. Brown and Stuckman were seeded No. 2 in the doubles draw. The Kirkwood Country Club team took the first set from Brown and Stuckman, 6—3, but lost the second, 6—4. In the third set Rosebrough and Wright ran up a lead of 5 to 3, only to have Brown and Stuckman even the count. Rosebrough and Wright played brilliantly to win two straight games, taking th ethird set, 7—5, and the match.

Wray Brown appeared somewhat erratic yesterday in his semi-final singles match with Jose Smith, district junior champion.

Yesterday's Results.

Men's Singles.

Fourth round—Fred Josties defeated William Bierman, 6—1, 6—1; Theodore Drewes defeated Edmund Serrano, 6—4, 5—7, 6—2.

Semifinal round—Wray Brown defeated Joseph Smith, 8—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Men's Doubles.

Third round—Richard Rosebrough and Proctor Wright defeated Wray Brown and Forrest Stuckman, 6—3, 4—6, 7—5; Theodore Drewes and Edmund Serrano defeated Dr. W. M. Levite and Vernon Tietjen, 7—5, 6—0; Fred Josties and Teddy Eggmann defeated Karl Kammann and Joseph Werner, 6—4, 5—7, 6—2; Joseph Smith and Herbert Weipstock defeated Karl Hodge and Elmer Schwarz, 6—3, 7—9, 8—6.

MERGE, OR NOT TO MERGE?
THE A-B-Cs OF PROBLEM BEFORE CITY AND COUNTY

Details of Project, Soon to Be Voted on in St. Louis, Explained in Simple Terms for Information of Citizens.

GREATER ST. LOUIS?

We shall see, Oct. 26.

On that day, the city of St. Louis and St. Louis County, acting as separate units, will vote on the proposal for merger of city and county under the present municipal form of government.

If a majority of the city votes cast on the proposal are "Yes" votes, and a majority of the county votes are also "Yes," the plan will carry. If either city or county gives a majority against the proposal, it will fail. Should it lose in the county by one vote, it would fail, though the city carried it by 50,000 votes.

If county and city both vote for the merger, what is now St. Louis County will be formed into added wards, six in number, of the City of St. Louis. The city school system, police and fire protection will be extended to include them.

St. Louis would then have as its boundaries the Mississippi, Missouri and Meramec Rivers, the Franklin and Jefferson County lines. It would have an area larger than that of any other American city. It would have the legal power to control the development of new home and business districts in accordance with modern city-planning principles. The problems ahead would be big ones, but they are problems that must be met anyway. Advocates of the merger believe a unified city government can deal with them better, and with fewer mistakes, than the present governments of the county and a dozen separate small municipalities.

Haphazard Growth, or City Planning.

If the county and the city, or either of them, should defeat the merger, St. Louis will have to remain within the limits fixed 50 years ago, which for the last quarter-century have hobbled and hampered the city in its industrial and residential growth. It will continue to be deprived, in the census returns, of population supported by the city's business, and rightfully belonging to the city. Worse, it will have to look on helplessly while the districts adjoining it, which some day and somehow will be part of the city, are developed in haphazard way, without central plan.

And the county, in that case, would continue to be a loose group of communities, developing at cross-purposes or by chance, and dependent upon makeshift and outgrown systems of education and of public welfare and safety.

In 1780, Third street was the western boundary of St. Louis, with a stockade to keep out the Indians.

In 1808, the town of St. Louis was incorporated, with the limits corresponding roughly to Broadway, Chouteau and Franklin avenues.

In 1811 and 1822, new extensions took the line west to Seventh street. In 1841 Eighteenth street was reached. In 1855 the lines went south to Keokuk street and west almost to Grand avenue. In 1870 and 1872 Grand avenue was crossed. And in the separation of city from county in 1876, Forest Park, Carondelet and Baden came in. A city with an area of 61 square miles was established.

And today, 50 years later, the city's area is still 61 square miles, 39,040 acres. The population, which has grown from 340,000 to 825,000, would be 1,000,000 but for that which has overflowed into other parts of the metropolitan district surrounding the city. That which has crossed into the State of Illinois cannot be reclaimed, but the county-city merger would add, with the growth of the next four years, 125,000, by the time the 1930 census is taken. The 1920 census showed the county's population as 100,737, and that of the city as 772,897.

Not Merely a Population Matter.

But the advocates of the merger say the chief aim is not census showing. Consolidation is being advocated today, not as a million-population matter, but as a business, engineering and public welfare proposition.

The only expression of St. Louis County voters on the matter has been the vote cast, at the 1924 presidential election, on the constitutional amendment providing for creation of the Board of Freeholders, created to determine upon a plan of union for the county and city. The vote in the county was 30,285 for this proposal, and 11,852 against it.

The Board of Freeholders was formed of nine city and nine county members. The county members, who were designated by county officers, proposed a plan by which the city should re-enter St. Louis County, and which should preserve the county's present political organization. The city members determined on the plan for a merger under municipal government. A third alternative was to keep the city and county governments as at present, but to let the city add territory on its immediate border. This plan was objectionable, as it would have taken piecemeal from the county its best revenue-producing districts.

So the merger plan was finally put forth, one county member voting for it; and thus avoiding a deadlock which would have rendered a year's work fruitless.

Taxation Plan, Graduated Scale.

The merger plan provides that the entire territory now embraced in city and county shall become one legal subdivision, governed under the present city charter. The jurisdiction of municipal officers, the Mayor and Comptroller, and of such officers as Sheriff, Coroner and Assessor, shall extend over the whole city. With the present county offices abolished, all municipal corporations of the county shall cease to exist, and the county territory shall be organized, under charter provisions, into six wards, to be represented in the Board of Aldermen by persons residing in those wards, but nominated and elected by citywide vote. State senatorial and representative districts remain as at present.

For taxation purposes, the enlarged city shall have the right of a county in levying a separate county tax rate. Tax rates for city purposes in the present county

Personalities of Three Governors Now Looming Up for Presidential Nomination

Besides "Al" Smith of New York, There Are Ritchie of Maryland and Donahey of Ohio, Each Differing From the Others in Training, Methods and Views, but All Having Shown Unusual Ability as Executives of Their States — Donahey's Grammar and Ritchie's "Silk Stocking" Background.

By CHARLES MICHELSON.

(Copyright, 1926.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.

AL SMITH, Bert Ritchie, Vic Donahey—three Democratic Governors, all hoping to be called to the supreme post of public service by virtue of achievements in administration, party expediency or geographical availability—are men not to be ignored in the campaign for the Democratic nomination for President.

The popularization of their names is in itself the best evidence of their status, for, except in speeches and editorials nobody ever heard of "Alfred E.," "Albert C" or "A. Victor" in referring to these three Governors.

Differing in personality, origin, education and environment, there is a serious parallel in their progress that nearly brackets them in any estimate of the political situation.

Each has proved himself stronger politically than his own party in his State by his ability to continue in the chief office of that State as long as he pleases, regardless of the general political situation. New York and Ohio are normally reckoned as Republican commonwealths, but Smith and Donahey prevailed through all the party cataclysms of their time except the Harding tidal wave of 1920. Ritchie even rode his out, but Maryland is naturally a Republican state and Ritchie barely got through, while Smith lost, though he ran a million votes ahead of his ticket, and Donahey did fairly well, though it was his first attempt at a big office. Each has satisfied the Democrats of his constituency so well that the nomination of any opposition candidate for the governorship is counted a forlorn hope at best.

All Three Declined Senate Nominations

The lines run parallel even further than that for each has been tempted to take a nomination to the United States Senate, with a practical certainty of election, and each has turned it down, and for the same reason: That the governorship affords a better stepping stone to the presidency than a senatorship.

A Governor need not worry about farm relief, World Court, debt settlement, Muscle Shoals and a thousand other issues, but a Senator has to face the guns or dodge, and the latter expedient is likely to have a farther reaching consequence to the candidate for the presidency than a positive stand either way. Yet numbers of Congressmen feel forced to seek the bomb proofs on such questions, as was evidenced when 150 members of the House of Representatives fled to the cloak rooms rather than vote aye or nay on allowing an additional $2,600,000 for prohibition enforcement, and when the introduction of the Reed resolution to investigate the primary and election expenses this year started an exodus from the Senate chamber, led by Watson of Indiana, as precipitate as if a smoking bomb had been cast on the floor.

Yet it was no light thing to run away from a senatorial nomination where three additional seats probably mean the difference between Democratic majority or minority in the new Senate.

So much for the similarity in the situations of three; otherwise they are as far apart as the Poles, though each is typical of his environment. Smith, the fishmonger's apprentice, coming up through the mire of as tough a political regime as ever existed to loot, without a speck of mud adhering to him; issuing poor from offices that marked the steps of his progress, that had made millionaires of previous incumbents; gathering culture as he rose, learning not only administrative efficiency and political acumen, but the more intangible assets of social contact; redeeming his organization, holding fast the friends of his beginnings and knitting closely the later affiliations, broadening with his constantly augmenting opportunities until he holds the Empire State in the hollow of his thick and hairy hand—he could only be produced in New York.

Ritchie's Background Of Colonial Ancestry

Ritchie, scion of the old aristocracy, with an ancestral background of jurists and Governors, coming to politics from an environment of fashionable clubs, and looking the part, fits into the state and dignity of the gubernatorial manor house at Annapolis like a revolutionary portrait in a Colonial frame. Virginia born and Maryland bred, bachelor of arts and bachelor of law, is natural approach to political eminence was through the legal departments of his State. A successful attorney before his public service began, he was equally successful when the State was his client. When he tilted with and conquered the public utilities corporations and cut down the price of gas it was prophesied that this treason to those of his own order would end his political career. Instead it made him Governor in the Harding year, and Governor he has been ever since, and is going to be again, and so on indefinitely unless fate, which has a way of dealing kindly with Ritchie, gives him the presidential nomination in 1928, which will be in the second year of his third term as the chief executive of Maryland.

They have a four-year term in that state and precedent prescribes that a Governor shall not succeed himself. Ritchie was the first to break that custom, which had its origin in the feeling that the governorship was something to be passed around among the great families in succession. It isn't the only precedent he has smashed, for the descendant of the Cabells is no dilettante in politics. He may not have been through all the grades as has Smith, and he may do his stuff somewhat less obviously than does Donahey, but neither of them plays the game any harder or more successfully than he.

Strong Advocate of State's Rights

Like his brother Governors, Ritchie had the Legislature on his hands a lot. Smith maneuvers his around to where, though of a hostile party complexion, they have to adopt his measures or get in bad with the people. Donahey takes the simple expedient of vetoing pretty much everything, but Ritchie talked economy and got the Constitution changed so that the Maryland Legislature gets together only once in four years, which is not only a saving to the Commonwealth, but equally a saving of the gubernatorial nerves. Another of his stunts was putting through a provision for the election of all State officers at the time the Legislature meets so that the plague and expense of frequent elections are avoided. When the Legislature does come together he invariably has a program that keeps it too busy to let it get into mischief. This system enabled him to combat the plan of having Maryland enact legislation to make the Volstead act effective and that was economy, for otherwise she would have had to repeal it, as New York did her enforcement law.

State rights is Ritchie's Shibboleth, that first gave him a reputation beyond the Maryland line. That is a pretty good watchword in the South and has its part in the hypothesis on which his hopes for national preference is based. The theory of the process by which he may obtain the nomination is simple.

Maryland in the Madison Square Garden convention stuck to Ritchie all through. McAdoo breathed fire at Ritchie for not turning his delegation over to him; the Smith people were cross that Maryland did not join their movement; but neither was as indignant as if she had gone to the other fellow, and Ritchie knows that he must draw from both if he is going to get anywhere either in 1928 or four, eight or even 12 years hence. He is only 50 now. Smith and Donahey are about that same age.

Out among the silos in Ohio they resent calling Governor Victor Donahey the "Al Smith of the West" because they regard the original as tainted with Tammany Hall and a votary of the rum demon. They admit that the New York Governor has something of the Donahey capacity of getting votes, but that is only to be expected in a community that has sold itself to the devil, that works hand in glove with Wall Street, and when not engaged in its nightly carouses is thinking up schemes for the further exploitation of the honest Western farmer, the backbone of the country's prosperity and the only force that is keeping the lamp of virtue burning in a decadent age.

Donahey's Lack of Polish an Asset

Some others out there style Donahey "the Coolidge of Democracy," but these are friends of neither Coolidge nor Donahey, and mean by the title to sneer at their Governor's strenuous economies. President Coolidge cut off the paper drinking cup at the White House in order to save, until reminded that the health laws of the District of Columbia frowned on the community drinking glass, but Gov. Donahey cut off a quarter, or it might have been a dime, from the expense bill of a traveling official who had charged that much more on a meal than the bill of fare of the hotel, which Mr. Donahey had been careful enough to inspect, gave as the price of lamb chops. Middle West economy asks no odds of New England thrift. There is no other common trait to give pertinence to the Coolidge comparison, for, while the President is retiring, small of stature and mild of voice, with an attention to the niceties of speech that is almost pedantic, the Westerner is a whale of a fellow, tall, and comfortably stomached, bull-voiced and no more regardless of such affectations and voidance of split infinities and double negatives than any of his oatstraw chewing constituents.

It has always been a question in Ohio as to how much of its Governor's slaughter of the English language was native and how

BAY STATE IS FIRST TO MAKE EVERY AUTO OWNER GET LIABILITY INSURANCE

No One May Drive a Car in Massachusetts After Next Jan. 1 Until He Guarantees Financial Responsibility Up to $5000.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 11.

SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND owners of automobiles in Massachusetts will have to pay $18,000,000 for insurance when applying for their 1927 registrations, under the new State compulsory liability insurance law, which goes into effect Jan. 1. Under this law all motor car owners must now carry personal liability insurance as a protection to the public in case anyone is injured in an automobile accident. This is one of the most sweeping and drastic compulsory insurance laws ever enacted and the first general law of this nature ever passed and administered by any Government.

Although the new rates under the law, established by Insurance Commissioner Wesley B. Monk, are from 20 to 25 per cent lower than present company charges on voluntary insurance in the Boston metropolitan district, the cost will be enormous, due to the fact that every motor car owner, as well as every motor cycle owner, must take out insurance in the amount of at least $5000. Previous to enactment of this law, insurance covering a motorist's personal liability for accident to others caused by his machine was purely voluntary and was confined to the owners who believed in playing safe rather than having their property tied up in a damage suit. Those who had no property naturally did not insure, for there was no way to collect damages if awarded, so they could escape execution of a judgment or verdict. Their cars never were worth enough to cover the average damage award.

Now, however, even the owner of a car which may not have lost him more than $25 will have to carry liability insurance. This insurance covers only personal liability. If owners want to be covered also for property damage, including the car with which they may be in collision, they must take out another policy. The insurance coverage under the law also is only within the state. Additional coverage outside may be taken if desired at a small additional cost.

No Fleet Insurance.

No fleet insurance is permissible under the law. Taxicabs, trucks and delivery cars owned by large concerns in quantities must be insured separately. The cost of insurance ranges from $18 to $29 for small cars up to $45 for large cars.

As the Insurance Commissioner has said, scientific accuracy and complete fairness in determining the rates are impossible with the data so far gathered. Under the most successful working of the statute, careful driving would be promoted and in subsequent years the rates would be lowered. But if this compulsory insurance promotes carelessness, as insurance sometimes does, the rates may have to be raised until this tendency can be checked.

No installment payments of premiums are permitted. Payments must be in cash in full, for the present at least, since the companies are not yet prepared to accept part payments. This is one of the questions to be threshed out at a meeting of insurance company representatives with the commissioner and registrar of motor vehicles, Frank A. Goodwin.

A complete table of rates would require two or three columns of figures. Private passenger cars are assigned to classification groups reflecting the hazard as determined by such factors as list price, size, power and controllability. All cars of the same make do not necessarily fall within the same classification group, owing to the variety of models manufactured. In these groups, the trade name of the car is included.

Three "Territories" in State.

The State is divided into three territories, the first including Boston proper and 16 towns immediately surrounding it, comprising the metropolitan district. The second group includes Boston suburban cities and towns, specified by name, and certain other cities and towns in other parts of the state, each of these subgroups comprising another metropolitan area, with a large city in the center, such as Springfield. All the rest of the state is comprised in territory three.

Passenger cars are also classified into gasoline with four wheels, electrics, motorcycles with two wheels and those with more than two wheels, or side car motorcycles. Commercial cars are classified into heavy, medium and light. There is a rate for dock trucks, for farmers' trucks, for hearses and another for farm tractors and motor lawnmowers.

Further classification is provided also for private livery, public livery public automobiles, driverless cars, busses, taxicabs, demonstrators and driveaway cars. The busses are divided as to passenger capacity into three groups, from seven-passenger to 20-passenger busses.

Present insurance carried by car owners will be useless so far as getting registration is concerned, after midnight, Dec. 31. An owner cannot obtain registration unless he can produce a personal liability policy for the car, or a certificate from an insurance company that he has been so insured with that company and the policy is in effect as of the date of the certificate. His present insurance will not be valueless, however. He can carry it as an extra expense if he desires, or obtain commutation of premiums he has paid on it beyond Jan. 1, 1927.

Insurance a Prerequisite.

Car owners will get their applications for number plates from the insurance company or insurance broker henceforth, and not from the Registrar of Motor Vehicles. The application will have a stub attached—a certificate of insurance—which will be filled out by the insurance agent and signed by him. Unless this certificate accompanies the application, the applicant will not receive his number plates. Companies will pro-rate unexpired voluntary insurance running beyond Jan. 1 and apply an equal amount on the new policy which goes into effect with the application for number plates.

If an insurance company refuses to insure a car because a policy previously held under voluntary insurance, has been canceled after numerous accidents, the car owner may notify the Insurance Commissioner in writing. The commissioner will notify a newly-established board, known as the Board of Appeals on Motor Vehicle Liability Policies and Bonds. A hearing will be given, and if the board finds in favor of the car owner, the company to which he applied will be compelled to insure him. If the board finds against the applicant, he cannot operate a car in Massachusetts.

Coverage, under the law, is only within the State. Additional coverage beyond the State boundary may be obtained for $2 additional.

Not a Compensation Act.

This new law is in no way a compensation act. It does not mean that everyone injured on the highway will receive damages, or that the dependents of persons killed will receive money. It merely compels the owner of an

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To Abolish War.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

JUSTICE laughs at the irrational attempts of men to restore peace by methods which do not remove the cause of war. In your Sunday paper one F. E. Kaufman suggests an irrational trinity, League of Nations, Congress of Bankers, and Council of Churches as a potent instrument for the promotion of peace.

As none of these stands for the removal of the causes of war they can do nothing to restore or even promote peace. Trade is the greatest civilizing force in the world and the removal of all restrictions to trade will do more to restore the peace of the world in 30 days than the above trinity can accomplish in a thousand years.

Abolish the tariff and every other form of taxation and collect for public purposes the full rental value of land. This, and nothing else, will promote and permanently restore peace on earth.

A Mother's Views on Prohibition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE been reading your most valuable paper the two years now that I am in St. Louis. I have been reading the Letters From the People. Recently the writers have discussed "Prohibition." I would like to say this: I am a Christian. I believe when one really has salvation they will strive to live so close to the Master every day that folks can tell as soon as they see them that they are Christians. Now if all the folks who have their names enrolled on a church book will live up to God's Holy Word, there would be no need of trying to thrust "prohibition" on folks. Those who make and sell intoxicants of any kind would quit of their own accord. I believe in temperance with all my heart, but prohibition isn't temperance. A man might be forced to prohibition and never be temperate. I have boys, and I would a thousand times rather have a licensed saloon where I could take my boys and show them that saloon and tell them what it was and how sinful and dangerous it was to go there, than to have 10,000 unknown liquor joints and secret hell holes that I couldn't see to show them.

ANXIOUS.

Peace or Annihilation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A RECENT newspaper item states: "That the Germans are the only people in Europe who really like us. It would appear that with nations as with men, nothing cements later friendship like a fight, and that the best way to lose friends is to lend them money or help them in a pinch."

This is startling if true. But before we vouch for the veracity of the statement, let us take into consideration the predominant characteristic of the German nation, namely, ambition. The German is ambitious, therefore, he probably feels it is no more than right to admire the progress we have made and are making. But so far as considering him a weakling who cowers at every reminder of our military prowess in the late war, I for one cannot do so. The author of this item evidently does not realize that a far greater battle is raging than ever prevailed with the clash of arms. It is the diminution of the earth's natural supplies. Oil is scarce as well as sundry other things; and while the optimistic would have us believe that science will be able to cope with the situation, can science do this without international peace and co-operation? If chemists have to give their time to the making of deadly gases, how can they seek substitutes for oil and the other things gradually diminishing?

MARIE G. EWING.

Effective Treatment of Prisoners.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A LARGE number of people, among them many good citizens who no doubt on many subjects know as much or more than I do, have the idea that in order to reduce crime, prisoners should be harshly treated, some say they should be whipped, etc. But in all humility I might say that, having studied this question very thoroughly for the best interest of the public, I am convinced that that is not the method of getting good results. There would be no difficulty to find wardens and keepers who would be willing to ill-treat prisoners, and we are fortunate in having Warden Lawes of Sing Sing and other good wardens who give fair treatment to the prisoners and get the best results in that way.

One of the most essential points is that those in charge of the prisoners should be of absolute honesty. Imagine the bad results if the underworld and the big criminals knew that with a large amount of money or political influence they could evade punishment entirely, no matter how badly the other people in prison are treated. On the other hand, Mr. Lawes' statement that he only lost two prisoners in the seven years of his administration and that about 70 per cent of the first offenders go straight is very satisfactory.

ADOLPH LEWISOHN.

REED FOR REPEAL.

Senator James A. Reed of Missouri has set a courageous example for opponents of prohibition. He says we must repeal the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution, and casts aside utterly the usual political sophistry of stopping somewhere short of that.

In doing this the Senator has rendered a valuable service. The country needs courageous leadership out of the mess into which it has maneuvered itself, and until it gets such leadership no progress whatever can be made. It will probably be found that the American people are disposed to welcome something better than the customary equivocation. They are as weary of political hypocrites as politicians themselves are weary of playing that unhappy role.

The eighteenth amendment can be undone only in the way it was made. It must be repealed through the same agencies which confirmed it. That is a long way back—at best a roundabout and dismaying process. Nevertheless, it is the way we must go. It is not merely that the country does not respect the Volstead law. This unfortunate piece of legislation has brought the whole structure of law into contempt. The conviction that this is so has grown greatly within the last two years. It will continue to grow.

Senator Reed thinks the retreat from prohibition will be only part of a general retreat from centralized government. He thinks the states are competent to handle the liquor issue, and he imagines that when we have summed up centralized government in all its relations we will restore sovereignty to the states. Nothing has been taken away from them that we cannot restore.

This proposes as to prohibition that some other plan be substituted for the present plan. The Post-Dispatch has hope of that proposal. It has no patience with any scheme by which we are asked to abate prohibition without knowing what we are to have in its place. The people want temperance. They have no notion of making any concession to license, not to speak of abandoning the field to liquor dealers.

Senator Reed is for the Quebec plan. That is to put the State in the liquor business and sell liquor under severe restrictions. Very well. If we first get rid of the eighteenth amendment and if the states want the Quebec plan, it is theirs to adopt. If some of them want the kind of prohibition we have now, with its open hypocrisy, they can at least inflict it upon themselves without thrusting it upon people who do not want to live such a life.

The Senator thinks we should have a national vote upon the question. There is no constitutional provision for such popular expression, but people who wanted us to vote upon the League of Nations in this way pointed out at the time that there is nothing in the Constitution to say that it cannot be done. It may be possible to join in agreement to abide by such a referendum.

Certainly this would be a democratic way in which to go about it. Nor is it impossible that such an agreement can be reached. Whether wet or dry, we all have the welfare of the country at heart, and if that motive remains unmixed we can settle the liquor issue. Until we do settle it there can be no cessation of the opposition to it, nor can politics hope to escape being plagued by it.

THE EMBATTLED LADY ASTOR.

With all deference to the lovely, charming and able Lady Astor, we beg leave to make this criticism of her speech in New York before the League of Women Voters: It draws the sex line to a point hardly this side of the absurd.

We do not think there is any sense in Lady Astor's intense profeminism and antimasculinism. A visitor from Mars who should chance to come upon her speech would get the impression that the men and women of the earth are engaged in fierce and deadly rivalry. That is not true. That is a species of Pankhurstism which has been outgrown, even by most of the Pankhurstites.

When Lady Astor cites the woman in Rhode Island who ate several men under the table in a clam-eating contest, thus proving the superiority of feminine digestive ability, she is of course simply employing a bit of post-prandial persiflage. It would not be worth mentioning were it not for the fact that this remark, coupled with others, illustrates Lady Astor's combative attitude against men in general on behalf of women in general.

Such an attitude implies that women think and act as a sex unit, whereas they do nothing of the kind. As a whole, and the results of woman suffrage bear this out abundantly, women married and related to Democrats vote the Democratic ticket; women married and related to Republicans vote the Republican ticket, and so on. In the United States the feminine vote is not cast as a bloc, and never will be. It has been absorbed and its effect, as political analysts have been pointing out since 1920, except here and there, has not been felt as a separate and unified force.

Again making a bow to Lady Astor, there is no general sex line in American politics and there is no general sex line in British politics. Nor will there ever be such a distortion of human nature. Lady Astor is carrying on a war of her own imagination and improvisation.

THAT FRABJOUS DAY.

Mrs. Clemington Corson is being feted in New York as "the first mother to swim the Channel." Gertrude Ederle was the first girl of 19 to do so. Vierkoetter was the first German to swim the Channel. George Michel was the first Parisian baker to turn the trick. What we are looking forward to is that glorious day when it will be announced that So-and-So is the first notary public to swim from Gris-Nez to Dover.

HELPING MACEDONIA.

When the Apostle Paul wrote of "A voice from Macedonia, 'Come over and help us,'" it was with regard to Christian missionary work. But for many hundreds of years after that Macedonia, plagued with a conglomeration of varied races and religions, might have cried for help, which, under the circumstances, could never come. Up till recently, as the encyclopedia states, it has been inhabited by "a turbulent, heterogenous population of Turks, Greeks, Bulgarians, Serbians, Wallachians, Albanians and Jews." That condition has produced wars. The Balkan wars of 1912-1913 were waged largely for the possession of Macedonia and the access to the sea it would afford.

But, due to the work of the League of Nations, Macedonia's troubles are, for some time to come, ended. Among the most valuable of the labors of the League has been that of arranging for the exchange of alien populations of these Balkan countries. Macedonia, which was assigned to Greece after the World War, has acquired an increase of nearly a million more Greeks to her population, brought by the League agents from Turkey and elsewhere. And due to this exchange of nationalities, it is said that Macedonia, heretofore desolate and barren, has become productive and flourishing. Good work.

THE HOUSE OF HISTORY.

Her Majesty, the Queen, went down to Sandringham and the villagers about whispered among themselves: "She's come to clean house, she has." But historians shook their heads. One does not startle birds in ancient ivy with a flapping pillowcase, nor disturb the gathered dust of rich old years with a feather duster. Sandringham wears its faded Victorian coat like a decrepit gentleman sitting in the sunshine, whose scars long since healed ache when the wind blows across the green. It is a patient palace, troubled with memories. Every draft about the staircase is a sigh, every creaking door a little moaning sound. Still, said the wise ones, the Queen had come to clean house.

Sandringham had sheltered until lately another Queen, who until the end wrote her name Alexandra, Regina, refusing to believe the Court Gazette, which referred to her as "the Queen Mother." Thus stoutly did Sandringham defy the changing times. There were in Alexandra's latter reign two rooms in the palace the doors of which were kept locked. One had belonged to King Edward VII, and in this room on the bureau lay a handful of gold coins where he had carelessly tossed them and had need of them no more. Could the royal housecleaner tidy up this room? Memories of three decades have lived there unmolested, and are honored tenants.

Mayhap her Majesty—and the papers say she did—opened the other locked door. This room had not been occupied since Albert Victor, first son of Edward and Alexandra, died. When Queen Mary was the Princess of Teck she had been betrothed to Albert Victor. Prince George succeeded him as heir apparent and 18 months later Princess Mary forgot her grief and married her fiance's brother. Now she is Queen Empress. Come back for a bit of royal housewifery?

Those crusty, matter-of-fact historians say no. They will record merely that in the month of August the Queen went down to Sandringham to visit. The housecleaning was a journalistic myth. There are some houses so gloriously littered they never can be tidied. Romance holds no broom in her gentle hands.

JEFFERSON REDIVIVUS.

Albert J. Nock's new book on Thomas Jefferson is the latest of a small avalanche of recent studies of the third President of the United States. Of all our Presidents Thomas Jefferson made the greatest contribution to our political philosophy. Jefferson died 100 years ago, but he is being more widely discussed today than McKinley, Cleveland, Harding and even Roosevelt. He is so far from being dead that he is still the subject of controversy, and of sharp literary clashes.

Claude Bowers eulogized Jefferson in his brilliant volume, "Jefferson and Hamilton." Beveridge belittled him in his four-volume life of John Marshall. Even two Englishmen have recently entered the fray—F. W. Hirst with the "Life and Letters of Thomas Jefferson" and F. S. Oliver with the "Life of Alexander Hamilton." Nock's book is more of a critical analysis than a biography. It pictures Jefferson as a man of supreme ability and a statesman whose sympathies were with the people who produce and against the people who exploit.

The writing of many books about Jefferson indicates that what he stood for has a relation to present-day problems. That is true. The steady march toward Federal empire recalls the warning words of Jefferson against too much government. The encroachments upon personal liberty recall his words that "affectionate concern for the liberty of my fellow citizens will cease but with life to animate my breast." Official scorn for and violation of the Bill of Rights brings to mind how Jefferson fought to incorporate them in the Constitution. Attacks upon the freedom of the press, the orgy of religious intolerance now rampant, the tyrannous conduct of Judges—all these find their answer in Jeffersonianism.

Jefferson walks the earth because we have forgotten the great and wise lessons he taught us a hundred years ago. We have abandoned the path he blazed, the path of enlightened democracy. We are in trouble and need help. We are digging up what he had to say about the problems which confront us because the realization is at hand that he was right about them. The cry today is "Back to Jefferson!" In the present slough of democracy, Jefferson is a pillar of cloud by day, a pillar of fire by night.

We hope Bonsetter Reese will be capable of the distinction that while there may be something the matter with Rogers Hornsby's spine there is nothing wrong with his backbone.

THE FARMER AND THE TARIFF.

Senator Norris says the trouble with the farmer is that he has to sell on one side of the tariff wall and buy on the other.

Very well. Why does he have the tariff wall? It is a structure made possible by his co-operation with the protective party.

Senator Norris also says farmers are too numerous and scattered to organize intensely as the industrialists do. That is true, but the farmers can organize if and when they will. Let us say that in the presidential campaign of 1924, when the farmers began with a great show of opposition to the Republicans and wound up with utter desertion of their own presidential ticket, they had voted the Democratic ticket. They would very likely have placed the Democratic party in power, and it would have substituted for the present Fordney tariff something approximating the former Underwood tariff.

They had in their hands a remedy for their affliction, and they refused to use it.

The trouble with the farmers is not what Senator Norris says it is. They are wedded to a party which exploits them. Why don't they get out of it?

A Chicago man has presented the city with an aquarium costing more than $2,000,000, which is the sort of thing our St. Louis rich men leave the taxpayers to do.

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

"The way I view the matter," said Mr. Antwine, "provision should be made in the Municipal Auditorium for one free day a week, on which people may express their opinion on any subject from free love to the color scheme of the Milwaukee Railroad's coaches.

"The Declaration of Independence says something about life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Some people are so constituted that they are not living and cannot be said to pursue happiness unless they have the liberty to tell an audience what they think, assuming or hoping that they think. Of course, if a man has definite political opinions, he can get himself elected to Congress and air his notions at great length and some extra pages in the Congressional Record. The people have gone to considerable expense to erect auditoriums in Washington and the various state capitals, where men labeled Democrats and Republicans may debate the difference between tweedledum and tweedle-dee until their tongues weary. Yet countless Patrick Henrys must fret away their lives simply for lack of a hall and an audience. Take the question of bobbed hair. Congress will never debate that, yet it is a more important issue than the tariff. Can St. Louis win a pennant, and if so, why? There is a burning question beside which prohibition is as cold and lifeless as the moon. Give the pros and antis Sunday afternoon in the Municipal Auditorium. Of course, the arguments will make no practical difference to anybody, but they will enable the orators to declaim to an audience, which is all the orators want. Let no subject and no speech be barred; let them damn anybody or anything. An audience is not a mob; in place of marching on to Washington at the behest of some anarchist, the audience would probably consider whether to take a bus or a street car on the way home. And the speaker does not want them to march to Washington; it's too far, and the weather is not suitable; he merely wants to say that.

"My plan, I believe, would rid America of about half its troublesome societies. If the cranks could spout freely, they would not have to organize. The dues saved would amount to enough to pay our annual liquor bill or something like that. Again, it would assure some real oratory in our legislatures. If my scheme were adopted, the political parties soon would be sending scouts around to corral the interesting talkers. Getting them to join a political party would be easy—all they want to do is talk. Finally, it would enable us serious-minded people to hear an earnest discussion of 'Should bachelors board or eat in restaurants?' or some equally weighty question, once in a while. This would be the death blow to the sneers of the intelligentsia."

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

ENGLAND'S SURPLUS POPULATION.

From the New York Herald-Tribune.

"WANTED—Girls as shepherdesses." This call for aid has just been broadcast in Great Britain by the Australian and New Zealand Governments. It is made clear, however, that Dresden shepherdesses with beribboned crooks and picturesque costumes are not wanted. There will be no opportunity to play at farming, as the members of the French court once played in search for a new thrill. Young women recruited will have to undergo a preliminary course of three months and must be prepared to perform hard manual labor. On arrival in Australasia the shepherdesses will be placed on various sheep farms where are short of help. The experiment is part of the general movement to get the surplus population out of England. Years ago Carlyle advocated placing this surplus population on battleships and unloading it in the dominions overseas. Great Britain realizes, however, that to drop a Cockney cabinet-maker into the Australian back-blocks as a prospective farmer does not work. The right material must be chosen and given preliminary training.

VANISHING WAR SCARS.

From the Congregationalist.

FROM a city of the United States comes a story that is well worth retelling. A German, a man who had fought in the World War in the German army, died in this country without friends and without money. Hearing of this, the American legion post in the neighborhood, recalling the honor paid Quentin Roosevelt by the foe who buried him, took charge of the funeral, services of this German soldier and gave his body a decent and honorable burial. At the same time as the account of this splendid act, there come reports of the German attitude toward America. While our former allies revile us, Germany is going out of her way to praise the United States. Germans read American books, buy American magazines, attend American movies, heap everything that is American with unbounded approval. Of course much of this appreciation of the United States comes from a realization that our prosperity makes us the dominating nation, but it is worthy of note that the same phenomenon which makes our former friends writhe with jealousy makes our former enemy applaud and imitate us. The Germans see this country as the great hope of such as can immigrate to it, and as an aid and guide to those who have to remain at home. The wounds of war are being healed.

THE PHILIPPINE PLEBISCITE.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

SHALL there be a plebiscite in the Philippine Islands to make clear the sentiment of the Filipinos about "independence"? At last this has become a question which President Coolidge must answer with full personal and official responsibility. The clash between Governor-General Leonard Wood and the elected lawmakers at Manila has reached a climax. They passed the plebiscite bill. He vetoed it. They have passed it over his veto. Under existing law the issue goes to the President for decision. Some of us have shrewdly suspect that the chief executive would have been better satisfied if he could have avoided passing on it.

Personalities of Governors Considered for Presidency

much deliberately undertaken for political effect. Getting down to the level of an audience is nothing out of the repertory of the average politician, but most of them save their verbal homeliness for homely hearers. Not so A. Victor Donahey. He talks to the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce just the same as he does to a hog-raising congregation in the southern river counties and, while he sets the teeth of such as Newton Baker on edge, horrifies the editorial sense of James M. Cox and doubtless shocks the conventional and always sedate Atlee Pomerene, it is Donahey who runs Ohio Democratic politics and not the ex-Secretary of War, nor the ex-candidate for President, nor the ex-Senator.

Flag-Waving Orator, and Also a "Dry."

He seems strange timber for the presidency, but Donahey has a philosophy of his own. His system was good enough to make him State Auditor, effective enough to raise him to the Governor's chair and keep him there apparently for as long as the job suits him, and would probably have been adequate to make him United States Senator had the presidential bug not bitten him and told him that the Governorship was a better vantage point to take off from than the Senatorship.

There are more Hill Billies than highbrows in the United States, and it is not surprising that he should reason that a method good enough to put him at the head of one state ought to be valued to promote him in the headship of all the states. Big Tim Sullivan used to say that he could represent this district in Congress better than Daniel Webster, and Donahey has the same idea. Donahey has been accused of patterning after Senator Frank Willis, whom he somewhat resembles in build. Like Willis, he is a flag-waving, eagle-screaming orator, with certain limitations, of course, for the Senator is a graduate of Ohio University and has been a professor of history and of law, while Donahey went from school to a print shop, and from the print shop into politics directly. Like Willis, he is a devout prohibitionist and his proudest boast is that he never has been in New York City, in which latter distinction he scores one on his model.

He has all the middle class and Middle Western virtues, including a flock of children, of whom he makes such constant use in his campaign literature and illustrated newspaper pages that they are referred to as "Donahey's daily dozen."

It is not to be deduced from this rough picture of an unusual character in high office that he is an awkward clown pitchforked into eminence and power by accident. Donahey had a harder row to hoe to get to the top than either Smith or Ritchie.

He had no Tammany Hall behind him to carry him along until his genius made him bigger than his mentor; he had no high-nosed ancestry to favor him in the natural destiny of one of the caste. He was just Vic Donahey, the printer who got from the political machine just what he could seize and hold. Moreover, he has had wit enough to be so successful a Governor that he has been twice elected to office in a Republican state, and nobody doubts that he will make it three times and this not by grace of the party machines, for he specializes in flouting the regular leaders and building up a strictly Donahey machine. He carries nobody with him. He has a Republican Legislature, whose acts he vetoes with fascinating regularity, and state wide applause. No great acts of statesmanship mark his regime, but Ohio has gotten along under him just as well as any of the states.

Ohio an Important State in Elections.

Ask any of the national political leaders for the explanation of his hold on his people and they will branch off on a list of the reasons why it should not be so. It isn't easy to explain. Perhaps his lapses in grammar have a good deal to do with it, together with the rest of his provincial characteristics. He was a cheese-paring auditor and he never failed to advertise every penny he cut off an expense bill and that gave him a reputation for meticulous care for the public's interests, in the back blocks and clinched the view that he was an honest steward. He may not be the greatest Governor of his time, but among the Waltons, Smalls and McCrays of recent history he looms up mighty high.

It is inevitable that the presidential notion should cross his mind and linger there. The man who can carry Ohio is always a presidential possibility. It gave Harding the office, it made Cox the Democratic candidate against him; it is at the base of the interest in Pomerene's come-back campaign for the Senatorship today. Naturally Ohio produces more candidates for the place than all the rest of the states put together. List them right now, Donahey, Pomerene, Cox and Baker, Willis, Longworth—even Senator Fess—is reported to be sitting up and taking notice.

Donahey's title to hope for the Democratic presidential nomination is even simpler than that of Ritchie. It is more important to carry Ohio than it is New York. He has demonstrated that he can do this for the Democratic party. McAdoo and Smith will kill each other off as they did two years ago, but in much less time and inevitably the party, if it hopes for success, must turn to Ohio.

He is neither pro-klan nor anti-klan. The sheeted order was for him in one election but turned on him when he vetoed their bill to enforce the reading of the Bible in the schools. It doesn't seem to make any difference. Donahey simply goes along being "Honest Vic," the protector of the well being of the plain people, and they go along electing him. "Small-town stuff," comment the New Yorkers, but it means as much in Middle West politics as all the reorganization plans, $100,000,000 bond issues, grade crossing amendments, budget laws and income tax revisions that Al Smith has been able to force his hostile Legislature to come through with and that have made him a great Governor, do in New York.

We never have had a man of his type in the White House, but it does not follow that we never will have. Ohio used to specialize in Governors of learning, dignity and poise. One or two of them landed in the White House ultimately, but it is not on record that the wisest and greatest of them suited Ohio any better than does Donahey. We have had several men of his general makeup in the Senate, some of much smaller caliber, so it does not do to take the attitude, which, by the way, is rather frequent in the upper circles of Ohio politics, that Donahey is impossible and that his friends are doing him an injury by talking of him in connection with the presidency.

McAdoo Whittling at Smith's Strength.

Of course, Smith, Ritchie and Donahey are not the whole cast of the Democratic situation, or anything like it but they happen to form a Governors' group and are really the favorite sons, rather than the men who are given the vote of their State for a complimentary ballot or two and are never heard of again in a convention.

McAdoo isn't a favorite son of either description, but despite the constant reiteration by other fellows that he has lost his following he will probably come to the convention in 1928 as well fixed as anybody with delegates, unless it be Al Smith, who may have gained none but certainly has lost none since 1924. Because Smith is now the leading candidate they are sniping at him from every angle.

Caraway announces that he can never be nominated. Heflin joins in. He is made the issue of a campaign in Alabama and a Senator and Governor gain nominations by declaring that the opposition is plotting to deliver the State to the New Yorker. That anybody should take seriously that this super-dry and super-Klan State could be so delivered tells the story of the advance since the South was threatening party disruption at Madison Square Garden.

McAdoo's agents are working all over the country, but nobody makes a campaign issue of it. If he wins any State the local candidates will climb on the McAdoo bandwagon; if he fails they will be with whoever gets the delegation, even if it is Al Smith.

The South and West will continue to try to whittle down Smith's strength and will not care much what name is invoked to make the whittling easier. It will be for McAdoo, for Ritchie, for Donahey, for Pomerene, if Pomerene can beat Willis in November and, failing these, it will encourage the states to vote for their own Governor or Senator, which brings into the picture Joe Robinson of Arkansas, Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Carter Glass of Virginia and a host of others. It may be remembered that Delaware voted stubbornly for ex-Senator Saulsbury in New York and Colorado cast its ballots for Governor Sweet, whom it is now abusing because he insists on running for the Senatorship instead of getting out of the way of somebody who can beat the Republican Senator Rice Means.

McAdoo has sensed this situation as it applies to himself. He thinks that had he campaigned in these states instead of trying to anchor the gratitude of the local celebretity by abstaining from fighting him for the delegates, he would have got all of them and Alabama to boot. It is not impossible that his diagnosis is correct for he had a lot of headway then—more than he has now for the political personages who dread another Smith-McAdoo collision are no less bent on heading off the Westerner than the Easterner, and they will save up their defenses this time; and that expedient of political strategy lies a good deal of the hope of Ritchie and Donahey, whose chances will better only as the prospects of the two main contenders grow less.

Smith has the advantage of being the most advertised of the candidates, but he has been too busy at home to get around much and the most intense curiosity about him is evident throughout the country. The Western papers describe him according to their sympathy with or antipathy for his candidacy. They are prone to dwell on his Tammany affiliations, leaving it to be inferred that this means association with all that is reprehensible in politics. A lot of Westerners have the idea that he talks like a vaudeville presentation of an East Sider, usually has his feet physically on the Governor's desk and hyperbolically on the terrorized population of that State.

New York, of course, knows him as he is—an educated man with a couple of college degrees, a student of civics problems and the hardest working public servant they can remember. They know of his 20 years' training in the Legislature and in municipal office. He has any number of political foes, but fewer personal enemies than any man in public life. In all his career the only personal feud that is remembered of him is that with William Randolph Hearst; that was a years-long combat, the final act of which was Smith's telling Charlie Murphy that he had to choose between him and the publisher, and forcing the latter's withdrawal from the convention at which he was to have been renominated for Senator when Smith was renominated for Governor.

MERGER QUESTION BEFORE CITY AND COUNTY EXPLAINED

ty territory shall be graduated, and the rate for city purposes on farm land shall be not more than one-half the total rate.

Police provisions are that, until the Legislature shall amend the metropolitan police system, the present city Police Board shall employ enough additional policemen to give the new territory adequate protection. The city Fire Department shall be similarly extended, with police and fire signal and telephone systems.

Unified school administration shall be established, under the Board of Education, which shall take over all county school properties and all school district indebtedness.

The two St. Louis County divisions of the Circuit Court shall be added to the present 16 divisions of the St. Louis Circuit Court. The Probate and Juvenile courts shall be unified, and the Court of Criminal Correction and Police courts shall cover the enlarged city. City and county jury lists shall be merged. The so-called County Court, which is not a court but an administrative body, is abolished with the rest of the county offices. Justices of the Peace and Constables shall retain office, with civil jurisdiction only.

Debts of the county and its municipalities shall be assumed by the enlarged city. The enlarged city shall have the right to issue bonds for permanent improvements incident to the urbanizing of the present county territory.

How the Farmer Regards Merger.

The merger plan is being supported by organized bodies in the city and the county, and is being opposed by an organization and by political interests in the county.

The opposition is stressing the large area of farm land included in the county, the latest figures showing 192,000 acres. The reply of advocates of the plan is that the farm area will decrease rapidly with the city's growth and that fair treatment of farm owners, in the matter of taxation, is provided for. Most of the farm owners, it is argued, would be benefited through an increase in the value of their land. There was no way to avoid taking in the farm land, as St. Louis County could not be reduced in size very much without falling below the minimum area of 410 square miles, fixed in the State Constitution.

In the border communities, University City, Maplewood, Richmond Heights, and the unincorporated Wellston region, a heavy vote for the merger is expected. In Webster Groves and Kirkwood, which are fairly well satisfied with their independent status, there is more opposition. The farm districts, thus far, appear to be against the plan.

An argument now being made by the "antis" is that the proposed expansion would make St. Louis the largest city of the United States, if not of the world, in area, 20 per cent larger than Los Angeles. Supporters are turning this into an argument for the measure, as one of progress in a period when the automobile has eliminated old-time factors of distance. Expansion is the order of the day, in municipalities, and even if St. Louis multiplies its size to the proposed 350,000 acres, it is likely that some rival city, within the next few years, will extend its area to 400,000 acres. The only thing that prevents such expansion on the part of Chicago is the Indiana state line.

BAY STATE MAKES EVERY AUTO OWNER CARRY INSURANCE

automobile in Massachusetts to establish financial responsibility, so that in a civil suit money can be collected from him if it can be shown that the driver was careless, negligent or criminal.

The law provides $5000 to $10,000 limits, meaning that the insurance company will pay up to $5000 if one person is killed or injured, or $10,000 if more than one is killed or injured in the same accident. The coverage may be obtained in three ways: First, through the insurance companies as previously summarized; second, by a liability bond, issued by a responsible bonding company (practically the same thing as insurance); third, by a deposit of $5000 in cash or securities with the State Division of Highways.

Injured persons must prove their cases, as in any damage suit. The law does not apply, either, to persons obtaining motor vehicles as common carriers along a fixed route, stopping to take on or discharge passengers, such as a railroad coach or bus line. Other state laws cover accidents in such cases. Injured persons must prove always, as with railroad accidents and other highway accidents, that they were not at fault, and that the liability was entirely that of the automobile driver. It does not benefit persons outside the state or those injured on private property or private ways within the State. It does not apply to cars owned by the State, county, city or town, or persons operating motor busses along established routes, under regular municipal permits.

Check on Criminals.

It is believed that the law will help to eliminate hundreds of persons who have been driving without licenses or even registration, and will help serve as a check on criminals owning cars and operating them for criminal purposes. But the chief benefit hoped for is the checking of reckless and irresponsible driving and the elimination of those who buy a cheap used car, operate it recklessly and speed away whenever they have an accident. The company representatives say:

"If the automobile owners desire to keep the rates at a minimum, let them, one and all, exercise due care in operating their cars and not permit them to be operated by careless persons."

Grandmother's Age

Looks like a girl of 19

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Mine is a grandmother's age. My life has been spent in the limelight. Yet I am still a stage star, still a beauty, still a girl. Thousands who see me daily marvel at my youthful bloom. Countless young girls envy my hair and complexion.

I sailed on Steamer Homeric, June 12, 1926, for my 35th trip to France. I go there every year to keep in intimate touch with the latest beauty discoveries.

I have searched the world for beauty aids. The best I found were produced by French experts. I became by their help a famous beauty, gained a glorious career. They have preserved my beauty, kept my youth, as all who see me know.

Now I am placing these helps at every woman's call. Toilet counters everywhere supply them in my name. Every girl and woman who desires may use exactly what I use, and at a modest cost.

My Beauty Aids

White Youth Clay—Purges the skin of impurities. Combats lines and wrinkles. Brings a new complexion.

Facial Youth—A liquid skin cleanser. Cleans to the depths taking grime, dirt, dead skin and clogging matter with it.

Youth Cream—To soften, whiten, feed and beautify the skin. Cold cream and Vanishing types. Both are unsurpassed.

Hair Youth—Combats dandruff. Stimulates hair roots. Exquisitely perfumed. Apply with eye dropper.

Youth Cream Powder—Heavy clinging cold cream type. Favorite of Stage stars.

Light Face Powder—Fluffy and exquisite. Highest type possible to produce.

Beauty Talc—Fine as vapor.

Fruity Shampoo—To cleanse, restore lustre, beautify hair and make it glisten.

Youth Hand Lotion—For hands, face, arms, chapped skin, sun or windburn and all roughness. Heals chapped lips.

Wave and Sheen (Greaseless Hair Dressing)—A many-purpose hair beautifier. Gives instant results. Brush down for smooth, sleek appearance. Comb upward for fluff and wave. Use curlers for fixed enduring curl.

Cream Deodorant—Refined under-arm cream. Best I have ever found.

Liquid Nail Polish—For youthful tint and lustre. Imparts a brilliant glow.

Hair Remover—For superfluous hair on any part of body.

Eye Bath—For tired, aching, inflamed eyes, to preserve lustre and brilliancy.

No-Shine—Astringent Cream. Ends all shine on the nose or forehead.

MONOPOLY OF CITY FREIGHT TRANSFER IN PROPOSED PLAN

Railroad Executives to Pass on Suggestion for Reduction of Local Handling Stations.

CHANGE TO BENEFIT COLUMBIA CONCERN

Shippers Make Objection That Scheme Would Cause Congestion and Retard Movement of Goods.

Monopoly of railroad freight transfer business in St. Louis by the Columbia Terminals Co. and the virtual "freezing out" of two smaller competing firms is aimed at in a plan to be presented to the executives of the various railroads entering St. Louis at a meeting tomorrow.

A committee of railroad traffic representatives, which has made a study of transfer conditions here, is responsible for the proposal. This scheme to throw all the business to one company has been discussed for several years. The St. Louis Association of Team and Truck Owners and shippers' organizations have denounced the proposal.

The plan is predicated upon the premise that the present freight transfer facilities in St. Louis are too scattered and that the railroads could save money by a concentration of the so-called "off-track" stations.

Under the plan of operation in use here, transfer companies are utilized in carrying freight from the cars at the "on-track" stations to the "off-track" stations where the shippers may call for their consignments.

Paid From Freight Charges.

So closely related is this function to the general shipping process that the transfer companies' charges are included in the freight tariffs approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the companies are paid out of the general freight charge levied upon the shippers.

This work is a distinct activity from the general hauling business done by many transfer companies. Only three St. Louis companies—the Columbia Terminals, the Fidelity and the Central Transfer companies—are authorized to do railroad transfer work within the strict meaning of the term. The other companies are simply general haulers and have no part in completing a freight shipment process begun by a railroad.

The Columbia Terminals Co. as the largest transfer firm in St. Louis, now handles more than 50 per cent of the railroad freight shipped in and out of St. Louis, or transferred in less than carload lots from railroad cars of the East Side lines in East St. Louis to West Side cars on this side of the river for further shipment by rail.

It has five outbound "off-track" stations in St. Louis and three inbound stations. Its largest competitor is the Fidelity Transfer with two stations. The Central Transfer Co. with two stations, is the third authorized freight transfer agency here.

The plan of the railroad committee, to be submitted to the railroad executives Monday, advocates retention of only six outbound depots with a view of concentrating the transfer facilities. A close perusal of the report reveals, however, a fact which is not specifically stated, namely, that the stations to be retained are the property of the Columbia Terminals Co., while the stations of its competitors are left out of the plan entirely.

In offering its plan, the committee of railroad representatives advances the argument that the centralization of the transfer work will make possible a reduction in rates to the shipper. The plan, it is argued, will not mean a monopoly since the other companies will be free to haul to and from the "off-track" stations.

This work, however, would mean merely that the Fidelity and the Central companies would still have the privilege of doing a general trucking business. Their railroad transfer privilege, with its participation in freight tariffs for hauling between "off-track" and "on-track" stations, would be taken from them by the plan and lodged exclusively in the Columbia Terminals Co.

Condemned by Shippers.

Officials of the Fidelity and Central companies contend that a curtailment of transfer facilities cannot work a benefit to the shippers since the present transfer stations are always crowded with freight and the other transfer facilities are taxed to their limit.

It is argued, too, that the grant of the exclusive transfer privilege to one company would take away from shippers the benefit of competition and would likely result in a diminution in the quality of service.

Apparently this view was shared by the Shippers' Conference Association, composed of representatives of the larger shippers of the city who last December condemned the plan. Similarly the South St. Louis Business Men's Association, the East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and the Team and Truck Owners' Association have expressed themselves against it. The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce has made no definite expression of opinion but General Secretary Findly has been quoted as denying a report that it has approved the proposal.

POLICE HEADQUARTERS TO INCLUDE ARMORY

Plans for New 5-Story Building on 12th From Clark to Spruce Completed.

A system of cages to accommodate 370 prisoners, 20 more than may be taken care of at the City Jail, is one of the features of the new Police Headquarters Building on the southwest corner of Twelfth boulevard and Clark avenue, plans for which were made public yesterday.

The building, to cost between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, will be ready for occupancy by January, 1928. It will be built of Bedford stone five stories in height and fronting 219 feet on Clark avenue by 138 feet on Twelfth boulevard. A Police Armory, built of the same material, will occupy the remaining 140 feet in the block on Twelfth, with a depth of 150 feet on Spruce street.

Men's cellrooms, isolation wards and men's detention rooms will be on the second floor, with a mezzanine on the west side for detectives' assembly room and showers. The office of the Chief of Detectives, "show-up" room, Bertillion department and women's detention rooms will occupy the third floor. On the fourth floor will be the office of the Chief of Police, record room and women's cells. An emergency hospital and the chambers of the Board of Police Commissioners will be on the fifth floor.

A police garage is planned for the first floor of the Armory Building, with the armory proper on the third floor. The buildings are designed by Mauran, Russell and Crowell, the architectural firm which designed the Bell Telephone Building.

NEW ATHENS BEER INVESTIGATION TO BE CONTINUED

Federal Prosecutor to Call More Witnesses Before Grand Jury in Effort to Fix Blame.

21 INDICTED AS DRY LAW PLOTTERS

List Includes East St. Louis Banker, His Two Brothers, Besides Brewmaster and Other Employes.

The Federal Government is not through with its investigation of alleged violations of the Volstead act by the New Athens, Ill., brewery owned by the Probst Pure Products Co., though it obtained the indictment of 21 persons Friday by a Federal grand jury at Danville.

It is seeking now to learn how the brewery could have made real beer as long as it did without interference. District Attorney Baker of East St. Louis, who made the investigation with the assistance of Howard Jones, Special Assistant Attorney-General from Washington, predicts that other indictments will follow when the grand jury is reconvened in a few months.

Among those named in Friday's indictment are George C. Probst, East St. Louis banker and trustee of the Probst estate; his brothers, Ike and Ben Probst of New Athens; Hobart C. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin J. Gintz, Edward, Philip, Tony and Julian Wolf, all of Belleville, and Lilly Miller, sister of Hobart, also of Belleville. William Schreiber, brewmaster in charge of the plant at the time of the raid upon it last June 2, was indicted as were other employes of other alleged conspirators.

The raid disclosed 12,800 gallons in the vats, with an alcoholic content of 4.5 per cent. This beer was destroyed together with some of the brewery equipment.

Many witnesses, other than the prohibition agents who investigated the case, were heard by the grand jury. One was Mrs. Ray Stevenson, widow of the East St. Louis gangster and liquor runner who was killed recently near New Orleans by the propellor of his motor boat. Her brother-in-law, William Stevenson, also testified.

Officers and employes of East St. Louis and Belleville banks testified about the bank accounts of suspected conspirators, as did saloonkeepers and bartenders. H. B. Sterling, superintendent and engineer of the ice plant operated in connection with the brewery, was another witness.

LOVE CITADEL IS CLOSED TO BOTH WRIGHT AND HIS WIFE

Action Taken by Wisconsin Bank Which Holds $25,000 Mortgage Against Place.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 11.—The gates of Taliesin, picturesque estate of Frank Lloyd Wright, in the hills above the Wisconsin River near Spring Green, were barred today against the noted architect, by court order.

Neither Wright nor his estranged wife, Miriam Noel Wright, may enter the famous love citadel during pendency of foreclosure proceedings begun against the property by a Winconsin bank, holder of a $25,000 mortgage in an injunction issued by Circuit Judge Sachtjen yesterday. This action was taken after attorney Harold Jackson, counsel for Mrs. Wright, told Attorney H. H. Thomas, counsel for the bank, that Wright, who is now a fugitive on a statutory charge, visited Taliesen Tuesday night.

WHOLE BODY ACHED— FELT VERY DEPRESSED

"I was afflicted with constipation which caused me to have all sorts of pains and aches," says Mr. M. J. Snook, of Lamar, Mo. "I did not have a well day for years. I tried many medicines, but received only temporary relief. For four years I did not work, and I thought I would never be well again. At times I could hardly move. Getting up and down out of my chair caused the most acute pain. My whole body ached.

"I grew very depressed over my condition for I have always been very active, and it distressed me greatly not to be able to get about.

"Some one told me to try Black-Draught for constipation which was the cause of all my sickness. I had tried so many things that I hadn't much faith, but I was doing no good as it was, so I thought it would not hurt to see what it would do for me. I am happy to say that it proved to be all my friend had said. I took Black-Draught regularly for some time according to the directions. I very soon began to feel better. I gradually took up my work, and as I grew stronger I was able to accomplish more and more.

"I am 61 years old, but feel as good as I did at 30. My appetite is good and I enjoy my meals. I keep a box of Black-Draught in the house always, and if I seem the least bit inclined to be constipated I take a dose or two, never allowing that condition to run on. I find it keeps me in good health, and I am now better than I have been in years."

Is Your Life's Blood Trickling Away?

When you see red blood escaping you know that your vitality is escaping with it, and you promptly stop the flow. Millions of people live on, indifferent to the loss of vital power even more serious than the loss of blood—the LOSS of NERVE FORCE.

Wonderful Book on the Nerves

Paul von Boeckmann, the noted Nerve Culturist, has written a remarkable book which explains the Laws of Nerve Force and teaches in the simplest language how to Soothe, Calm and Care for the Nerves. It is the result of over 20 years' study of nervous people, whom he understands from the ground up. If after reading this book you do not agree that it has taught the greatest HEALTH LESSON you have ever had, return it and your money will be refunded at once. A keen and highly-organized nervous system is the most precious gift of Nature. To be dull nerved means to be dull brained, incapable of feeling and doing the higher things in life. Therefore care for your nerves. Send for the book TODAY.

What Readers Say
Send us 100 copies to give to our employes. It is the only real efficiency book. I gained 12 pounds since reading your book, and I feel so energetic. My nervous headache disappeared as if by magic. I never knew I had nerves. SLEEP is now my middle name, thanks to the advice in your book. It is wonderful. Your book did more for me for indigestion than two courses in dieting. Stopping the leak of nerve force has cleared my brain. Before I was half dizzy all the time. A Nerve Specialist says: "Your book shows you have a scientific and profound knowledge of the nerves and nervous people. I am recommending your book to my patients."

FOSTER FIRM SUES DEFEATED CANDIDATE

Blodgett Priest and Managers Defendants in Action for $911.

The campaign financial worries of a candidate might be expected to end when he is defeated, but Blodgett Priest, "wet" candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, has discovered they keep piling up.

Priest and several of his campaign managers were sued yesterday by the Walker-White Bill Posting Co., which asked for judgment of $911.46 for the cost of putting the union label on his posters and for the distribution of campaign cards. It was alleged in the petition that Priest and Hugh K. Wagner and Louis F. Zepp, managers, agreed to pay the amount sued for, but had failed to do so.

This was the third left-over campaign obligation alleged to be due from Priest. A week after the campaign ended, the closing of the Citizens' Bank of Englewood, a suburb of Kansas City, disclosed a campaign note of $1250 signed by Priest.

This was followed a few days ago by a suit in a Justice of the Peace court in Jefferson City by Priest's Cole County manager, John Faust, who asked judgment against Priest for $120.50 for repairs to Faust's automobile which, he alleged, was damaged while he was campaigning for Priest, and for expenses incidental to Priest's Jefferson City meeting.

A WOMAN'S WAY

"I tried for four months to get my wife to try MAYR'S, which I know has helped a friend of mine who also suffered from stomach trouble. She insisted her case was different. I finally had to bribe her with a new dress. The first dose produced remarkable results, cleaning up her complexion and restoring her appetite. She can now eat things she hadn't been able to for many years." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores, Walgreen Drug Co. and druggists everywhere.

STUDEBAKER'S New Custom Sedans

Mechanically up-to-the-minute

Artistically ahead of the times—Economically the cars of the hour

IT is great to be a pioneer and still retain your youth—to sponsor new style at no sacrifice of traditional standards—to set the pace in appearance and maintain it by performance.

This is what Studebaker has done in these new Custom Sedans which are sweeping the country. Somebody put their description in a phrase, "Studebaker plus"—the final achievement of performance plus the newest mode in motordom.

Engineering authorities have long acknowledged Studebaker's mechanical supremacy in its field. And now with added refinements and even closer standards of precision, the mighty Studebaker L-head motor is widening its margin of leadership.

Studebaker's Victory Over Vibration

Studebaker's early adoption of the L-head engine forecast the present-day trend. Now 70% of American manufacturers use this efficient, quiet type of engine. And, more significantly, the largest builders of other types have come to this principle for all the new cars introduced in recent years

The quiet Studebaker six-cylinder L-head motor, famed for its smoothness, power and endurance, is built complete in Studebaker shops.

Yet Studebaker has gone even further to insure a smooth, vibrationless flow of power. Studebaker spends over $600,000 annually building balance into its big crankshafts—fully machining and dynamically balancing each and every one.

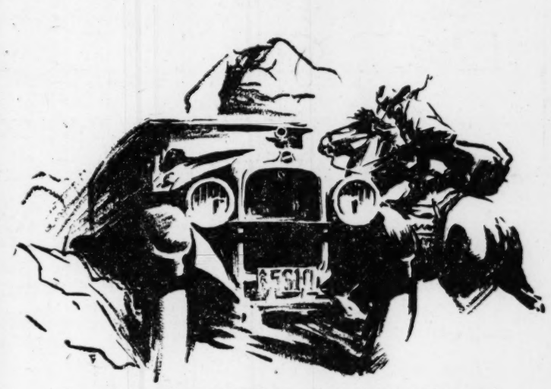
Studebaker's Higher Power Rating

Only seven other American cars have a power rating greater than the Big Six and these all cost from $2500 to $8000 more. The Standard Six is the most powerful car of its size and weight, according to the ratings of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Excess power—liquid-smooth! There when you want it—arrow-swift! No wonder Studebakers shoot to the top of steep hills without a shift in gears. No wonder they have made such phenomenal records in cross-country runs.

Studebaker's Transcontinental Triumph

Recently the Studebaker Big Six Sheriff—a certified stock car—dashed from New York to San Francisco in 86 hours and 20 minutes through the worst storm in 60 years. It cut 16 hours and 25 minutes off the best previous automobile record and beat the best time of the crack Limiteds by over 6 hours!



From Ocean to Ocean in 86 hours and 20 minutes,—6 hours and 25 minutes faster than the crack limited trains! Flinging the flashing miles behind it, the Studebaker Big Six Sheriff defied storm or fog, mud or deep sand to halt its flight.

It added another victory to the long list already held by Studebaker—Barcelona to Madrid, the Trans-Australian Run and many others.

Studebaker's Inherent Durability

Owners of 817 Studebakers report having driven their cars from 100,000 to 300,000 miles and still going strong. Thousands of Studebakers in the fleet-service of big industrial concerns are proving, by carefully checked performance, their remarkable low-cost and tremendous endurance.

Factory sales of Studebaker repair parts average yearly only $10 per car in operation—evidence of the fine materials used.

Studebaker's Advanced Engineering Practice

How Studebaker keeps ahead of the procession is shown by the fact that for the past two years, Studebaker has been balancing wheels and castings to insure smoothest riding. Moreover the semi-elliptic springs fostered by Studebaker are now used by 92% of American car manufacturers. Studebaker cars have a long springbase, and spring leaves of the finest chrome vanadium steel. Replacements of springs on Studebaker cars are less than 1% per year of cars in service.

There are many other betterments in Studebaker design—an oil-filter and air purifier effectually seal the engine against foreign matter. A waterproof ignition system insures faithful operation in rainstorms. Even the spark plugs wear rubber caps. And a force-feed lubrication system gives perfect lubrication under all conditions.

Studebaker spends $600,000 annually in fully machining every surface of its big crankshaft—a feature found only in the costliest cars.

Over $100 Worth of Extra Equipment at No Extra Cost

To its in-built qualities of performance, Studebaker has added the charm of custom treatment and the luxury of custom equipment. Low-swung, full-vision steel bodies in lustrous and durable duotone lacquers; interiors richly finished and appointed, with broadcloth or Chase mohair upholstery, broadlace trim and Butler finish hardware; and extra equipment worth more than $100.

Four-wheel brakes, disc wheels, nickel-plated bumpers, front and rear—and a patented ventilating windshield which insures perfect ventilation at all times but prevents direct drafts or a drop of rain from entering the car.

The no-draft ventilating windshield—an exclusive feature of Studebaker Custom Sedans—is conveniently controlled from the dash.

Studebaker's Greatest One-Profit Achievement

These Custom Sedans are the crowning triumph of Studebaker's One-Profit facilities—possible only because Studebaker builds them complete in its own mammoth plants—putting the savings into the greater quality you get for a lower price.

No wonder demand today is far outstripping supply for these attractive cars. See them for yourself—make your own comparison—then decide whether you should any longer deny yourself custom luxury, when you can enjoy it without custom cost.

The wedding of Miss Hadley and Bernard C. MacDonald has been set for October 6. —Ashen-Brenner

The latest name to be added to the list of 1926-27 debutantes is that of Miss Ruth McElroy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Finley McElroy of 23 Portland place. Miss McElroy is a younger sister of Miss Jane, who came out two years ago and has been active in Junior League work.

Mr. and Mrs. McElroy have a country home near Hannibal, Mo., and spend the summers there with their children. They will return Sept. 20.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Franciscus of 10 Lenox place will give a garden party at the St. Louis Country Club following the marriage of their daughter, Miss Marian, and Dr. Joseph Falk, Oct. 7, instead of the formal reception which custom has decreed a complement to the service. The ceremony will be performed at the New Cathedral at noon before several hundred guests, including friends from all parts of the United States. The bridal party has not been announced.

An attractive visitor in St. Louis is Miss Robine Webb of Colorado Springs, Colo., the guest of Mrs. George W. Niedringhaus of 10 Westmoreland place. Miss Webb is the daughter of Dr. Gerald Webb. Invitations for Veiled Prophet's Court Are Issued Hundred and Fifty Maids and Matrons to Get Coveted "Royal Command" to Form Honor Group.

INVITATIONS, known as commands to their recipients, are being sent to the 150 matrons and maids who will form the court of honor for the 1926 Veiled Prophet ball to be held in the Coliseum the evening of Oct. 6. Of this number 75 will go to the matrons, official chaperones for the evening, and the other 75 to the maids, many of them debutantes of this season and last. Included in the latter list is the young woman who will grace the throne as queen of Love and Beauty.

Discussion of arrangements for the ball and speculations as to the identity of her majesty has been deferred this year, but with the belated return of summer travelers the topic becomes of more general interest.

The ball will take place the night following the street parade. There will be unusual entertainment, the details of which will be announced later, to interest the guests until the arrival of the new queen, with a symphony orchestra of 75 men playing the accompaniment. In addition two bands, directed by Gene Rodemich, will play for dancing.

As Told in Verse

In Patent with Gray Python,
Their Quality lies,
So sing we the praise of These Frenchy Ties;
With square heels and toes,
Their highlights supreme,
Yet so dainty and pretty and Fit for a Queen.

Capital Rapidly Filling Up With Government Officials Anxious to Precede Arrival of President and Mrs. Coolidge.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Washington is rapidly filling up with officials anxious to get the wheels of Government in motion before the arrival of President and Mrs. Coolidge from White Pine Camp Sept. 18. All signs point to a gay social season here, although it will not be in full swing until after the November elections.

The Secretary of The Navy and Mrs. Curtis D. Wilbur, who have been in California for most of the summer, will arrive in Washington Tuesday.

Washington had the pleasure of entertaining the Viscount Astor and Lady Astor and their children several hours Thursday. They were en route to New York from Lady Astor's old home near Charlottesville, Va. The Astors were greeted at the station by the Secretary of State and Mrs. Kellogg, who became their friends while Secretary Kellogg was the American Ambassador at London.

The Acting Secretary of the Navy, Theodore Douglas Robinson, flew to Atlantic City Wednesday to attend the Marine review there. Secretary Robinson frequently flies on his inspection trips to different navy posts.

He was joined here by his son, Warren Pershing, who will go to New Hampshire late this month to re-enter a preparatory school there.

Mrs. Arthur O'Brien of Trenton, N. J., and Washington, and her daughter, Miss Allison C. Roebling, granddaughter of the builder of the Brooklyn bridge, who is one of the debutantes of the season, are spending a fortnight in New York City.

Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, who has been visiting her son, Maj. U. S. Grant III, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds of Washington left for Chicago Friday.

Another Roosevelt bud will make her bow to Washington society in Miss Helen Robinson, daughter of Acting Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson. Miss Robinson is a niece of the late President Roosevelt. She will make her bow first in New York and will be presented to Washington society in January.

Army and Navy circles are interested in the news that Capt. and Mrs. John Craige are the parents of a daughter. Capt. Craige formerly was aid to Major-General John A. Lejeune of the Marines and was formerly a resident of Plainfield, N. J.

Mrs. James M. Thomson, daughter of the late Speaker of the House of Representatives, has returned to Washington from Philadelphia, where she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Horace Lorimer. Mrs. Thomson will remain here for several days, after which she will go to Summit Point, W. Va., to remain until Sept. 15, when she will return to Washington.

Announcing for Monday, and Continuing Throughout the Week . . . Our Extraordinary Annual 46 Years of Building for Tomorrow with the Service of Today— 1880 to 1926

SALES of PROGRESS

THREE years ago we inaugurated the SALES of PROGRESS. Today it is one of St. Louis' biggest merchandising achievements . . one that all women eagerly await . . and one in which we endeavor to express our sincere gratitude for the generous support that has made the wonderful growth of SONNENFELD'S possible, in the only way we know how . . by presenting REMARKABLE SAVINGS on needed wearables.

This year, determined to eclipse every effort of the past, we have gone to manufacturers and obtained concessions that we dared not hope for. To make the values still more tempting, we have even foregone our customary profits for the SALES of PROGRESS . . with the result that an opportunity is presented to economize on new Fall and Winter apparel, the equal of which has seldom been offered you.

Monday, and throughout the entire week, SALES of PROGRESS values—values that border on the sensational—will prevail in every department. We urge every woman to participate to the fullest extent, by supplying present as well as future needs.

Don't Squeeze Blackheads—Dissolve Them

Squeezing out blackheads makes large, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one, big or little, will disappear at once.

500 Exquisite Autumn Frocks

Decidedly Parisian in Style Offering Marked Savings at

This interesting event offers an entirely new and refreshing collection of daytime, afternoon and evening Frocks that fashionable women will wear this Fall and Winter. In every detail—material, style and chic treatments of trim and color—they are unmistakably new and worth while.

The subtle shades of Autumn, deep rich reds, greens, blues and most favored of all, black, are shown to best advantage in the soft crepes and satins. Then there are Georgettes or chiffon combinations, friskette and other new cloths.

Many true Paris replicas, many clever adaptations of Paris ideas. Strikingly different sleeves, collarless necklines, bloused silhouettes, boleros, gilets, girdles and tiered skirts are style variations which distinguish these as modes of a new season.

Mothers! Apply Common Sense

THIS is the era of the prevention of disease and sensible people do not wait until sickness has actually come before remedying the trouble. The crowded hospitals everywhere are sad examples of the results of neglect. Be especially watchful of children. Restlessness, lack of normal appetite and feverishness usually indicate constipation. Give a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at once and you will help to prevent real sickness.

A Great Family Laxative
It may be difficult to decide just what medicine to use out of the many that are offered, but it would not be if you knew the facts. There are laxatives, cathartics, purgatives and physics, and they vary in their reaction on the system. Naturally, the stronger the medicine, the more it shocks the system, so wise parents never give anything but a laxative to children. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild laxative, a vegetable compound of Egyptian Senna with pepsin and desirable aromatics, and so appreciated that it is now the largest selling preparation of its kind in the world, over 10 million bottles being used annually. The formula is on every package.

Three Rules of Health
Always keep a bottle of Syrup Pepsin in the family medicine chest. Give it to any one from infant to grandparent, for it is safe, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. Give it for constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, colds and other evidence of bowel obstruction. Dr. Caldwell, who was a practicing physician for 47 years and who originated this formula, had three rules of health that he found very effective among his patients, which you can follow with great benefit: Keep the head cool, the feet warm and the bowels open.

Write "Syrup Pepsin," 524 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois, for a free sample bottle.

Sanders gave an instructive paper on "Origin and Routine Work of the League of Nations." Mrs. George Malone gave a sketch of the prominent St. Louis Writers, and read one of her own stories which appeared in the August issue of "Sports and Vanities." The title being "High Stakes." The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Lester H. Cook, 2144 Alice avenue, Friday Sept. 17.

The Sappington Society will hold a memorial service today at the Sappington Cemetery on the Watson road and Gravois creek at 3 p. m. Markers will be unveiled on the graves of seven soldiers: Capt. John Long and Sergeant John Sappington of the Revolutionary War; Zephaniah Sappington, Thomas Sappington, John Sappington Jr., Richard Wells and William Lindsay, soldiers of the War of 1812. Capt. John Long came to Missouri in 1796, receiving a Spanish grant of land, now the present town of Chesterfield. He moved to the Gravois district about 1800. Sergt. John Sappington came to Missouri in 1806 with his seven sons and 10 daughters. In 1811, when his first child died, he set aside one acre of his ground for a cemetery. This service will mark the thirty-fourth anniversary of the first Sappington family reunion. In case of rain, the service will be held at the residence of Mrs. A. J. Meier, 1315 West Lockwood avenue, Glendale, Mo.

To Wash Away Those Wrinkles and Crowsfeet

If your face is disfigured with wrinkles, no matter what the cause, you can quickly dispel every line, even the most obstinate by using a simple, homemade wash lotion. Merely dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel —ingredients found in any drug store. Bathe the face in this, and—presto!—you scarcely believe your own eyes when you look into your mirror and behold the marvelous transformation!

The remarkable astringent action of the saxolite so tightens the skin, wrinkles are literally pressed out. Best of all, this result is not purely temporary, for the lotion also has a healthful tonic action, which tends to strengthen and tone up the weakened tissue. It cannot injure the most delicate skin. The treatment itself leaves no trace—no one guesses the secret of your increasing youthful appearance.

When Teeth are Film Free

Smiles are Charming

The dangerous film on teeth to which science ascribes many tooth and gum disorders. What numbers of authorities suggest doing for it

BY running your tongue across your teeth, a film will be felt—a slippery sort of coating.

Recent dental research proves that film a chief enemy of healthy teeth and gums —the source of most dull teeth, a chief cause of many gum disturbances.

Because old ways of brushing failed to remove film successfully, a new way in tooth and gum care is being widely suggested by dental authorities. These are embodied in the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

Now an effective film combatant

For years dental science sought ways to fight film. Clear teeth and healthy gums come only when film is constantly combated—removed every day from the teeth.

Film was found to cling to teeth; to get into crevices and stay; to hold in contact with teeth food substances which fermented and fostered the acids of decay. Film was found to be the basis of tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea and most gum disorders.

Thus there was a universal call for an effective film-removing method. Ordinary brushing was found ineffective. Now two effective combatants have been found, approved by high dental authority and embodied in a tooth paste called Pepsodent.

Curdles and removes film— Firms the Gums

Pepsodent acts first to curdle the film. Then it thoroughly removes the film in gentle safety to enamel.

At the same time, it acts to firm the gums—Pepsodent provides, for this purpose, the most recent dental findings in gum protection science knows today. Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. And thus aids in neutralizing mouth acids as they form.

It multiplies the starch digestant of the saliva. Thus combats starch deposits which might otherwise ferment and form acids.

No other method known to present-day science embodies protective agents like those in Pepsodent.

Please accept Pepsodent test

Send the coupon for a 10-day tube. Brush teeth this way for 10 days. Note how thoroughly film is removed. The teeth gradually lighten as film coats go. Then for 10 nights massage the gums with Pepsodent, using your finger tips; the gums then should start to firm and harden.

At the end of that time, we believe you will agree, that next to regular dental care, Pepsodent, the quality dentifrice, provides the utmost science has discovered for better tooth and gum protection.

SPECIAL FEATURE SECTION OF THE

AUTO INFORMATION — ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH — RADIO FEATURES

PART FIVE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 12, 1926. PAGES 1—12.

AUTO SHOW WILL BE CONTINUED ALL WEEK IN ST. LOUIS

Display of New Motor Cars Is Big Feature of Exposition—Review of the Exhibits.

A distinct trend toward two-tone effects, more brilliant colors and custom design is, perhaps, the most noticeable impression gained at the excellent display of the new 1927 models made by members of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association in the motor car section of the Greater St. Louis Exposition, which will continue throughout this week. Almost as noticeable is the attention devoted to riding and driving comfort in the less expensive as well as the costlier cars, and the evident effort to reduce engine vibration and closed-car rumble.

Auto Show Draws Throngs.

"I have been agreeably surprised during the first eight days by the interest shown by the tens of thousands of visitors who have inspected our automobile section," said Capt. Robert E. Lee, manager of the motor car exhibit. "I confess that my pre-show impression was that we would be merely an incident to the amusement features of the exposition, but I find that the automobile show has been a dominating attraction.

"The aisles in our two immense tents, which, by the way, are each as long as a city block, have been thronged with people almost every hour of the afternoon and evening. The salesmen from the various automobile concerns have found themselves busy constantly.

Interest in the new models is even greater than we had anticipated. Although we have attractive showrooms on Auto Row, only a minor proportion of the public ever gets to see our new models until salesmen find prospects and display them individually.

Women Becoming Expert.

"At the automobile show at the Greater St. Louis Exposition we are enabled to show our cars to the public en masse, and it is gratifying to see how intensely interested all classes of people are in the developments in motor transportation.

"One of the interesting features

STONE FACE ON BLUFF IN WISCONSIN IS 44 FEET FROM CHIN TO FOREHEAD

COPYRIGHT FREY, WINONA

STONE Indian head carved by wind and weather in the bluffs that tower above highway No. 35 near Fountain City, Wis., and overlook the Mississippi River, is said to have played an important role in Indian ceremonials, especially in duels fought in a species of court of honor in its shadow. It is called the most natural looking stone face in the world, and it is 44 feet from its chin to its forehead. It may be reached from St. Louis via Madison and Baraboo to La Crosse, Wis., then up the Minnesota side of the Mississippi River to Winona, then across the river again to Fountain City and out No. 35.

ROAD BUILDING IN MISSOURI OZARKS PROGRESSES FAST

Large Mileage of Highways Already Made All-Weather—Maintenance of High Character.

As important, in its way, to Missouri as the hard surfacing of Federal route No. 40 from St. Louis via Columbia to Kansas City, is the work which the State Highway Department is doing in opening up the Ozark region of South Central Missouri to motorists. The isolation which handicapped this part of the State since the first settlement of the country has at last been broken by good roads. Not only Missourians from other sections, but tourists from all over the United States, now are able to drive their automobiles into virtually every part of the picturesque territory south of State Highway No. 14 to the Arkansas line and between Springfield on the west and Poplar Bluff on the east.

Roads Made Generally Good.

The former rough, dirt trails through this region have been changed into smooth, well-marked, comfortably riding highways, wide enough for two lines of traffic. Most of this mileage of good roads may be traveled in any kind of weather, for, where the roads are not graveled, there generally is natural gravel, or the graded dirt is hard packed or has a rock base, so that only a few stretches become impassable when rain-soaked. This is not to imply, however, that chains should be left at home when bound for this part of Missouri.

Access to this Ozark country may be gained by motor car from St. Louis over State route No. 14 via St. Clair and Cuba or from route No. 9 (now Federal No. 61) south via Flat River and Farmington and No. 67, which runs from No. 61 to Poplar Bluff at Fredericktown, and then No. 16 westward, or by using No. 61, a county road to Arcadia and No. 21 via Centerville and Ellington to its intersection with No. 16. From the Cairo ferry No. 16 leads directly westward into the Ozarks. Motorists from Kansas City can use No. 71 south, then go to Springfield and follow No. 16 eastward.

A survey of the road work in this region, made by Robert H. Hall of the press bureau of the Automobile Club of Missouri, reveals that there has been a relatively greater expansion of the State highway system more than in any other part of Missouri. But for the co-operation of other division engineers, of course, the gradual completion of the surfaced road program would go but a short way toward opening the Ozarks to tourists. Working out of St. Louis, Kansas City, Springfield, Poplar Bluff and other division points, highway engineers have made this territory their objective.

Difficult Construction.

Highway construction in Division No. 9, in which most of this Ozark region lies, was the most difficult in the State. Elsewhere well traveled roads served as a basis for reconstruction, but the muddy trails of the Ozarks and their steep grades afforded the engineers few advantages.

Division No. 9, under J. H. Long, division engineer located at Willow Springs, includes Carter, Dent, Douglas, Howell, Oregon, Ozark, Reynolds, Shannon, Texas and Wright counties. Since June, 1922, Long and his aids have constructed 116 miles of gravel-surfaced roads and 232 miles of graded dirt roads. Since it is also necessary to grade and bridge the 116.3 miles of gravel roads prior to surfacing it with gravel, the total contract mileage completed in this division of 465.1 miles. Several large bridges, numerous small ones and many culverts have been constructed.

Among the larger bridges built by this division is the steel truss bridge over the Current River at Van Buren and the concrete arch over the same river on highway No. 19, north of Eminence, near Round Spring State Park.

The bridge over the Current River at Van Buren is 1120 feet long and is the second largest bridge in Missouri to be constructed by the present State Highway Department. The Eminence bridge is 578 feet long and rates about sixth among bridges built by the Highway Department.

Aside from the construction program being carried on by Division No. 9, maintenance operations are highly important. Maintenance in this division must be up to a high standard due to the type of secondary road construction.

The maintenance department of this division is carried on by 79 full-time employes, an average of

MANY FINE VIEWS ON MOTOR TRIP TO ARCADIA REGION

Road Just Beyond Well Known Resort Town Reaches Elevation of 1300 Feet Above Sea.

As enjoyable a day's tour out of St. Louis as can be found goes via Flat River and Farmington to Ironton and Arcadia, then to Lake Killarney, back to Arcadia and out highway No. 21 for several miles toward Glover for the beautiful views from Tip Top, at an elevation of 1300 feet above sea level. On the whole, this probably offers more of scenic interest than any other trip of comparable length from this city.

As many St. Louisans know, the Lemay Ferry road becomes Federal highway No. 61 and traverses a very pretty country, with several fine Mississippi River vistas, as it wanders along on perfect concrete pavement past Herculaneum, Festus and Crystal City, and then on more pavement over a new and very pretty route to the outskirts of Flat River, where it becomes a good chat road to Farmington.

This route should not be confused with the old Lemay Ferry road over Seckman, Frisco and other very steep hills via De Soto to Flat River. There are no grades on No. 61 that can not be made swiftly and with ease in high gear by any car.

From Farmington, the route turns off No. 9 to follow an all-weather county road via Doe Run and Iron Mountain to Arcadia. This road also traverses a charming countryside, with fine views of Pilot Knob as one nears Arcadia, where there are hotels and lodgings. From the latter place, No. 70 leads several miles to the Shut-in, where a creek has carved a of this exhibition is the knowledge shown by women visitors of the insides of our cars. They seem to know what a poppet valve is, the functions of a carburetor and the reason for gear reduction in an automobile, so that the salesmen are able to talk understandingly to them.

"Viewing the results of the week which has closed at the auto show and the week which is to come, I can confidently say that the show will go down in automotive history as a very great success for the dealers because, in addition to sales which have been made, the salesmen have gathered, and will gather, hundreds of names of prospective buyers, which, after all, is all that can be hoped for from any kind of an automobile show."

A review of the passenger car exhibits at the show follows:

Among the Exhibits.

The characteristic hood and the duo tone color effects on the Auburn six and eight cylinder models exhibited by the Mound City Automobile Co. won many favorable comments. All Auburn models are distinctive in fitments and interior finishing as well as on the exterior.

One of the largest exhibits is that of Buick models, showing the new two-tone effects in exterior finish and the carrying of the body color onto the window frames. There was much interest and comment on the extent to which Buick has gone to make the Buick engine vibrationless and to increase riding and driving comfort.

Noticable among the Cadillacs shown by the Oliver Cadillac Co. is a custom phaeton with Don Lee type windshield. Exterior finish was Argyle gray with panel effects outlined in gold. Arm rests came out from recesses in the centers of the seat when needed.

All three types of the new Chandler cars—the Big Six, Special Six and Standard Six—are shown by the Lewis Automobile Co., retail distributor, and the Cleveland Motor Sales Co., wholesale distributer. The new models have numerous refinements in bodies and engines.

The "Smoothest Chevrolet" is represented by a complete line of models and also most of the types of Chevrolet commercial cars. The improvements in body design that have been made within the past year and a half, and that have assisted so greatly in the phenomenal sales record set up by Chevrolet, have been accompanied by no less important betterments in chassis.

Interesting Cars.

Chrysler cars are exhibited by Midwest Motors, Inc. Interest is keen in all the lines—in the relatively new "60," the "70" and the very speedy and powerful "80," and, of course, even more in the newest Chrysler—the "50." The Chrysler "50" is typical of the whole line in appearance, style, finish and speed and acceleration.

Ruggedness and durability always have been features of Dodge cars. Today, as is manifest throughout the Tate Motor Co. exhibit, Dodge cars hold their own in style and dash. The new Dodge sport roadster is prominently displayed, and makes a very attractive appearance with its brilliant pheasant green lacquer on body and hood, contrasting with the tan top and black fenders and running gear.

Ford passenger cars and commercial cars are shown in complete detail. Here, too, are evident the numerous improvements in appearance and chassis that have been made by Ford in the past few months. Thousands of persons tested the increased riding comfort of the improved Fords during the week.

One of the striking cars shown is a low hung Franklin roadster done in cream and elabortely finished and appointed. A noteworthy detail is the scrupulous care and craftmanship with which the rear deck, and every other part of the car is finished. There is not one rough edge, not a single example of slipshod work to be found on that Franklin.

A Striking Stunt.

The new Hudson and Essex cars with all-steel bodies after a distinctive design and built in new $10,000,000 body plant, are shown by the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co. Duco finish on the Hudsons and baked enamel on the Essex coach are features that cause approving comment. There is also much interest displayed in the new manifolding and carburetion on the Hudsons which are said to give markedly better performance and gasoline economy.

The first showing in St. Louis of a new Hup eight model—a close coupled brougham—is being made at the automobile show by the Weber Implement and Automobile Co. This brougham is on a 125-inch wheelbase, and has unusually wide door and seats with upholstery specially designed for riding comfort, and room in rear for a large trunk.

A seven-passenger sedan on the new McFarlan straight eight chassis, and a sport roadster on the dual valve, triple ignition six-cylinder McFarlan chassis which has the largest engine in any passenger car in the world, are shown by the Foster Motor Car Co., Inc.

Beautiful Models.

Marmon cars, with beautiful lines and massively built chassis, are exhibited by the More Automobile Co. Again the line as a whole, and the victoria and coupe models in particular uphold the reputation the Marmon won at the spring automobile shows as one of the world's distinguished looking cars.

The Moon Motor Car Co. exhibits its new line of Moon light sixes which was introduced only recently as the first definitely calculated presentation to the American public of a European type light six-cylinder motor car designed to meet American requirements. The new Moon is distinctly good looking, and is said to be a performer. The Diana straight eight line, which also is made by the Moon company, also is exhibited.

The new Nash special six, with seven-bearing crankshaft, which was introduced only a few days ago, is featured in the exhibit of Nash cars by the Southwest Nash Co.

The Oakland six and the new Pontiac six are exhibited by the Mississippi Valley Motor Co. An interesting example of the way in which the body builder had advanced in his art is the Pontiac landau sedan, a commodious car, but appearing far longer and larger than its actual length.

Wide Variety in Cars.

In addition to the new models of Oldsmobile sixes, the De Luxe Automobile Co. shows a cutaway chassis. This shows how the new Olds engine, whose bore has been increased with material improvement in general traffic and road performance, is carefully and cleanly designed.

A cutaway chassis is a feature of the exhibit of Paige and Jewett cars made by the Wilson Motor Car Co. Both Paige and Jewett cars have been noted for power, and this chassis bears out the cars' reputations. A car that everyone stops to view is a Paige cabriolet roadster in two-tone green, with double bead and khaki top.

Packard sixes and straight eights are exhibited by the Berry Motor Car Co. Here again there is divided interest, for stories of road performance by the new Packards are coming in and causing motorists to pay as much attention to the new 80-horsepower engine of the single six and the 110-horsepower motor of the eight as to the body lines that have enabled Packard cars to win beauty contests all over the world.

Equally attractive in its own way is a huge Pierce-Arrow bus chassis, carrying a very large box body that is shown by the Western Automobile Co., whose president is Sam Breadon, owner of the Card-

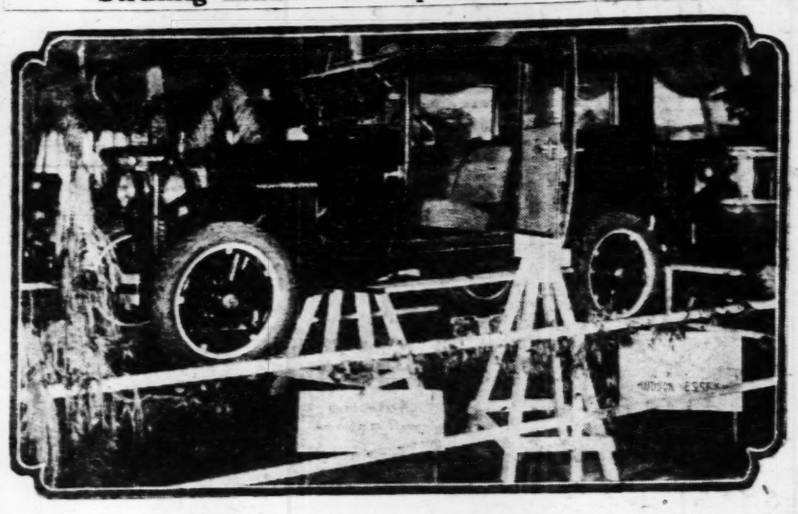
Striking Exhibit at Exposition Auto Show



An Essex six coach suspended on its doors alone — one of the most striking exhibits in the Auto Show section of the Greater St. Louis Exposition. It shows the strength of the new all-steel body and the piano type door hinges used now on Essex cars. The exhibit is made by the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co.

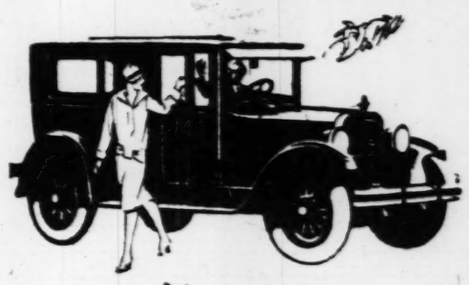
Easy Cold Weather Starting

In 1920 the cold weather starting problem was solved by the Pomeroy Electric Primer, giving drivers the same peace of mind in cold weather as warm. This product also overcomes excessive choke use, saving gas, oil and battery every day and costs but $1.75 at dealers or direct. It has been passed by Underwriters' Laboratories and is guaranteed to last as long as the car. The Benroy Automotive Service, Inc., Mfrs., Rochester, N. Y., have a special advertising plan whereby persons in every village, town or city can secure $2.00 per hour as long as desired without investment or experience. They will send full details upon immediate request.

Better than Ever-



Following their traditional policy of constant improvement with no yearly models, Dodge Brothers, during the past eight months, have vastly bettered their motor cars in many vital respects.

Indeed, there has never been an equal period in Dodge Brothers history when so many refinements of a popular and fundamental nature have been made.

The public is registering its appreciation of this progressive industrial service by purchasing every motor car Dodge Brothers can build—in spite of the fact that Dodge Brothers production, during these months, has broken all previous records by an impressive margin.

Don't ever bet you can beat a Chandler up a hill

The most unique car ever built, the Chandler "Honeymoon Special" is in the Chandler display at the Greater St. Louis Exposition.

19 finer new models, loaded to the muzzle with smooth, soundless power!

WHAT owners of many fine motor cars have heretofore considered as quick, quiet, powerful performance is nothing to compare with the quicker and quieter and more powerful performance of the new 1927 Chandler.

You realize the vivid difference between Chandler performance and ordinary performance when you take a Chandler over the road . . .

When you meet some skyscraper hills, the taller the better, and skim swiftly up them "in high"—right past other cars growling along "in second" . . .

When you feel the car's instantaneous surge of smooth, soundless power every time you tickle the accelerator!

You are as comfortable riding as you are in a big padded chair back home. Everything about this car makes you tingle all over with pleasure—happier than you've ever been with an automobile.

Steering is marvelously easy. Safe stops in any weather at any speed are assured by Chandler's perfect-action 4-wheel brakes. And due to inherent engine design, plus an oil purifier and an air cleaner, draining the oil in the crankcase is now necessary only a few times a year.

What's more—all you have to do to lubricate the entire chassis is press your heel on the little plunger of Chandler's "One Shot" system of centralized lubrication.

There are nineteen brilliant models to choose from— all lower than ever in price —and every one a distinct credit to a company that occupies one of the strongest positions in the industry—a company with no bonded indebtedness, no mortgages or liens, no bank loans, no outstanding notes—a company with assets 20 to 1 over liabilities.

Own a car of quality, luxury, big value, and real championship performance!

CHRYSLERS WORTH $150,000 ORDERED AS CONTEST PRIZES

Because a questionnaire revealed that their salesmen throughout the country preferred the Chrysler car, $150,000 worth of Chrysler cars will be awarded by the Curtiss Candy Co., of Chicago, New York, Boston, Los Angeles and San Francisco, as prizes in what the company declares is the largest sales contest ever conducted in the candy and confectionery industries. An initial order for 60 Chrysler "70" cars already has been placed with the Riveria Motor Sales Co. of Chicago by the Curtiss company, with more to follow.

Frampton Sees Little Competition From Europe

St. Louis Motor Car Distributer, Back From Abroad, Found Much of Interest in Citroen Plant.

It will be a long time, if ever, before any European motor car plant is able to compete with American factories for world business, according to R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Ca Co., who has just returned from Europe, where he went on the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce Good Will Tour.

"I see no chance of any European motor car factory reaching what we consider quantity production," said Frampton. "For one thing, the intense national feeling in each European country will prevent it, to say nothing of the import duties, which are not only heavy but also burdensome because of technicalities. It would be wellnigh impossible for a factory in one country to sell many of its cars in another European country. Still another factor is the violent prejudices in the various countries in favor of distinctive features in motor cars, as, for instance, tread, body design, braking. Take the small European cars: their treads range all the way from 37 to 46 and 48 inches."

Citroen the French Ford.

Frampton spent considerable time inspecting the plant of Citroen, who is called the Ford of France, his factory having a capacity of around 500 cars a day. He found that Citroen was using much American machinery and an assembly line of the same general type used in American automobile plants. But his machinery, including automatic screw machines, etc., is several years out of date, being the kind discarded by American plants three or four years ago.

Women Do Heavy Work.

"One thing that impresed me in the Citroen plant was the way women worked beside men, even at the heavier assembly jobs—work which in this country women are not supposed to do. Also the women got little more than half the pay of the men, although they performed as much work. For instance, the women got 15 to 18 francs a day, 52 cents a day being good wages, whereas in American automobile plants women average $5 to $6 a day. Citroen's men workers earned 28 to 30 francs a day, a wage of $4 cents a day being considered good. American workers doing the same work average $8 to $9 a day," said Frampton.

Citroen Makes 500 Cars a Day.

"Also there is a difference in standards of working. Citroen employs 15,000 persons and can make 500 cars a day. Hudson-Essex has 10,000 employes, but makes 1500 cars a day. The low pay in France cannot make up for the vastly greater efficiency in the American plants of which Hudson-Essex is an example."

Trend Abroad to 6 Cylinders.

Frampton said that he found a distinct trend among European automobile plants toward the 6-cylinder car. A number of factories which hitherto have made 4-cylinder cars, he said, are finding that buyers are insisting on six cylinders, and a number of new 6-cylinder lines will be exhibited at the coming British automobile show.

"I saw more Essex cars on the streets in England than any other American car," he said. "A number of British automobile dealers who were not handling Essex cars told me that they were outselling other American lines, for people are recognizing that in riding comfort and engineering Essex is directly in line with the car of the future. Also its relatively high power development from an engine that is rated low for taxation helps it. With a tax of a pound to the taxable horsepower, a Briton buying an Essex has to pay only $87 a year, whereas the tax on a number of other American cars runs up to $140 a year and higher."

Frampton said that the Morris, Austin seven, Clymo and A. B. C., the latter a new, small 6-cylinder car, were going strongly in England. Indeed, Morris is planning to build cars in Canada.

Another of the roadsters which have won such a vogue because of their dash and sparkle is a Reo six which is in the exhibit of the Kardell Motor Car Co. This Reo is in two-tone green, with gray leather upholstery, khaki top and natural wood bows. Interesting too, because of the way in which they are finished and appointed, are the Reo sedan models.

Star four and Star six models, in wide variety, are exhibited by the St. Louis Star Dealers' Association. Among the Star six models is a sport roadster in sage green, with all the fitments that go with more costly cars of this type.

The new custom Studebaker models on the Big Six, Special Six and Standard Six chassis are exhibited by the Weber Motor Co. Among them is "The President," the luxuriously appointed Big Six sedan which was specially designed by the Studebaker Corp. to appeal to men of large affairs who need a large, finely appointed and speedy car.

Long, low hung, the new Stutz cars, exhibited by the Benjamin Motor Co., won attention from every visitor by their distinctive lines and mechanical features. All Stutz models now have safety glass, which does not shatter, under a Stutz models now have safety glass is used in a motor car.

Interest in the graceful Wills Ste. Claire models is the keener because of the news that it was one of these cars that L. B. Miller drove a few days ago in setting a new elapsed time record of 83 hours 12 minutes for the 3367 miles from San Francisco to New York City.

The Willys-Knight Great Six, Willys-Knight "70" and the new Overland Whippet make up one of the largest displays at the show. The clean cut European type Whippet, with its low but roomy body and ease of handling and parking, is shown in all types. A Whippet chassis and lecturer are constantly surrounded by an interested crowd.

GEORGE FRANK LORD NOW STAR CAR SALES MANAGER

Colin Campbell, vice president of Durant Motors, Inc., has appointed G. F. Lord, as general sales manager of the Star Car Division. Lord has been associated with Campbell for several years, having been advertising manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co., 1922 to 1924, when Campbell was vice president and general sales manager of that concern. He was the first man to join Durant Motors, Inc., soon after Campbell became vice president in charge of the Star car division, at which time he became assistant to the vice president.

Prior to his entrance into the automobile business, Lord was well known as an advertising man, having been for more than eight years director of advertising of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., and also having been an advertising agent for about 10 years. Of recent years he has been active in general sales development operations and has a wide acquaintance among automobile dealers all over the country.

LAMBERT SAYS NO NEW FORD MODEL IS EVEN CONTEMPLATED

Samuel B. Lambert, president of the Lambert-Graves Motor Co., has returned from a three-weeks tour, most of which was spent at the Ford and Lincoln plants. He utilized the trip to demonstrate a clutch brake, which he has patented, to Ford Motor Co. engineers. The new clutch was installed in a Lincoln phaeton, and Lambert says it worked perfectly during his 3000 miles of touring, although at times he had the car running at 80 miles per hour.

Lambert denied that Ford was planning to bring out a new car, saying he visited every part of the Ford plants, including experimental laboratories at Dearborn, Mich., and that nothing in the way of a new model was being produced or contemplated.

BUICK MAKES LARGE GAINS

Buick production figures given out by H. H. Bassett, president of the Buick Motor Co., show remarkable gains for 1926 over 1925. August was the biggest month in Buick's history, as 29,155 Buick cars were built, 3954 more cars than the largest previous month, which was March, 1926, when production reached 25,401, and 45 per cent larger than in August, 1925.

During the first eight months 1925 Buick production was 136,571 cars. During the same period for 1926 production went up to 176,973 Buicks, an increase of 40,402, or 46 per cent.

"The present models are showing a demand that is making it hard for the company to meet," said Bassett. "It looks as if our production would have to be boosted up to top notch for months to finish the dealers with sufficient cars."

Power is one reason for Pontiac Six popularity

Powered by the largest six-cylinder engine used in any car costing less than $1000, the Pontiac Six exhibits a performance range entirely new in its field.

From 20% to 40% greater piston displacement than other sixes of comparable price. Power to soar up hills. Power to flash brilliantly ahead in traffic. Power to lug smoothly and steadily through mud and sand. More power than any other six at its price—and a permanent source of power too—

—for the Pontiac Six engine has a 46 lb. crankshaft, long-wearing semi-steel pistons, heavy I-beam section connecting rods, full-pressure oiling and bronze-backed interchangeable crankshaft bearings.

Beauty, comfort, economy and roadability—in all these qualities the Pontiac Six represents a decisive departure among low-priced sixes. Yet, on the basis of power in relation to wheelbase, weight and price, it ranks as the one outstanding engineering triumph of the day.

Pontiac Six, Sedan or Coupe $825. Oakland Six, companion to Pontiac Six, $1025 to $1295. All prices at factory. Easy to pay on the liberal General Motors Time Payment Plan.

ROAD BUILDING IN MISSOURI OZARKS PROGRESSING FAST

eight per county. Of these, 30 are four-team patrolmen, 16 are truck patrolmen, 13 are helpers on truck patrols and nine are tractor patrolmen. This work is supervised by seven county superintendents of maintenance.

In addition, three heavy grading units are operated during the construction season by one tractor and one grader operator per unit to open ditches, scarify, reshape and smooth State roads. These latter operate at large over the division where needed from April to December and for a longer period when weather permits.

The main traveled highway in this division is No. 16, which runs east to west across the State about 100 miles north of the Arkansas line. This highway, approximately 300 miles long, traverses the heart of the Ozarks. About 100 miles of it lies in Division No. 9.

On either side of No. 9 division construction and maintenance have kept the highway in good condition. But through the hill country of Carter, Douglass and Shannon counties, its roughness until a few years ago prevented year-round traffic over it from one end of the State to the other. Since every main north and south highway in Missouri finally intersects No. 16, the major portion of construction work in the Ozarks has been concentrated on it. Today most of it is graveled, with graded road sections found only in the uplands.

Highway No. 19, another main traveled road through southern Missouri, extending from Cuba on Federal Highway No. 50 to Thayer on the Arkansas line, is likewise rounding into such shape that soon it will be all-weather. Because of its strategic routing, this highway, when completed, bids fair to become the chief route for St. Louisans touring the Ozarks. No. 19 for the most part is still a graded earth road, but graveling contracts are monthly being let, and it should be all-gravel by the latter part of 1927.

State Highway No. 7, (Federal No. 63), is another main-traveled highway, and runs south from Jefferson City, through Rolla (on Federal No. 60) to the Arkansas line at Thayer. This highway, intersecting No. 16 at Cabool and Willow Springs, No. 17 at Raymondville, and No. 40 and No. 80 at West Plains is one of the trunk lines into the Ozarks and eventually will become a tourist feeder to the rural sections of the Ozarks because of the number of roads intersecting it. Less than one-fifth of this highway is now graded earth, most of it being graveled. In Howell county, through West Plains, it is graveled in its entirety.

Highway No. 21 has been gravel surfaced between Centerville and Ellington, a distance of 10 miles. Between Ellington and Grandin, a distance of 30 miles, it has been graded. This road eventually will be constructed all the way north to De Soto and will connect with Federal Highway No. 61 from St. Louis.

MANY FINE VIEWS ON MOTOR TRIP TO ARCADIA REGION

rocky gorge, and to Lake Killarney, a beautiful sheet of water more than a mile long that ranges in width from a couple of hundred yards to half a mile or so.

There are resorts at the lake, and lodgings in neat cabins may be obtained, though it is advisable to engage them in advance by letter or telephone. Information about Arcadia and Lake Killarney may be obtained at the Joint Touring Bureau of the Post-Dispatch and the Automobile Club of Missouri, on the ground floor of the Post-Dispatch building.

It is 100 miles or so to the lake, so the round trip is only about 200 miles. The roads are so good—concrete to Flat River, then good chat and gravel—that the tour can be made easily in a day.

But the eight or nine miles out to Tip Top on No. 21 and back is so worth while that no one visiting Arcadia should fail to take this short extension trip. The roadbed of No. 21 is fine, wide gravel as far as Glover, which is 10 miles or so beyond Arcadia. The wide-flung vistas from Tip Top have been called the finest in all Eastern Missouri, as fine as any in the State, except several in the last 15 miles of the highway from Springfield, Mo., to Lake Taneycomo.

Beyond Glover, No. 21 is very rough for 10 miles or so, then is excellent via Centerville and Ellington south to highway No. 16 near Van Buren.

REPORTS PONTIAC SIX DOES 31.5 M. P. G. FOR 1039 MILES

The Oakland Motor Car Co. reports that a Pontiac six sedan has just averaged 31.5 miles to the gallon of gasoline on a 1039-mile trip from Portland, Ore., to Boise, Idaho, and back in high gear. The company says that the car's gearshift lever was removed, that the car was locked in high gear, and that the run was officially observed and checked by a representative of the American Automobile Association. The run was nonstop and was made in 42 hours and 19 minutes, the route including 160 miles through the Blue Mountain district.

NEW ROUTE TO MOBERLY VIA COLUMBIA FAVORED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBERLY, Mo., Sept. 11.—Moberly is now 63 miles from Columbia is a motorist follows the routing recommended.

Because of bad detours on No. 7 between Moberly and Columbia, the motorist is routed to Fayette over No. 10, thence to No. 40 (formerly No. 2) then east to Columbia.

When the new hard-surfaced road is completed between Moberly and Columbia, the two places will be only 32 miles apart. An effort is being made to complete this road before winter sets in.

OVERLAND PRICES CUT IN FIGHT FOR VOLUME

Hotter Competition in Low-Priced Field and in Light Six Class Indicated.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 11.—Following a statement made by John N. Willys, president of Willys-Overland, Inc., upon his return from Europe early this week, that recent improvements in factory facilities at the plants of the organization had materially reduced manufacturing overhead and that sales had been holding up in a manner entirely unexpected at this season, a cut in prices of all Overland models was announced today. The cuts range from $40 on the Whippet sedan to $120 on the Overland six sedan de Luxe.

Whippet Sedan Under $700.

Coming at the end of what has been the largest month in volume of sales in Willys-Overland history, this price reduction is looked on as an indication that Willys-Overland is passing excess profits coming as a result of increased output on to the car buyer.

Prices of the Whippet line are dropped in the new schedule from $735 for the sedan model to a new price of $695; from $735 for the coupe model to $685.

"This brings the Whippet into a closely competitive price range with its only other competitors in the light car class with the advantage from the buyer viewpoint that it is regularly equipped at these new prices with four-wheel brakes, full balloon tires and other constructional features which are exclusive with this model in its size class,' a Willys-Overland statement says.

"The largest cut in Overland six prices has been made on the Overland six sedan de Luxe, on which the reduction is $120, from $1095 down to $975. This model at the new price has four-wheel brakes at no additional cost.

"The price of Overland six touring car has been cut $70 to a new low level of $825; the couple has been cut $70 to a new low level of $825; the two-door sedan, $100 to a new price of $835. These three models have two-wheel brakes, four-wheel brakes being furnished at an additional cost of $60.

"The new prices of the Overland six line bring all models below $1000 at the factory. The price difference between the lowest priced six on the market and the Overland, in the two-door or coach model, is negligible despite the fact that the general dimensions and specifications of the Overland make it the largest car in its general size class.

"No changes have been made in the prices of Willys-Knight models built by the same manufacturer.

"It has been known in the trade for some time that sales of all Overland models have exceeded the original factory specifications and that production has been steadily stepped up since the first of the year. It also has been known that Willys-Overland has set high aims as they relate to quantity output and that all manufacturing and sales plans have been laid with the idea of keeping prices down to the lowest levels consistent with profitable operation.

"The new prices of the Overland models, however, have gone to a lower level than anyone in the industry has anticipated in view of the fact that numerous mechanical improvements have been made in the Overland six models in the past four months and that the original prices of the Whippet models were reported as surprisingly low in view of the constructional features of this light car.

"They came as a boomerang in face of the apparently authoritative statement, given out earlier in the week from other trade sources, that prices had reached a low level which apparently would remain sttaionary for some time to come."

The situation created by the Whippet price cut indicates a strong bid by Willys-Overland for large volume in the light car field.

"There is also room for speculative interest in the hotly competitive field of light sixes with the new prices on the Overland six, especially as this car reached second place in sales among all light sixes in its first year.

It is reported that Willys-Overland is aiming at sales of 100,000 cars, Overland and Willys-Knight included, between now and the end of the year. This would place sales for the year over $5,000 in excess of the best previous year in the history of the organization.

Standardized Quality

makes FINER PERFORMANCE and LONGER LIFE

Mechanically Inevitable

in the

CHRYSLER "60"

You can readily recognize that it would hardly be reasonable to expect the performance and endurance qualities of the lighter, lower-priced six, Chrysler "60" in cars produced under old traditions of engineering and old standards of manufacture.

For the Chrysler "60" is the product of Standardized Quality—a new and higher order of manufacture which actually makes any deviation from its exacting and superior standards mechanically impossible.

Obviously, because the Chrysler "60" is a car produced under such a plan, quality is built in and the Chrysler "60" must therefore also stand up immeasurably better under the strain of hard service.

Sixty miles, and more, per hour; get-away of 5 to 25 miles in 7¾ seconds; gas economy of 22 miles and more per gallon; characteristic Chrysler beauty; astonishing riding ease and roadability; the safety of Chrysler four-wheel hydraulic brakes; oil-filter and air-cleaner; full pressure lubrication; seven-bearing crankshaft; impulse neutralizer; road levelizers front and rear; roomy, luxurious bodies.

Come in and see the new lighter six, Chrysler "60". Drive it—get the thrill of its smooth performance and comfort, then compare it with any low-priced lighter six-cylinder of ordinary manufacture. We are confident you'll be convinced that nowhere will you find a six at its price that can begin to compare with this great Chrysler achievement.

All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax.

Superior Performance Results from Superior Manufacturing

The Chrysler plan of Quality Standardization differs from, and is superior to, ordinary manufacturing practice and methods, because it demands fixed and inflexible quality standards which enforce the same scrupulously close limits—the same rigid rule of engineering exactness—the same absolute accuracy and precision of alignment and assemblage—in the measurement, the machining and the manufacturing of every part, practice and process in four lines of Chrysler cars—"50", "60", "70" and Imperial "80".

MICHIGAN PLANS WIDE ROAD ON LAKE SHORE

To Build 40-Foot Highway From Indiana Line to Holland.

West Michigan is to have a 40-foot highway along the Lake Michigan shore line from Indiana State line to Holland, it is announced by the Michigan and Resort Association. The new route is to be a relocation of the West Michigan pike, M-11. Survey work commenced Monday on the first link, between Holland and Saugatuck. State surveyors are now seeking right-of-way and studying scenery for the best route.

From Holland southwest to Saugatuck the new road will run straight to correct such conditions as the ten corners that the motorist has to turn in leaving Saugatuck for Holland. This section will be concreted in 1927. Relocation work is also commencing on M-11 between Sawyer and Stevensville, and 12 miles of this road will be worked on this year.

The relocation between Benton Harbor and South Haven will take the motorist through Riverside. The Glen-to-Saugatuck relocation will be rushed as rapidly as possible.

To hurry the shore line road for the tourist, the State plans to finish 20-foot construction work on the whole highway and then immediately double its width.

STUTZ "SAFETY WEEK" OBSERVANCE BEGINS TODAY

A "safety week" is being observed by Stutz car distributers throughout this country, beginning today. The Benjamin Motor Co., Stutz distributer, will hold open house today at its showrooms, 3021 Locust boulevard, and special demonstrations of the new Stutz will be given to all. Monday is to be "club day," and invitations have been sent to members of the Kiwanis, Rotary, Optimists and other organizations. Demonstrations Tuesday are to be for members of th police force. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday are to be "chauffeurs' day," "ladies' day" and Boy Scouts' day," respectively. Saturday again is to be for the general public. The idea was inspired by the fact that the Stutz, with its low center of gravity, its nonshatterable glass and other features, is known as the "safety car."

Do you invite substitution by the way you ask for oil?

IMPORTANT

PROBABLY no motorists are so intent on getting the oil they ask for as those who use Mobiloil. They are convinced that no other oil offers quite the same efficiency, and that many oils are grossly inferior.

But let's see what happens.

Sometimes, in buying, the motorist asks for—"E," "Arctic," "A," etc., which are grades of Mobiloil. He doesn't mention Mobiloil at all! That is one way to invite substitution.

In other cases the motorist sees the Mobiloil sign. He assumes that Mobiloil is the only oil carried. So he asks simply for "a quart of oil" on the assumption that it will be Mobiloil. The dealer may assume that he doesn't care what oil he gets and so supply him with some other product.

A third type is the man who simply asks for Mobiloil—without adding the grade wanted. His own carelessness about getting the correct grade may breed a like carelessness on the part of the dealer. Thus, for example, a car which ought to use Mobiloil "A" may be supplied with Mobiloil "Arctic."

To avoid substitution

So we urge this: Look at the brief Chart of Recommendations printed here. Note the grade of Mobiloil specified for your automobile. If your car is not listed, see the complete Chart at the Mobiloil dealers' listed below—or write or telephone to the Vacuum Oil Company.

Know the correct grade of Mobiloil for the engine of your car—Mobiloil "E," Mobiloil "Arctic," Mobiloil "A," Mobiloil "BB" or Mobiloil "B," and for the transmission or differential—Mobiloil "C" or "CC." Always ask for the oil by full name, including the grade.

In any case where substitution is suspected, look for the word Mobiloil and the red Gargoyle trademark on the container from which the oil is drawn.

MAKE THIS CHART YOUR GUIDE

THE correct grades of Gargoyle Mobiloil for engine lubrication of prominent passenger cars are specified below.

The grades of Gargoyle Mobiloil are indicated by the letters E, A, BB, B, shown below. "Arc" means Gargoyle Mobiloil Arctic.

Follow winter recommendations when temperatures from 32°F (freezing) to 0° F (zero) prevail. Below zero use Gargoyle Mobiloil Arctic (except Ford Cars, use Gargoyle Mobiloil "E").

If your car is not listed here, see the complete Mobiloil Chart at your dealer's.

CHEVROLET BUSY PUSHING PLANT ENLARGING PROGRAM

Preparing facilities for manufacturing 1000 more cars per day in 1927, the Chevrolet Motor Co. is proceeding rapidly with additions to its plants and equipment in the United States, under the $10,000,000 expansion program announced recently.

The addition to the huge motor plant at Flint is now well under way. A building 206 feet by 124 feet is under construction to increase production at the Toledo transmission plant. The heat treat department of the Bay City small parts plant is being enlarged.

In Detroit, the building known as General Motors Truck Co. plant No. 7 has been purchased for manufacturing axles and small parts and will be merged with the gear and axle plant.

New buildings and erection of 37 steam forging hammers at the Detroit forge plant will make this one of the largest forging centers in the United States.

Chevrolet factories at Cincinnati, Janesville and St. Louis will be extensively enlarged. Fisher body plants at these cities are to be augmented, providing manufacturing facilities for 750,000 closed bodies and 250,000 open models. A proportionate increase in employes will follow completion of these plant additions.

ITALY HAS 53-MILE TOLL ROAD

Milan lakes motor road, an ultra-modern highway of 53 miles in Italy, is operated by the builders. Tolls vary from 15 lire for cars to 17 horsepower to 20 lire for cars up to 26 horsepower, for about 50 miles. Rates differ according to the length of the trip.

SALE OF 180-H. P. CAR, MADE BY DAIMLER, IN U. S. PLANNED BY JOHN N. WILLYS

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.

A PLAN to have a new Daimler car, with 180-horsepower Knight sleeve-valve motor, sold in this country by the Sterns-Knight organization, has been brought back from Europe by John N. Willys, head of Willys-Overland, Inc., who recently obtained control of the Stearns-Knight factory. The Stearns-Knight company is preparing to bring out its own new model with Knight engine, worm rear drive and many luxury features.

"Although I am positive that the lightweight car is the car for the future, at the same time there is a demand for a limited numbr of big, extra powerful and luxurious motor cars," said Willys. "To meet this demand, I am bringing back to the Stearns Motor Co., in which I have a large interest, a proposition which will give it the exclusive sale in America of a new Daimler car, with Knight sleeve-valve motor of 180-horsepower, the most powerful stock car ever built. This car is to be shown for the first time at the salon in Paris and the Olympia in London next month.

"This car has most powerful brakes and, in addition, a new mechanism that makes it possible to stop the car quickly at any speed by the pressure of one finger. It is the most luxurious car built, and will be very popular with the few who are able and willing to spend $17,500 for a motor car."

GENERAL MANAGER OF A. A. A. TO VISIT ST. LOUIS SEPT. 20

Ernest N. Smith, general manager of the American Automobile Association, is to arrive in St. Louis Sept. 20, en route to the conference of Western automobile clubs affiliated with the American Automobile Association, at Salt Lake City, Sept. 24. Smith will confer with Matt F. Morse, general manager of the Automobile Club of Missouri, and inspect the various departments of the state organization.

Smith will be accompanied by Elmer Jenkins, director of the National Touring Board of the A. A. A., and will drive the Cadillac automobile used last year by President Henry of the A. A. A. in making his high-speed transcontinental run.

On his return trip to the A. A. A. headquarters at Washington it is expected that Smith will again stop at St. Louis to address the Board of Governors of the Automobile Club of Missouri.

In a letter several days ago to Morse, Smith said the trip from Washington to Salt Lake City would be a day and night driving and that he expected to make the run in four days.

YOU will find those very features upon which you most insist, developed to their fullest in the great new line of Cadillac cars.

If you emphasize power and speed—you have the actual comparative tests with all the finest cars of Europe and America. The results show Cadillac to be one of the fastest stock cars in the world.

If you place beauty foremost—the Cadillac holds irresistible appeal not only in distinguished, rich luxury, but even more because, with 50 Body Styles and Types and 500 Color and Upholstery combinations, it has completely individualized the motor car.

If you insist that your car be a sound investment value—compare the Cadillac in what it is and what it does and the way it does it—compare it in first cost and in after costs and in re-sale value.

Outselling all other cars at or above its price—two to one—Cadillac today appeals to the family of moderate income from the standpoint of sound management, quite as much as it does, through sheer excellence, to those whose purchasing power is without practical limitation.

'HONEYMOON SPECIAL' IS AUTO SHOW EXHIBIT

Motor Camping Chandler Car, Designed by St. Louisan, Returns From Eastern Tour.

The Chandler "Honeymoon Special," which probably has attracted more attention throughout the United States than any other single automotive product of St. Louis, has returned from a tour of the East, and is to be seen in the Chandler display at the automobile show of the Greater St. Louis Exposition. This car, with its complete motor camping equipment, was designed and built by Henry Rottersmann, vice president of the Cleveland Motor Sales Co., wholesale distributer of Chandler cars in Southern Illinois and Eastern Missouri. Its exhibition at the St. Louis Exposition is also sponsored by the Lewis Automobile Co., retail distributer of Chandler cars in St. Louis and St Louis County.

Since it was first displayed at the St. Louis Automobile Show last spring, this "Honeymoon Special" has traveled more than 60,000 miles and has been exhibited at most of the important automobile shows, as well as in Cincinnati, Buffalo, Cleveland, Columbus, Toledo, Rochester, N. Y.; Baltimore and as far south as Nashville and Memphis.

The "Honeymoon Special" is quite similar to any other Chandler special six coupe from the outside. In the interior, however, a surprise awaits. Even the most casual inspection reveals the fact that the entire turtle back lifts on hinges, bringing into view a hair-stuffed mattress and wool blankets—a real bed which can be made ready for use by three moves, in less than three minutes.

The shower bath at the rear actually works. It has a 15-gallon reservoir for water with an air-pressure tank which can be filled by a hand tire pump. By releasing a valve, the air forces the water into either the shower or wash basin, whichever is desired.

In the right door is a writing desk. The left door contains a convertible dressing room, 32 inches square. A peep into the front part of the car shows a medicine cabinet completely equipped. On the instrument board, a five-tube radio set is mounted. Overhead, in the rear corner, there is a built-in cabinet containing a loud speaker. A waterproof case contains dishes, cooking utensils, a stove, and food compartments.

A TIMELY SUGGESTION

This is the best period of the year in which to make improvements in the antenna system, especially to get good results throughout the summer and to better the records in the fall and winter when the signals from distant points are stronger. As a suggestion, try shifting the direction of the antenna just to compare results. Sometimes this change makes quite a difference—and the comparison of results will be very interesting. When overhauling the antenna system be sure to clean off the insulator. The grime with which insulators are fairly sure to be covered is a high-resistance conductor of electrical currents, consisting essentially of carbon. This means that some current, at least, is leaking across the insulators if they are dirty. If this is the case, the antenna system cannot approach its normal efficiency because some of the energy which it absorbs is being carried away from it to the antenna instead of traveling down the lead-in wire to the set. If insulators of fiber with an unpolished surface are used, replace them with glass ones or with porcelain ones which have a highly glazed surface. Insulators of this kind not only refuse to absorb dirt and moisture, but they are also much easier to clean. Soap and water with a soft brush will do the trick. If the antenna wire is badly corroded it should be replaced.

Use for Worn-Out Battery.

A worn-out dry battery is good to burn in coal furnaces. In addition to burning rapidly, it acts as a cleaner for the flue, as the burning chemicals in the battery form a composition of gases which reacts upon the soot in the pipes.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The NAFR RADIO CORPORATION of 110 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo., takes pleasure in announcing to the public in general and more particularly to those of the public interested in radio exclusive license to manufacture the "Slocumb Resonator," a phenomenal new radio receiver, the invention of a St. Louisan patented January 5, 1926. It is a new radical departure both in construction and operation from that of any receiver now on the market. Its performance has amazed radio engineers throughout the country.

The receiver has carried by automobile over 10,000 miles in the United States and operated each night under different conditions during the past 3 years. It was taken into the greatest cities of the United States and into some of the greatest radio laboratories and successfully operated with the selectivity approached only by one specially designed laboratory instrument.

We are not engaged in a mass production program; on the contrary, each receiver is placed on the test board with the original invention and must perform as well as or out perform it before receiving the approval of our engineering department as being ready for delivery.

The operation of the set will prove a source of continual delight and astonishment to the beginner in radio as well as to the expert technical engineer.

The Receiver is on display for your inspection at

WINTER SYMPHONIES TO BE BROADCAST

Two New York Organizations and One in Boston, Have Been Signed Up.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The leading symphony orchestras of the country, at one time rather unfriendly to the microphone, have discovered interesting and profitable fields in the ether, according to advance announcements of programs for the coming winter.

Already engaged for a series of radio concerts are the New York philharmonic orchestra, the New York symphony orchestra and the Boston symphony. The last two organizations in addition to finding a wider audience than they could hope for in the concert hall or auditorium, will receive financial remuneration by playing under the banner of good-will advertisers.

The New York symphony orchestra, directed by Walter Damrosch, will offer a series of educational performances, the bill for which will be paid by a Chicago manufacturing concern. The series will be broadcast through a chain of stations headed by WEAF New York.

The Boston symphony will be heard from station WBZ and other Eastern broadcasters and, it is understood, will play under the auspices of a New England manufacturer. Other stations are expected to join WBZ for these concerts.

The New York Philharmonic Society, whose summer concerts were heard through the Radio Corporation-General Electric network during the summer, has consented to the installation of microphones for the winter concerts, which will begin in a short time. These concerts also will be broadcast by WJZ and allied stations. It is also understood that the Chicago symphony orchestra and other symphonic organizations are considering plans for the broadcasting of winter performances, either free or charge, or when possible, for an additional financial remuneration.

The thirty-fourth and thirty-fifth links to the mammoth broadcasting chain that will distribute the entertainment program at the third annual Radio Industries banquet were added today by the inclusion of stations WHO Des Moines, and KXBR, the Warner Brothers portable broadcaster, in the network. The number of stations that will participate in the broadcast now exceeds by six the record tie-up of the past. Plans are also being considered for the rebroadcasting of the program if possible by the use of short waves on the Pacific Coast. The program will be offered the night of Sept. 15.

SECRET RADIO TELEPHONY

A patent on a means of "secret radiant telephony" has just been issued to John Hayes Hammond, Jr. of Gloucester, Mass., the inventor of a method of controlling mobile bodies by radio. It is understood that the method is based upon variable high frequency oscillations, periodically controlled, and unintelligible except when picked up on special receiving apparatus. The system apparently will lend itself to military uses, if it is not found adaptable to use some future general radio-phone system.

RADIO FOR AMATEUR AND EXPERT

INDIANA AMATEUR MAKES FINE RECORD

Maintains Almost Nightly Communication With Ship in the Arctic Regions.

A record both in arctic radio transmission and reception seems likely to be established by station VOQ, aboard the schooner Morrissey of the American Museum expedition, through contacts established 2800 miles away with station 9ACP, operated by 19-year-old Winston Miller, of Hammond, Ind. Since late in July, when the Morrissey reached a point of 130 miles north of Etah, Greenland, 600 miles north of the arctic circle, VOQ has been in almost nightly communication with Miller. Her messages Miller reports, not only come through clearly and without interference, but she is able to receive with apparent ease all communications sent by him. It was through Miller's station that the story of the Morrissey's near disaster, when she was held for three days on a submerged rock at the mouth of Hale Sound, off Northumberland Island, reached the outside world.

So clearly, Miller says, do the signals from VOQ come through that they are at times audible 15 feet from the headphones. This fact in transmission is credited to the unusual efficiency of the special short wave radio equipment built for the Morrissey through the co-operation of A. Atwater Kent, of Philadelphia.

"Communication with the Morrissey, both sending and receiving," Miller states, "has been very reliable. The first night I found the signals of VOQ was July 23, at exactly 10 p. m., Eastern standard time. I waited on his wave for a chance to call him when I thought he would be tuning his receiver looking for calls from the United States. At 10:20 p. m. I called and at 10:22 I had him. The Morrissey was then 730 miles south of Etah, near Cape York. I took her messages that first night, one of which was a 500-word press message.

"Every night since then that we have been one to work each other, with one exception, the contact has been good. On a three-tube receiver the signals at times are audible 15 feet from the headphones."

Young Miller seems in fair way to qualify for the prize promised the radio amateur who maintained most effective contact with the expedition. He has been a "bug" since the age of 12, when he joined the American Radio Relay League. His station was one of the few American stations to qualify 100 per cent in the transmission of a specially assigned 500-word test message to Australia, in the recent reliability tests conducted by the Australian Radio Relay League.

ATWATER KENT DEALERS HOLD TRADE CONVENTION

Interesting Talks on Radio Topicsp With Attractive Entertainment Features.

A feeling of optimism, reaching a high degree, was the outcome of the third annual convention of Atwater Kent dealers held for two days in St. Louis recently. The factory was represented by H. T. Stockholm and Messrs. Kester and Pigeon. New models were shown, and trade matters discussed with a number of dealers in the St. Louis territory. Representatives of the Pooley Manufacturing Co., makers of cabinets, the Philadelphia Storage Battery Co., the National Carbon Co. and the Bankers-Commercial Security Co., with a plan for financing time payments, gave interesting trade talks.

Progress in the making of B eliminators was explained by a representative of the Grigsby-Grunow-Hinds company, and the subject of wet battery chargers was discussed by a representative of the King Manufacturing Co.

A luncheon and banquet, with attractive entertainment features, was arranged by the Brown & Hall Supply Co., territorial distributors, under whose auspices the general convention was held.

Ready for Winter
A thrifty car for busy men

The business or professional man's car must be built

1. To be moderate in initial outlay and low in upkeep.
2. To provide comfortable transportation in all kinds of weather.
3. To be on the job constantly.
4. To last a long, long time.

Reo, America's longest lasting car, meets these needs—with room to spare—in its Coupe.

What Long Life Means in a Business Car

The business man's car must stand persistent day-in and day-out use.

It must stand all kinds of weather—long hours in rain or cold—yet start quickly. It must be ready when wanted—not off in some repair shop while valuable hours slip by.

Yet no car is watched more closely for operating economy than is a business car.

It must show up well in the engineer's or cost accountant's reports.

Built to Keep Upkeep Down

Here the busy man finds freedom from repair troubles; alert strength for long, hard runs; nimble ease for threading tangled traffic; and quiet good taste—essential for business or professional use.

Reo is so designed that vital units are quickly and easily "get-at-able," adjustments and replacements are made without tearing down connecting units.

Reo is built of tested materials—every part on every Reo is individually tested—so that wear and the necessity for repairs is remarkably low.

Come in and check over the points where Reo saves you time and money when repairs are needed.

No American car—not even the most costly ones—lasts as long as Reo.

And in this long life, this proven stamina under any and all conditions, lies Reo's superiority as a car for the steady grind of business use.

Three Added Years to Use or Sell

Statistical studies have proved that Reo outlives the average American car by three years.

This means that the business user can split his depreciation—the largest single item of automobile costs—over more years, making costs less per year. Or it means that the resale value of his Reo is increased accordingly, if he sells rather than uses this additional life.

A Quality Buy at Moderate Price

The average of published prices for all other six-cylinder Coupes of Reo's size is $2,485. Reo beats this by $990.

The average price of all six-cylinder Coupes, of all sizes is $2,854. Reo beats this by $1,327.

And with this saving in initial outlay, you are buying longest life.

And It Is Light

Reo combines long life with light weight. This Reo Coupe is the lightest six-cylinder American Coupe of its size—325 pounds lighter than the average of others of its size—388 pounds lighter than the average for all six-cylinder coupes.

Its lightness, combined with its sturdiness, is another guarantee of low operating costs and easy riding.

Lasting Good Looks

Visit your Reo dealer today. Note the unostentatious charm of this Coupe.

It's a car that the business executive or the salesman, the doctor or the engineer can be proud to be seen in. And because of its inherent good taste, it will remain so.

For the man who wants a second car—a personal car—the qualities which make the Reo Coupe the best business buy commend it to him—moderate first cost, low upkeep, long life, and good looks.

Drive this Reo Coupe—feel its ease and agility, on its full balloon tires.

It will give you driving comfort in any weather for years to come.

Early Productions As Usual, Find Little Favor in New York

New Plays, at This Season of the Year, Are as a Rule Pretty Terrible Affairs—'Sour Grapes,' the New Alice Brady Offering, Described as Hollow Rubbish.

By ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.

ANY weekly chronicle of the theater in New York is bound to sound querulous and hard to please in this opening month of the season. It is not because the scribes are irritable on such sweltering nights or because they resent any more than the next man the enforced absence from the wind-swept hillsides and the cool, inviting beaches. It is because, almost without exception, the new plays at this season of the year are, in a word, terrible.

Between the acts, the wilting first-nighters cluster morosely on the sidewalk and groan in unison. Each time someone has been sure to accost me thus:

"Did you ever know such a run of bum plays, Mr. W.?"

To which, after a blank interval left to create the illusion of reflection, I invariably reply:

"Yes."

This is generally staggering in its effect.

"In heaven's name, when?"

"Well," I make answer, "there was in 1925. Then the August and September plays in 1924 were no great shakes. Also in 1923. And——"

But thus easily does one win the reputation for being a tedious optimist that the despondent ones goes on his way at this and I can turn to the next man who is just waiting for a chance to say:

"Isn't this just about the worst season you ever saw?"

As a matter of fact, any established producer who has a play in which he has any faith whatsoever, books it for production later on in the fall, when the more chronic theatergoers will be back in town and the nights will be cool. Then the fly-by-night unknown quantities among the plays will find it difficult to get a hearing, so crowded will be the theaters, so preempted the stages. These must come in when they can, which means August and early September. They are the little cousins of the old supper acts in the continuous vaudeville of yesteryear—the unwelcome, discouraged acts which used to be coldly allotted the dinner hour on the program, in the knowledge that there would be only a handful of patrons in the house anyway and in the faint hope that these could thereby be persuaded to vacate their seats before the evening rush set in.

FOR the past dozen years I have been attending the theaters on Broadway in these late summer weeks and out of 200 plays thus faithfully examined, perhaps three proved worth a grownup's attention for a whole evening. That is, if anything, a reckless estimate and I should give way at once if any disputatious person were to defy me to name the three. Yet on next Monday night, when the stroke of 8:29 finds me back in my seat, I will be asked, at intervals of 10 minutes or thereabouts, whether I have ever known such a season of terrible plays.

Time was, of course, when Labor day found most of the playhouses still dark, the facades black, the auditoriums spectral and shrouded and mute. In those days the season was not regarded as officially open until, after dining at Delmonico's or the old Cafe Martin, one hailed a hansom and clop-clopped over to the Empire to see John Drew in whatever mannerly new comedy Mr. Frohman had unearthed for him in London that summer. The latter-day disposition to turn on the lamps in August has come from the increasing swarm of buyers who choke the hotels in this season of the year and who, having seen Mr. Ziegfeld's revue and Mr. White's "Scandals," and having looked in on "Abie's Irish Rose" to see if it was one bit better than the production which ran so long in their own town, have still a few spare evenings unspent and a few remaining dollars unaccountably overlooked by the ticket speculators.

YOU could, however, find no more distinctive evidence of the change in the customs and standards of the theater than in the news that when the Empire does reopen a fortnight hence, the House of Frohman will present on the stage where Maude Adams used to play "Peter Pan," the eventful and engrossing play from Paris which is called "La Prisonniere." It is the first play about degeneracy to find or even seek a hearing in the theater of our time, though covert scenes dealing in gingerly fashion with eroticism have been attempted ere this.

This is a stern, dispassionate play about a girl whose secret life so arouses the solicitous suspicions of her friends and her folks that they explore all Paris to learn what lover has captured her, only to make the discovery that it is no man at all but a woman who holds her in thrall.

ONCE upon a time Arthur Hopkins wrote a memorable essay on play-reading which bore the title "How's Your Second Act?" wherein he argued that it was on the strength of the middle scene in any three-act play that a new piece stood or fell. Events along Broadway tend to remind the wary that it is just as well to have a tolerably good last act, too, while one is about it. This month I have seen three fairly promising plays wither and collapse in act three.

Of these, the most striking case is the piece "Sour Grapes," written by Vincent Lawrence and played for the first time here on Monday night with Alice Brady in the central role. Mr. Lawrence has a genius for dramatic dialogue. He can jump nimbly out of the frying pan of rubber-stamp speech without ever falling into the fire of suggesting someone slumming among the dialects of the common people. I never heard truer talk on the stage than he can write and does write in many scenes of his new piece. At the end of its taut, true and telling first act, I thought a good play had, by some miscalculation, come into town ahead of its due time. But after the third I knew I had been to see a

CIVIC MUSIC LEAGUE WILL OFFER FIVE ATTRACTIONS

The Civic Music League, now in its third season, announces for 1926-27 five attractions, including Luella Melius, coloratura soprano, Chicago and Ravinia Opera and San Francisco Opera companies, who opens the season at the Odeon Tuesday evening, Oct. 26. The second recital will be by Lauritz Melchior, Danish tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Tuesday evening, Nov. 9. He is a newcomer to St. Louis, it being the Civic League's policy each season to introduce at least two new people. Third on the list is Guimar Novaes, Brazilian pianist, Thursday evening, Jan. 6.

On Thursday evening Jan. 26, the Minneapolis Orchestra of 82 men, Henri Verbrugghen conductor, will play a repeat engagement, the success of the Minneapolis forces last season, resulting in numerous requests from the members of the league for a return concert. The concluding number for the league will be the Denishawn Dancers, with Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn at the Odeon, Tuesday evening, Feb. 15. The Denishawn Dancers with programs of ballets and divertissements are familiar figures in St. Louis.

"Legit" Stage To Get Late Start Here

Shubert-Rialto Not to Open Until October 3 While American Will Begin With a Motion Picture—Movies and High Costs Are Blamed.

THE coming legitimate—so called—theatrical season in St. Louis will get a late start this fall. That much is certain. In addition the year of drama and musical comedies is likely to be an exceedingly short one. The Shubert-Rialto, the first of the two playhouses to open, has no show scheduled until Oct. 3, when a Shubert "Artists and Models" company arrives at the Grand avenue house. The American will start off with a motion picture, "Ben Hur," on Oct. 10, and the picture magnates expect to run it for four or five weeks at advanced prices. This will postpone the regular opening of the dramatic season of the American until the middle of November.

The New York managers are not producing any great number of plays to send on the road, and in all probability the middle of April will find the two local theaters "Closed for the Summer." The movies and the high cost of production, coupled with high railroad fares and increased orchestra and stage hand charges is blamed by the powers that be in New York for the curtailing of road shows, but while fewer shows will be sent out it seems logical to hope that those few will be ones of high quality for there is very little drawing power today in dramatic shows of the poorer quality. The audiences to whom the below-the-average play might appeal, have taken to the picture houses, while the flood of poor movies has made the discriminating class of theatergoers more discriminating than ever.

The Advancing Prices.

IN NEW YORK the new productions are rushing to town, the good one with the bad, the potential hits with the potential failures, and the certain successes with those which at best can only be vaguely classified as unpredictable. The various trends of the imminent season cannot yet be forecast with any certainty. This may be a Czecho-Slovakian year or it may just be a big season for nudes and dramas dealing with the home life of Waterloo (Ia.) hardware merchants. At this early date but one fact seems established, and that affects the person who usually gets the worst of it, the man in the street.

There, will, it appears, be very few attractions in New York this season for which a lesser sum than $3.30 will be charged for the orchestra seats, so definitely, indeed, is this becoming a fixed price for theater tickets that a valedictory over the passing of the $2.75 seat is in order, although it must be said that there is little competition among the producing managers for the position of class orator.

Gone Are the Days.

Some shows will, of course, continue to go their merry way at $2.20 or a $2.75 maximum charge, and during the course of their run pile up a profit that will cause less fortunate managers to wonder if, after all, their rates are not too high. But, as the $3.30 price seems likely to prevail in a majority of instances and as there is almost never a revision downward in the theater, or in anything else for that matter, once a charge has been established, it seems likely that by the end of the season the graybeards will begin to recall when paying but $5.50 for a good pair of seats was away downtown.

Agitation for and against the increasing price of theater tickets has been periodic and involved the managers in long discussions reported at almost equal length in the newspapers. In the late '90s the rates were raised from $1.50 to $2, but a nation which survived the Spanish-American War managed to muddle through. The happy days when $2 would buy the best seat in the house outlived the World War, and the accompanying price inflation—for until 1919, according tto William McBride, who as head of a theater ticket agency is well versed in the statistics of the case, that charge was standard, and only once in a while did a big show have the temerity to demand more.

On the Way Up.

IN April, 1920, Charles Dillingham announced that he would ask a top price of $5 for the Fred Stone show he was preparing, and that started another extended controversy as to the advisability of higher prices, in the course of which one manager with many houses under his control announced that the whole idea was a joke and that producers who contemplated such an advance would simply be killing the well-

BEHIND THE SCREENS

A DEAL is under way between Skouras Brothers and Warner Brothers, of New York, whereby the Capitol Theater downtown would become the home of the Warner Vitaphone Talking Pictures in St. Louis. It will present first, according to present plans the John Barrymore picture, "Don Juan," in connection with the Vitaphone which has proven to be a decided novelty in New York. It is understood that the admission prices will run as high as $3 and the joint management expects the little Capitol to become a long-run house. In addition to the Vitaphone furnishing the conversation which goes with the picture play, it also "plays the picture" with music by a large orchestra, provides organ music and gives an entire concert program between pictures, thus doing away with the house orchestra and organist—a matter which still has to be taken up with the local musicians' union. When this matter of the immediate future of the Capitol is settled it is understood that the Grand Central Theater will be under the direction of William Goldman and will play first run pictures other than First National and Paramount, probably Warners', Fox's and Universal's. The Kings Theater will then become a second run house playing films after the Grand avenue houses.

There soon will be in course of construction inside and in the vicinity of the Berlin studios of Ufa a German motion picture based on incidents of the World War which, it is confidently hoped, will constitute as impressive a treatment of the subject as did "The Big Parade." The story has not been determined upon, but the Ufa management is searching the field for the best script. In fact, the company is encouraging even original story writers to submit to them ideas or sketches of plots which might be available. It has not been decided as to whether the play will be of the usual romantic design or a simple, straightforward narrative bringing out the German side of the conflict.

The Fox Films organization has taken over the rights to the last play written by the late Clyde Fitch, "The City," and will place it in production within a few weeks. May Allison, Janet Gaynor, Walter McGrail and Robert Frazier have been chosen as leading players. This was presented here on the spoken stage after the playwright's death and made a success.

One hears that one of the leading American producing-distributing companies of New York has been interested in Ufa's amazing subject, "Secrets of the Soul." It is considered likely that this impressive study of psychoanalysis may be taken over and exhibited as a special, the belief being that although its mood is serious and its romantic aspect somewhat minimized it contains a message of sufficiently universal appeal to make it a financial as well as an artistic success. This view is shared, incidentally, by numerous individuals who have seen the picture.

John Barrymore, on the coast, will begin work within two or three days as Villon, and not in the Cellini role which was to have been the next characterization of Rudolph Valentino. The title of the Barrymore picture is "The Vagabond Lover." It is to be made on the Fairbanks-Pickford lots with Alan Crosland directing.

Work is being rushed at the Marshall Neilan studios on "Everybody's Acting." This picture is scheduled for an early November release. Headed by Betty Bronson, the cast includes Ford Sterling, Louise Dresser, Raymond Hitchcock, Henry Walthall, Lawrence Gray, Stuart Holmes, Edward Martindel, Jocelyn Lee, Jed Prouty and Philo McCullough.

Priscilla Dean has started work on "Jewels of Desire" at the Metropolitan Studio under the direction of Paul Powell. This is an original story by Agnes Parsons and many of the exterior scenes will be filmed on the Santa Cruz Islands. John Bowers is appearing opposite the star, with Luke Cosgrave, Ernie Adams and Walter Long in major supporting roles.

Louis Payne, husband of Mrs. Leslie Carter, celebrated stage star now living in retirement in Hollywood, plays an important role in "The Yankee Clipper," Rupert Julian's current production at the De Mille Studio. Payne and Burr McIntosh, who is also appearing in this picture, are working together for the first time in more than 30 years. In 1893 the two were members of the same stock company and their paths had not crossed again until they met on "The Yankee Clipper" set.

Patsy Ruth Miller, who suffered a nervous breakdown two weeks ago will, when fully recovered, start work in an Inspiration picture as leading lady opposite Richard Barthelmess. Miss Miller has been loaned by Warners to that company for the one picture, after which she will again resume her work at the Warner studio. It had been intended to start work last week on "What Happened to Father", in which Miss Miller is scheduled for a featured role. When she was stricken it was decided to postpone production on this picture until later in the season.

Clara Bow, hailed as queen of the flappers, has grown up. She is now a full-fledged star. The picture that will mark her elevation to stardom will be Elinor Glyn's "It," scheduled to go into production October 1.

Ward Crane has been engaged as the latest addition to the cast to support Corinne Griffith in "The Lady in Ermine," a screen version of the operetta of the same title, that goes into production next week under the direction of James Flood. Crane will be seen in the new film as a crown prince of Italy and will share the principal male supporting roles with Einar Hanson and Francis X. Bushman.

Richard Barthelmess has joined the shekspranks of Celluloidia in his current production, "The White Sheep," which Sidney Olcott is directing for First National. Dick has a beard which he has been nursing for four weeks and it is the envy of the extras who participate in the mob scenes laid in Asia Minor. This is the first time Dick has appeared in a role with an Oriental background.

First scenes of "The Blonde Saint," Marion Fairfax's picturization of Stephen Whitman's novel, "The Isle of Life," with Svend Gade directing and Lewis Stone and Doris Kenyon as the stars, were taken last week on Emerald Bay, not far from Laguna, Cal. Besides Stone and Miss Kenyon, the cast has Ann Rork, Cesare Gravina, Gilbert Roland, Malcolm Denny, Albert Conti, Fino Corrado, Mario Carillo, Rosita Marstini, Lillian Langdon, Gertrude Norman, Lolita Lee, Vadim Uraneff, Sidney Jarvis, Toto Ducrow, Gilbert Clayton, Wilfred North, W. K. Norton and Robert Hale.

known goose that laid the golden egg.

Since that time prices have been taking a steady upward course, until the $5.50 charge is now more or less standard in the case of big musical attractions and revues, which for their openings have, in the past few years, asked all the way from $11 to $100 a seat.

No end to this trend is foreseen by the various managers and ticket agents; no end, that is, unless the public simply rebels and, by staying away in droves, forces a reduction. But New Yorkers are only one of the elements in the theater-going public, and the out-of-towners, the managers quaintly seem to think, will stand for the higher prices.

Mounting Costs.

THERE are, of course, many valid and entirely sound economic reasons for the increases, and they have been set forth so often that even the most casual reader of the public prints is familiar with them. It is true that the increases in prices have been in no way proportionate to the tremendous advance in production costs, theater rentals, guarantees and all the myriad items that enter into the presentation of a show on Broadway.

One factor which has made for the increased prices stamped on the face of tickets is the growing power of the cut-rate agencies in New York. During the course of a season there are many entertainments which manage, nay, even plan, to exist almost entirely on the funds derived from this medium. These agencies, as is generally known, buy the tickets outright from the managers at less than half their face value. On each $3.30 ticket which a manager disposes of to a cut-rate agency he can obtain 25 cents more than on each $2.75 seat, and these quarters have a way of mounting into dollars. For this reason the prices are sometimes advanced on a show that is far from being a hit, but depends almost entirely on the cut-rates for patronage.

McBride is of the belief that low prices are, in themselves, an inducement to the theatergoers, no matter what the show. Only a certain number of attractions in every season are "smash hits," and consequently in such demand that people will pay any price to see them. The others have to fight it out for patronage, and a low price is naturally an inducement for selling seats at the box-office. The manager who sticks to $2.75 when he can make money at that figure is, to McBride's way of thinking, the one who will eventually get rich.

Cut-Rate Sales.

A DRAMATIC attraction which plays on Broadway at, say, $2.30 and does most of its business through cut-rates has been known to jump $5000 or $6000 in its weekly gross when it goes out on the subway circuit at a flat $2.20 to $2.75 scale.

Edgar Selwyn believes that the psychology of the average person associates the value of a product with its cost, and that as people have become used to the higher prices they suppose that the attraction which charges $3.30 for its tickets is, by virtue of that fact, a better show than one which retails for less. Conditions being what they are in the theatrical business, the $3 plus war tax ticket, he feels, is bound to prevail as more or less standard for the non-musical attractions.

Costs in other phases of industry may be going down, but in the theater the reverse is true. The present problem of wage increases for stagehands is only one of several economic issues which confront the producers. Against these issues in some instances, the $2.75 seat may hold out for a time, but its passing seems to observers of events theatrical to be more or less of a certainty.

piece of hollow and pretentious rubbish.

This is odd, because, according to all accounts, he wrote his last act first, wrote the whole play, indeed, just for the sake of that last act and tossed off Act One as a mere preliminary. Indeed, they tell me that that last act was once a vaudeville sketch, entitled "The Conflict," and performed in the two-a-day with huge success by Ruth Chatterton, who retreated into vaudeville last season after sundry harrowing misadventures in what is sometimes fulsomely described as the "legitimate."

In "Sour Grapes," Mr. Lawrence sits down and has a good long cry over the fact that first love does not stay red hot throughout the cooling years of marriage. It seems to be his ideal that a man and his mate should remain all their days in the agreeably feverish state of a young couple on their way from the frat house to the Sophomore Hop. The devices by which his chilled and estranged pair in "Sour Grapes" try to apply the bellows to the embers of their passion absorb most of his attention throughout the latter half of a comedy that runs down like an unwound clock.

The new play came to town on Monday evening, arriving amid a nightmare downpour with a Wagnerian overture of thunder overhead. Dams gave way in the suburbs, homing Brooklynites had to take off their shoes and stockings and wade through impromptu river and in the assembling audience at the Longacre a wild rumor had it that Miss Brady's car had been struck by lightning on her way to the theater and that she was even then having hysterics in her dressing room. This rumor was laid to rest by the sight of William A. Brady Sr. sitting calm in his vantage post in the first row of the balcony. He seemed tender, solicitous, parental but unalarmed and, after the usual delays, the curtain rose on an undamaged Alice Brady, shaken only by the inner knowledge that some false, papier-mache playwriting would be involved in her chorus for the evening.

MY GUESS is that "Sour Grapes" will be visible here for some weeks to come, neither a failure nor a success. But one can never tell. Last night marked the 1853rd consecutive New York performance of "Abie's Irish Rose."

NOVOSIBIRSK CALLED CHICAGO OF SIBERIA

Former Drowsy City of Steppes Region Fast Becoming Metropolis.

NOVOSIBIRSK, Siberia, Aug. 5.—Out on this edge of the vast Siberian steppes, 2000 miles east of Moscow, is the city formerly called Novonikolaevsk, now converted into a new bustling metropolis.

The officials responsible for its amazing growth in two years, proudly style it the Siberian Chicago. Since drowsy Novonikolaevsk was selected as the capital of the district of Siberia—a district larger than all Europe—and rechristened Novosibirsk, the city has expanded into a boom town despite the alternation of mud and dust in summer, and snows with the thermometer reaching 35 below zero in winter.

The log cabins on the outskirts, their cracks caulked with moss, and the big office buildings in the center, their walls stuffed with cork to keep out the extreme changes of temperature, differ from those of other cities. However, the architecture of these new, concrete-faced, steel-blue buildings, which are grouped in the new red square, is according to the city plan. Occasionally such buildings are seen in architects' plans and drawings and in ancient Thebes and Babylon, but never before have they been seen in reality except in this city.

A massive blue-gray structure, bifurcated and pyradimal in shape, with ornamental Greek columns in front and "Living Leninism" in gold letters across the fifth story, overlooks the center of the square. The building contains a hall for motion pictures and concerts, with seats for 960 persons and has the offices of the chief Government committees.

The Government spent $3,000,000 and private owners spent $500,000 on construction work in Novosibirsk last year and the amount is expected to be doubled this year. Included among the other structures is a reinforced concrete building costing $700,000, the first of its kind in Russia. The city has a concrete bridge 95 feet high and 450 feet long.

Should American firms co-operate with the Government in the joint stock and building companies, the authorities say that improvements in building as well as trolley installation and water works will proceed at double speed.

CASTORIA

When Baby Complains.

There are many ways a baby has of expressing any pain or irregularity or digression from its normal condition of health and happiness. A short sharp cry, a prolonged irritated cry. Restlessness, a constant turning of the head or of the whole body, fretful. In these and other ways a baby tells you there is something wrong. Most mothers know that a disordered stomach, or bowels that do not act naturally are the cause of most of baby's sufferings. A call for the doctor is the first thought, but in the event of any delay there should be ready at hand a safe remedy such as Fletcher's Castoria.

Castoria has been used for baby's ailments for over 30 years and has merited the good will of the family physician in a measure not equaled by any other baby's medicine because of its harmlessness and the good results achieved.

And remember this: Castoria is essentially a baby's remedy and not a cure-all for every member of the family. What might help you is too often dangerous when given to a babe.

Fletcher's Castoria safely relieves

PUBLIC HELP FOR A NEW DEACONESS HOSPITAL SOUGHT

Campaign to Raise $700,000 for Institution to Face Forest Park to Be Started Sept. 24.

MOVE INDORSED BY MEDICAL SOCIETY

Former Mayor Kiel, W. J. G. Neun and Bert F. Lang to Be in Charge of City-Wide Drive.

The Evangelical Deaconess Home and Hospital, after serving St. Louis since 1889, for the first time will seek subscriptions from the people Sept. 24, for a new hospital on Oakland avenue, facing Forest Park.

A group of 1500, under the leadership of former Mayor Henry W. Kiel, chairman; W. J. G. Neun, vice chairman, and Bert F. Lang, treasurer, will conduct a city-wide canvass to raise $700,000 for the new hospital. The campaign will continue until Oct. 4.

The move has been indorsed by the St. Louis Medical Society, which passed a resolution urging St. Louisans to support the drive; the Chamber of Commerce, and other groups.

The campaign will reach almost every St. Louis citizen and is expected to stamp the Deaconess Home and Hospital more thoroughly as a civic enterprise. The present hospital, West Belle place and Sarah, outgrown as demands on it have constantly increased, always has been operated as a civic institution.

The home and hospital was organized in 1859 when pastors and church members of the German Evangelical Synod of North America formed the Evangelical Deaconess Society of St. Louis to manage a hospital and home.

It was incorporated in 1891, and was materially aided by Mrs. Mebus, a widow, who gave a house and lot at Fourteenth street and Clark avenue to be used by the society. This, however, was deemed unsuitable, but the rent was used to rent a private residence at 2119 Eugenia street and convert it temporarily into a home and hospital.

Present Site Cost $10,000.

Mrs. Katharine Haack, widow of the Rev. Mr. Haack, and her adopted daughter, Lydia Daries, acted as the first deaconesses. They had been trained as nurses at St. Luke's Hospital, and in the course of three years the deaconesses numbered 11.

As a result of numerous applicants, the directors were authorized to select another location for a building. The site of the present home was selected and bought for $10,000.

A school building on the site was remodeled for hospital purposes, and, in 1892, a three-story hospital with accommodations for 42 patients was erected at a cost of $20,000.

The hospital was enlarged to its present size in 1905 and 1906, and 100 patients now can be cared for.

In its history the hospital has cared for a number of persons equal to one-twentieth of the city's population—47,103 in the hospital and 981 patients in private families.

7000 Unable to Pay.

Fifteen per cent of this number, approximately 7000, were unable to pay for the service. Extensive social and charitable work also has been carried out.

In the new hospital, the work will be doubled. The new building will be equipped with the most modern facilities for hospital work. The cost of the home will exceed $1,000,000, but resources of the organization are more than $300,000, leaving $700,000 to be raised.

TODAY TOWN'S 82D BIRTHDAY

Castroville, Tex., Founded by Alsatians, Named for First Citizen.

By the Associated Press.

CASTROVILLE, Tex., Sept. 11.—More than 80 years ago, a little group of Alsatians founded here a little settlement that was the first between San Antonio and the Rio Grande to survive in the face of Indian attacks and the hardships of pioneer days. Today is the eighty-second anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of St. Louis' Roman Catholic Church, an event commemorated from year to year, though the original church has given way to another structure. This village, declared to be changed but little since the day the settlers came in the early 1840's, was named for Henry Castro, their leader. He and several other men of his group had served under Napoleon, some of them participating in the retreat from Moscow.

The population of Castroville, which is 30 miles west of San Antonio, has mixed as the years passed but descendants of the pioneers from Alsace-Lorraine still are here. And tourists going to or from El Paso and the Far West still remark on the quaintness of the village scene—one not unlike a painting of an old master.

Rains Halt Work on Bridge.

AS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by the full bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excess hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal actions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent acid formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia in powder or tablet form—never sweetened or milk is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

English police, in handling lost property, take cognizance of the monomark, which is a kind of registered trademark standing for the owners' full name and address, but allowing him its use without divulging his identity or address.

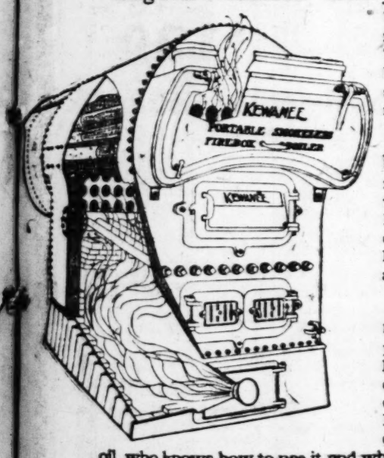
KEWANEE

When Burning Oil Circulation is Vital

All over this great land today many buildings, equipped with Kewanee All-Steel (riveted) Firebox boilers, are using oil for fuel. Occasionally, because of conditions in the fuel market, they go back to coal.

And that's where the all-around excellence of the Kewanee Boiler comes in. You can burn any kind of fuel you like, whenever you like, and take full advantage of the fluctuations in fuel cost.

The statement, often made by loose-tongued salesmen that you must have a special type of boiler to burn oil, is nothing but green-eyed hokum. The right kind of heating boiler which burns coal successfully, will burn oil successfully. Oil is liquid coal and it makes the same heat that coal makes.



The reason why some boilers will not burn oil sucessfully is that they won't burn anything well. But with the Kewanee Boiler, you can switch from coal to oil, and back again, as often as you like, and you won't have to make any change in the boiler.

But above all, remember this: When burning oil for fuel, you've got to have first-class circulation. THIS IS POSITIVE. And one of the dominating characteristics of the Kewanee All-Steel (riveted) Firebox Boiler is its matchless circulation. Ask any man who knows oil, who knows how to use it and who is burning it in Kewanee Boilers.

To burn oil efficiently, without letting most of the heat escape up the chimney, takes a well-designed boiler with a proper-size firebox to insure complete combustion. Not only that, but it also has the proper heating surface so that the products of combustion, or hot gases, can quickly impart their intense heat to the water in the boiler.

A Kewanee Smokeless Steel (riveted) Boiler not only has this necessary firebox space and heating surface so arranged as to extract the most of the heat from the gases, but it has one feature which distinguishes it from every ordinary boiler. Here's where circulation heads in at. Now the water tube grate and header is built into Kewanee Smokeless Boilers in the high temperature zone of the firebox directly above the oil burner. The pumping action furnished by the rapid formation of steam in these tubes causes forced circulation of the whole large waterways, this circulation sweeps the steam bubbles from the heating surfaces and thus maintains the most effective condition for the transfer of heat.

Ask our local representatives, or write to the factory direct if you wish, for records of Kewanee Smokeless Firebox Boilers burning oil. It pays you golden dollars to be thoroughly informed.

MORE BLOOD DONORS SOUGHT BY HOSPITALS

Summer Demand So Heavy List Compiled in Spring Is Almost Exhausted.

The Health Department of the Community Council has issued a call for more volunteer donors of blood for use in blood transfusion operations in the city's hospitals. Those who wish to volunteer for this service should register with the central nurses' registry maintained by the Council. As blood donors are needed they will be called upon.

So heavy has been the demand that the list of donors compiled last spring was almost exhausted during the summer. The dental committee of the Health Department is making plans for increasing the facilities for free dental treatment which will be available to both white and Negro patients.

The Family Department of the Community Council is at work on plans for the fall and winter campaign. The department will work particularly with nonresident families, seeking a way to deport undesirables who might become wards of charity and a plan to get support for these undesirables from their home communities.

FIRST GERMAN AUTO DRIVEN 270 MILES ON 40TH BIRTHDAY

Car Attained Speed of 21 Miles With Two Passengers on Trip to Inventor's Home.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—The fortieth anniversary of the invention of the German automobile was fittingly celebrated by students of Hanover Tech. They hauled out the original machine from the school museum, filled the tank with gas and drove 270 miles from Hanover to the home of Dr. Karl Benz, the inventor, in Landenburg. Dr. Benz is now 83 years old.

The trip was made without a single mishap. The car at times attained a speed of 21 miles an hour, with two passengers. Instead of the skeptical jeers which greeted Dr. Benz on his first ride in the same car, the student drivers received an ovation along the route. Tears were in the aged inventor's eyes and thousands of his townspeople cheered as the machine chugged up and stopped in front of his house.

SEEKS MONKEY FARM PERMIT

Dr. Serge Voronoff's Application Pending in Menton.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The town of Menton is in throes of a bitter zoological and medical controversy. Dr. Serge Voronoff of monkey gland fame, has asked the city fathers to give him permission to build a monkey house for 300 Simians inside the city limits. Listening to Dr. Voronoff, the officials saw visions of turning their quiet town into a famous center for medical research. But listening to the local representatives of the S. P. C. A., delegates from the churches and to groups of mothers who feared that 300 monkeys would be dangerous to the children, they decided that permission would be held up pending further examination into the scheme.

Voronoff claims that the Riviera is the only part of Europe where he can successfully raise monkeys. Already three other cities have refused him permission to establish his farm within their limits.

It is here! Jubilee Week of 1926!—the result of months and months of scientific planning and thorough preparation. Every buying resource here and abroad at the command of our five Dominant Stores has been exerted to the utmost to make this Jubilee Week the greatest in the retail history of St. Louis.

¶ Tomorrow the largest stocks of new Fall and Winter merchandise in all St. Louis or west of the Mississippi will be spread out for your choosing—also the most widely assorted, most authentic and dependable it is possible to produce. Thousands of groups, so specially priced that it will be most profitable to anticipate all Fall and Winter as well as holiday requirements.

Boy Scouts and Their Activities

SCOUTS EXHIBITION AT ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION

Troops Demonstrate Knowledge Gained and Handiwork of Members.

The St. Louis Council of Boy Scouts is an exhibitor at the exposition in Forest Park. Their booth is filled by different troops with articles of their own make, and with standard Scout equipment. A program has also been drawn up, whereby the booth is each night in the charge of a troop which shows by actual demonstration the practical application of the knowledge gained in scouting. Carl Laemmli of local headquarters is the supervisor, assisted by Eagle Scouts Werder and Allen of Troop 34 and Cabell of Troop 2.

The demonstrations consist chiefly of first aid, various types of signalling, fire by friction and flint and steel, and pioneering. The troops are allowed to choose their own subjects, thus varying the events from evening to evening.

Butterfly Collection.

The exhibits cover nearly all phases of scouting. They include a large knot-board by Troop 90, a collection of butterflies from Troop 130, models of bridges and towers, handicraft articles and a complete camping outfit. Pictures of Camp Irondale and the Merit Badge Exhibit of last fall cover one end.

One of the most striking objects is a two-foot totem pole, carved from a 4x4 by Dr. Colgate, Camp Irondale physician, to represent the "health" merit badges. The base of the pole is a cube, on two sides of which the first class badge stands in relief. Next is a cylinder, on one side of which is the green cross of Safety First, and on the other the red cross of First Aid. Sitting above the crosses is a dog with a bandaged paw, the sign of the First Aid to Animals badge. Surmounting the dog is a heart, standing for Personal Health, and above all is the golden torch to which all lead: Public Health. The insignia are painted in the colors of the badges, all of the "paint" used being different medicines—mercurochrome, picricacid, methyl blue, and iodine. The entire work was done by hand.

Troop 130 put on the demonstration last Saturday and Sunday. Troop 3 was in charge Monday. 104 Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, and 24 Friday and Saturday. Troop 3 will be in charge again today. The schedule for this week will be Troop 29 on Monday, 178 on Tuesday, 24 on Wednesday, Webster Groves 8 on Thursday and Friday, and 162 on the closing days of the exposition.

To March In Parade.

The St. Louis scouts have been asked by the Daughters of the American Colonists to march in a parade by the latter organization from Lindell and Kingshighway boulevards to the Exposition next Saturday afternoon. The parade will start at 3:45 o'clock. All troops of the city have been asked to get in touch with Mr. Laemmli through their scoutmaster, and make arrangements to participate. The booth was placed at the disposal of the scouts by the Nafziger Baking Co.

Suburban District.

Troop 3, Webster Groves, spent last Thursday evening formulating plans for the coming winter and playing games. This the second meeting of the troop since it resumed activities after the summer disbanding.

Troop 8, Webster Groves, will be in charge of the Boy Scout booth at the St. Louis Exposition next Thursday and Friday. They will demostrate signalling, first aid and fire by friction.

North District.

Scoutmaster Penn of Troop 206 returned to the troop last meeting after a three weeks' absence on account of sickness. The troop will hold a treasure hunt at their next meeting.

TROOP 33 MAKES PERFECT SCORE IN CAMPING TEST

St. Peter's Evangelical Church Scouts Set Mark at Lions' Den Camp.

For the first time in the four months' history of the Lions' Den Boy Scout camp, a troop scored 100 per cent in the weekly good camping contest. Troop 33, of St. Peter's Evangelical Church, last week being judged to have a perfect camp. The judging is based on cleanliness and orderliness of the camp site, observance of regulations by the scouts, and work accomplished by the boys while there.

Other troops in camp last week were 18, 72, 91, 163 and 189. Troop 72, in camp B-1, conducted an officers' camp, every troop officer except one being present with Scoutmaster Hancock. Troop 18 occupied A-1, and put in considerable time improving the new camp kitchen at this site.

The rains of the last week filled the swimming hole in the creek, and swimming was an important feature of the program of each troop. Hikes through the woods and up the creek valley were also undertaken by all the campers.

Headquarters.

Scout Executive Earle W. Beckman, the head of the local Boy Scout Council, and Mrs. Beckman, arrived home Friday evening after a six weeks' tour of Europe, during which time they attended the International Boy Scout Conference at Geneva, Switzerland. Beckman was the official delegate from Region 8, composed of this and surrounding states, to the conference.

St. Louis scouts have been asked to help hunt for a German police dog lost by Milton D. Girton, a local aviator, and former instructor in aviation for the scouts of New Orleans. The dog is described as being black and golden-tan, weighs about 80 pounds, and is named "Ace." He can do a number of tricks. Any scout finding him has been asked to communicate with Girton at FOrest 8250.

West District.

To prove that a scout troop does not have to deteriorate during the summer months, Troop 30, of the Y. M. H. A., a week ago Saturday held an all-day rally to complete their summer inter-patrol contest, and, according to Scoutmaster Goldsmith, displayed a better brand of scouting than in any previous winter contest. The rally was won by the Owl patrol.

The rally wa sheld at Kenwood Springs. It was divided into three parts—individual contests in the morning, cooking at noon, and patrol competition in the afternoon. In the individual contests, scouts were selected from each patrol, and for events in hiking, mapmaking, building camp kitchens, flag and smoke signalling and wood carving. Points scored in each of these were added to the score of the winning scout's patrol.

At noon each patrol was required to cook a unified patrol dinner, points being awarded for quality, preparation, serving and cheapness. The winning menu, conceived by the Owl patrol, consisted of a meat, vegetable and tomato soup, followed by stewed lamb buried in onions and served with mashed sweet potatoes. Baked apples formed the dessert. Another patrol's dinner cost only 72 cents for six scouts.

Knot-tying, competetive games, a contest to see how many cans of water, each on a separate fire, could be kept boiling at the same time, and a six-mile cross-country relay race, occupied the afternoon. In the race scouts were placed at half-mile intervals, and a spoon was passed from one to another.

A letter praising the efficient aid rendered by Wilbur Alitama, a first-class scout of Troop 139, of the Meramec School, during the World Y. M. C. A. Conference at Helsingfors, Finland, has been received by the boy's father from Hubert W. Peet, editor of the Far and Near Press Bureau of London, England. The scout was traveling in Finland with his mother this summer, and happened upon the conference. The services of interpreters being badly needed, Wilbur, who speaks Finnish fluently, volunteered, as a "good turn." The letter praises him as "a most efficient and useful scout."

Wild Birds in Forest Park Come at St. Louisan's Call

"Anybody Can Do It," Says F. L. Rand, Telling How He Made the Acquaintance of His Two Feathered Friends.

Occasionally a friend is moved to ask F. L. Rand of 5085 Cates avenue if he has met any interesting birds, lately. Meeting a bird is a little practiced social grace. Few men will go so far as to say that some of their best friends are birds. To most city people birds are ignored strangers, and the idea of any human palling around with robins, pigeons or sparrows seems unusual, not to say downright uncanny. There appears to be so few interests which a bird and a man could have in common, and as for conversation what could one possibly say that would charm a bird?

Yet, Rand has made friends with two birds in Forest Park. The friendship between Rand and these birds might be considered trivial. All the birds get out of it are a few meals of corn muffins and grain. All Rand gets out of it is pleasure. The two birds which are friends of Rand are a martin and a brown thrasher. The martin lives in the trees near the River des Peres bridge at Lindell drive.

The thrasher generally inhabits the shrubbery along the path up Art Hill from the lagoon or behind the Art Museum. They are young birds, however, and have not even made the first payments on a nest, so like most bachelors they move around a good deal.

Bird Lights on Rand's Hand.

At present Rand foregathers with his friends on early morning walks or in the evening, for he is busy at his advertising agency downtown during the day. When he enters the park his friend, the martin, may be circling, swallow-like high above the trees. Or it may be sitting in a tree top, riding little waves of wind for the sport. If the martin sees Rand first down it flies like a graceful monoplane, flattens out and makes a perfect landing on his head or outstretched palm.

After it has been fed and its feathers, smoothed, the bird hops on Martin's arm or about the grass when he sits down. They "pass the time of day" as Rand calls it, but no one can understand how this is done, unless he loves birds. You whistle little notes for the bird or chuckle or talk. The bird cocks an eye at you and ruffles its feathers importantly. The martin, Rand says, has become so friendly of late it will not fly away so long as he remains in the park. He has got into the habit of visiting with the bird until darkness falls and the bird goes to sleep on his arm. Then he places it on a tree branch and goes away.

With his friend the thrasher, Rand is not quite so chummy. The thrasher is a large, glossy brown bird and makes a call which Rand knows. Usually he whistles for the thrasher and if it is within hearing or eyesight it comes fluttering out of the shrubbery and settles on his hand. This thrasher has not learned to sing, yet. It will have a voice in the spring. But the bird can chirp and eat corn-muffins and follow Rand as he walks along.

"Anyone Can Do It."

"How do I do it?" he says, "why anyone can do it. I made friends wit hthese birds when they were nestlings. Last July I found the thrasher on a driveway near Jefferson Memorial. I almost ran over it with my car. The bird waddled toward me with its mouth open. I gave it water and fed it. It had lost its mother. After that it haunted the locality where we first met and came to know me. Now the bird knows me by sight and can single out my low whistle from all other sounds in the park.

"I made friends with the martin the same way. It was a nestling which had become lost in the grass and would have died had I not taken care of it.

"Have birds intelligence? I think not. At least, not as we think of intelligence. But they have marvelously developed instincts and good memory. They remember good deeds done for them."

A Friend of Dumb Creatures.

Rand has been a friend of birds a long time. Before the war he made a hobby of visiting pet shops and rescuing miserable imported birds which were drooping in confinement. He would purchase the birds, take them home, feed and care for them and add them to his collection. Among his friends he is noted as "a good hand with birds" and every canary owned within his circle of friendship is brought to him for treatment when sick. Small boys bring him birds with broken legs and wings. He patches them up in his improvised bird hospital.

"I don't look upon birds as pets," he declares. "I think of them as friends and I prefer to leave them in their natural habitat and play with them there."

The thrasher and the martin will fly South this winter, Rand thinks. But he believes that when spring comes again to Forest Park his friends will return and will know him when he goes to search for them.

$1.14 HIGHEST PRICED CIGAR UNDER FRENCH MONOPOLY

Tobacco Prices Increased as Part of Government's Efforts to Restore Finances.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The most expensive cigar sold by the French state tobacco monopoly is the "Prince of Monaco." The price has just been increased from 32 francs to 40, or approximately from 90 cents to $1.14. The increase in tobacco prices is part of the Government's effort to restore the country's financial equilibrium.

It is calculated the increase will serve to yield an additional profit of 100,000,000 francs, or nearly $3,000,000.

The state now offers 21 brands of cigars of its own manufacture, with prices ranging from 3 francs apiece to 35 centimes, or from 9 cents to 1 cent. Its list contains 20 varieties of cigarettes varying from 20 francs 11.25, the hundred, or from 60 cents to 22.

High-class cigarettes have been greatly afected by the increase, for example, 100 of a brand that sold for 90 francs now cost 200, and the price of another has moved from 78 francs a hundred to 140. Cheaper brands of American cigarettes have gone from 20 francs a hundred to 45.

NEW EDITION OF SEPTUAGINT

Being Put Out to Preserve Original Translation of Old Testament.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—A new collected edition of the Septuagint, the first translation of the Old Testament, is being put out by the Wuerttemberg Bible Press. This is being done to preserve the translation for posterity in as near its original text as possible. According to the legend of the origination of the Septuagint, King Ptolemy II, in the third century B. C., consented to the translation of Jewish law into Greek for the Alexandrian library. He freed 100,000 Jewish captives in his kingdom and sent rich presents to the high priest at Jerusalem in return for the latter's commissioning of 72 wise men to undertake the translation.

Champion French Reporter Dead.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—France's first "big time" woman journalist, Mme. Jeanne Bremontier, is dead. She leaves a record of achievement envied by many male star reporters. Mme. Bremontier, more than 39 years ago, assisted in founding "La Fronde," the first daily newspaper devoted to women's affairs. Later, she achieved fame as a reporter in the Dreyfus case when she discovered the hiding place of Maj. Esterhazy, who was accused jointly with Dreyfus, and who took refuge in England. Her stories on the case attracted world-wide attention.

COUNTY COLLECTS ALIMONY IN ITS CHARITABLE WORK

Special Chicago Bureau Created to Ease Destitution Following Divorces Among Poor.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—To ease the destitution which so often follows divorce among Chicago's poor, Cook County is collecting alimony as a feature of its charitable work. A division of the county social service bureau, created in mid-July, already is gathering $250 to $500 a week in small alimony checks for wives and children dependent for support upon the few dollars of the husband's earnings which the decree has awarded the family. Many of these checks are for only $5 a week, and none is for more than $15.

The Chicago plan was devised by Judge Joseph Sabath of the divorce court, when he found himself besieged to collect alimony in arrears for women to whom he had granted decrees.

BAN ON CHARLESTON REMOVED

Japanese Couple Cause Change in Rule at Nice Hotels.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The hotels at Nice have removed their ban against the Charleston. It took a young Japanese to effect the change. Dressed mostly in plus fours and dancing with his Parisian-gowned wife to the strains of an American Jazz orchestra, the Japanese succeeded in what hundreds of Americans had failed. The hotel dancing master tried to argue with him, but the effort was in vain for the dancers professed to speak Japanese only. So they went on with their dance, not knowing what the trouble was about and at the end of the hour 200 couples were charlestoning or attempting to Charleston.

The next evening the signs prohibiting the Charleston had disappeared from the various hotel floors and the new dance is sweeping over the city rapidly.

EATING CHAMPION AVOIDS U. S.

British Competitions Keeping Him Busy at Home, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—George Leader, the 228-pound eating contest champion of Middlesborough, has declined an invitation to visit the United States and take part in a world's championship event. Pressure of business in this line at home is his reason he says.

Leader has won all 13 matches in which he has been engaged in the last few years. He will be heavily handicapped in his next match by having to eat a pound of broiled ham and a dozen eggs before his opponent starts. Nevertheless, he is confident of winning. In easily winning his last match, in which his opponent retired after three pounds of ham and 40 eggs had been consumed, Leader gave an exhibition of what a really good eater can do. He dispatched the 19 eggs that were left and completed his feast with steak and kidney pudding and cream cakes.

Negro Melodies Heard in London.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—American Negro melodies have been introduced into the musical program of the old Southwark Cathedral, just across London bridge, on the south side of the Thames. Noonday recitals are given there for the benefit of the porters at the Hops market and other workers from nearby establishments. The selections are from the "Negro spirituals," or plantation hymns, and are expected to prove a potent drawing card for luncheon-hour audiences in this busy district.

Americans Go in for French Snails.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—America, deprived of the wines of France, is developing an appetite for French snails. Snails exports to the United States have increased amazingly in the last three years. In 1926 they reached the huge total of 1,000,000 pounds. Exporters say that tourists on automobile trips throughout the country have acquired the snail habit at the small country inns. Nuts of dauphiny, the Dordogne and Anjou have also touched the American palate, and so great have been the recent exports that local prices have risen to a high level.

Aged French Artist Honored.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Jules Cheret, who first made the walls of France a picture gallery, thanks to his colored advertisement posters, has been promoted to be a grand officer of the Legion of Honor. The French government has thus sought to express its sympathy with the aged artist, now in his ninetieth year, or having almost lost his sight. Cheret opened a new school in pictorial wall advertising and if picture posters of today are not the works of art they were after Cheret set the fashion, this is ascribed in Paris to the artistic success of the school, which was so great that the public admired the art, but overlooked the object the art was meant to serve.

VOICE RECORDINGS

An innovation, an original idea of Mr. Olsen's, has just been installed in his studio and is known as a "recording vocal test." This is a specially constructed cabinet for recording the progress of a pupil's study. This cabinet is equipped with a recording and reproducing machine and will be used at stated intervals for recording exercises, songs and arias by the vocal students. In this way it will be possible for a pupil to hear himself sing, to pick out the flaws and make the necessary remedy. It becomes an easy matter to discern his own improvement.

Another feature connected with his large class is a club which meets monthly for a social and musical evening at the different prominent hotels, and the club is thus given opportunity to obtain experience. At these meetings certain of the pupils are presented in the same manner as in a public recital. This gives them an assurance not otherwise obtainable.

A studio where professional singers desiring to augment their artistic equipment may obtain sound advice, masterful interpretations and become artists, not merely vocalists.

TWO MEN KILLED OVER STILL

One Shot by Partner Whom Policeman Shoots When He Resists Arrest.

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 11.—Two men were killed and another shot in the leg as the result of a fight over possession of a 250-gallon still here last night. Police reports today said that Manuel Hernandez was slain in a quarrel with his former partner, Conetto, over the still and that J. N. Nepher, a police lieutenant, shot Conetto to death when he later resisted arrest. Rene Clavarrio, who was with Hernandez, was wounded.

Angelo Campisi was taken in custody as a suspect and Antonio Parrino and Vincenzo Campisi were held as witnesses.

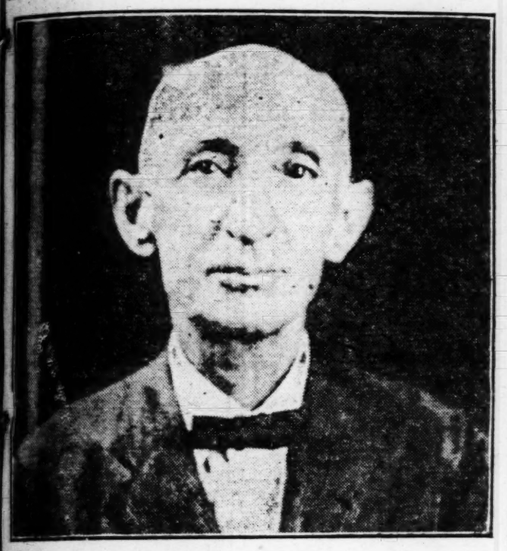
ST. LOUIS AUTO MECHANIC BACK ON THE JOB

Feels That He Owes His Good Health to the Great Herb Extract Remedy Known as Herb Juice.

"I am quite sure that I owe my present good health to your most remarkable remedy Herb Juice, and for that reason I want to make this public statement. I feel that in doing this that I may be instrumental in getting some other sufferer how to try it, because I know they will be as well pleased with it as I am." This was part of the enthusiastic statement made recently to the special demonstrator at Walgreen's Drug Store by



MR. HENRY L. PRATTE

Mr. Henry L. Pratte of 4156 Delmar Blvd., St. Louis, Mo.

"For ten long years," continued Mr. Pratte, "I have been a constant sufferer from bowel trouble, and I believe that many different ailments arise from bowel disorder and one of them is an upset stomach, from which I also suffered a great deal. I was just run down generally and was unable to sleep at night and therefore did not get the proper amount of rest. I saw Herb Juice highly advertised and since taking it I have certainly improved wonderfully and am a real friend to it. I am entirely rid of the bowel trouble and my other ailments have disappeared along with it. I know that had it not been for Herb Juice I would not be on my feet today. I can honestly say that I feel better in every way. I have a wonderful appetite, eat anything I want, sleep better and have more energy than I have had for a long, long time. I am very glad indeed to be able to recommend Herb Juice because I feel that so remarkable a remedy is worthy of the highest praise. I would be glad if someone suffering as I did would take it on my recommendation and then I feel that I would at least repay you in a small way for the remarkable things it has done for me. I shall always be glad to speak a good word for it."

This great laxative medicine is an Herb Extract preparation known as Herb Juice and is out-selling any medicine where it has been introduced. Many are calling daily to see the special demonstrator at Walgreen Drug Company, 514 Washington avenue, giving statements for publication, praising this great remedy that their friends may be induced to try it.

STATE LINES HAMPER GROWTH OF TWO CITIES

New York and Chciago Are Centers of Population Not Credited to Them.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Through hundreds of years from the days of ancient Greece and Rome down to the Venice of more modern times, the city-state has made its mark in political history.

Now a few advanced political economists are discussing the possibility of some leading American cities becoming political entities or city-states. Chicago and New York, particularly, whose spheres of influence and environs have crossed the borders of their own states, are prominently mentioned.

The continual warfare between the urban and country districts of such states as Illinois and New York is seen as another reason why a separation of a city from the rest of the state is within the range of possibilities.

Legislative Problems.

The ancient cry similar to "no taxation without representation" has been raised in both Illinois and New York. The two largest cities in the country both have complained that they are not equitably represented in the State Legislatures in proportion to their population, wealth, influence and the size of their tax bill. In Illinois, for instance, a downstate majority has halted every attempt of Chicago representatives to put through a legislative reapportionment program, which, it is claimed, is provided in the State Constitution.

The metropolitan district of New York is in three states, New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. Chicago has overrun northern Illinois and its suburbs reach into Wisconsin and Indiana.

Artificial Barriers.

A city, however, cannot push its limits across the border into another stae, so ha in he case of New York and Chicago artificial barriers break up what is really a unified metropolitan district.

Some Chicagoans, feeling that their city is not fairly treated in State affairs, have proposed a new state of Northern Illinois and adjacent territory of which Chicago is the center. A Chicago legislator recently asked the census bureau to include in the metropolitan census all persons in a 50-mile radius from the city's center.

The Government could only reply that it could not include citizens of another State. The Chicago city limits parallel the Indiana border for several miles. Across the line are the great steel centers of Hammond, Michigan City and Gary, allied to the industrial sections of South Chicago.

80-ACRE TRACT AT DARSTDALE FOR INDUSTRY

Property Lying on Both Sides of Terminal Belt Line to Be Added to Subdivision.

GRADERS AT WORK ON NEW STREETS

Plans Include Spur Tracks Connections for Several Manufacturing Plants

By Berry Moore.

A tract of 80 acres on the Belt line of the Terminal Railway Association, between the Watt and Woodson roads, has been acquired by the Joseph Darst Realty Co., for an industrial subdivision. Skirted on its entire length by the Belt line, this acquisition is regarded as one of the most attractive adjacent to the city for a development of this character.

The industrial addition will be an adjunct to the "future city" of Darstdale, as it is referred to by its promoters, now under development on the north and south sides of Olive street road about two miles beyond the city limits. Lies on the north of Darstdale are the tracks of the Terminal Railway, the dividing line.

The new project is being launched primarily as an industrial feature in the development of Darstdale. Served by the Belt line, the location of the new addition is essentially one for industries.

The Darst Realty Co. is now negotiating with several concerns regarded as available for sites for plants in the new addition.

Attention was directed to the possibilities of this section for industrial purposes, according to realty circles, with the location of the plant of the Cinder Block Co. at Olive Street road and the Terminal track, with the resultant acquisition by the Darst company.

Many Buildings Started.

With the 80 acres acquired the proposed industrial addition the area of Darstdale has been increased to 250 acres. The original acreage is known as Darstdale No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3.

Darstdale No. 1 is on the north side of Olive Street road. It comprises 70 acres extending north to the Belt line tracks, and virtually adjoins the new industrial reservation. Darstdale No. 2, adjoining the 70 acres, was laid out last spring, while Darstdale No. 3, which is located on the south side of Olive Street road, is now being opened.

The three divisions comprise a total of 1500 lots, ranging from 50 to 80 front feet.

There are now completed or under course of construction in Darstdale, 40 or more houses, ranging in price from $6500 to $12,000. More than 400 lots of the addition have been sold. A majority of the new owners are regarded as non-speculative builders. While both houses and apartments may be erected in the addition, they are restricted to designated sections.

Graders at Work.

Approximately 4000 front feet on the north and sides of Olive Street road is available for business buildings or apartments. Several buildings with stores have been erected on the frontage, noteworthy as the forerunner of business development incident to the growth of Darstdale.

A grading outfit with 40 teams is now at work in Darstdale under a contract involving the removal of 140,000 square yards of dirt preparatory to the construction of streets, sidewalks, water, gas, electric and sewer mains. An outlay of $250,000 has been made for surface and underground improvements in the addition. Plans for the industrial section contemplate spur tracks in connection with the Belt Line tracks.

From all indications, Darstdale will be an outstanding feature in real estate developments along the Olive Street road.

Large Deal in County Farm Land Closed

One of the largest land deals transacted in St. Louis county in several years was completed yesterday when Hugo Essen of Clayton filed in the St. Louis County Recorder's office 29 deeds to tracts totaling 2000 acres and representing an investment of about $2,000,000.

The land comprises what is known as the Bonfils Bottoms and extends from the Rifle Range near St. Charles to Charbonar Hill and from the Anbuchon road to the Missouri River. Of the 29 deeds, two were issued by the United

JONES & BURNS TO PUT UP HOMES IN OSAGE HILLS

A number of fine homes are to be erected in Osage Hills, Big Bend boulevard and Meramec River, by Jones & Burns, home builders of Webster Groves, who have purchased home locations there to the value of $36,000. Two of the homes will be started immediately and others shortly.

Two Osage Hills homes that are now nearing completion are those erected by John H. McCawley and Theodore Guth. They will occupy them in the near future. The former is at Wyandot and Cahokia Trails and the latter at Big Bend boulevard and Wyandot Trail. Construction work on several other homes will begin soon.

Jones & Burns announce that they selected Osage Hills for a portion of their operations because of its ideal location as a home section, its binding restrictions that protect home owners and the extensive plans of development made and being worked out by Bixby-Smith, Inc., 316 North Eighth street, owner and developer of the property.

Development of buildings and facilities of Osage Country Club has greatly enhanced the value of an investment in homesites there.

EIGHT-STORY BUILDING TO BE ERECTED AT CORNER OF EWING AV. AND OLIVE ST.

Frank Dallavalle Purchases Site for Commercial Structure on Widened Thoroughfare—Other Structures Planned.

Frank Dallavalle announces that he will erect an eight-story commercial building at the southwest corner of Olive street and Ewing avenue. He purchased the site yesterday. This venture is undertaken in view of the widening of Olive street which will make it a main artery—in connection with Lindell boulevard—from the Mississippi River to Skinker road.

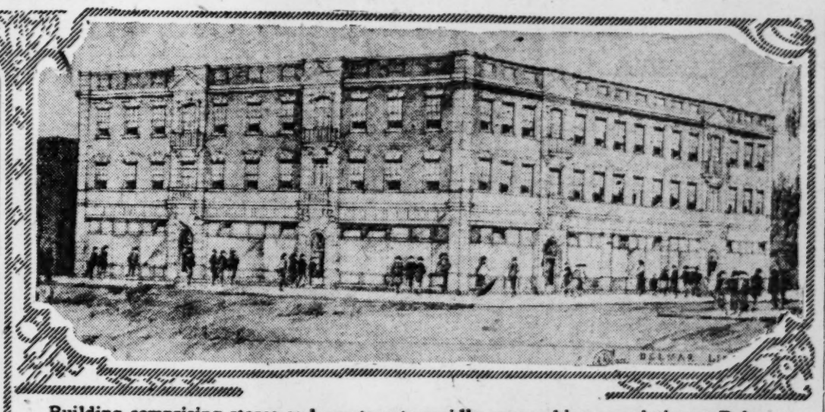
Bradley and Quinnett sold the site on behalf of the Glover Way heirs, including Ada Way Caldwell, Clark H. Way and Leila H. Price. The Maurer-Ghio-Beffa Realty Co. acted for the purchasers in the transaction. The stores and flats on the site are to be wrecked to make way for the new building.

Plans are going forward for several other structures including two hotels on Olive street.

The parkway plan for Olive street has halted a number of large scale projects which otherwise would now be well under way, real estate dealers declare.

A notable sale was that of 2335-37 Olive street to Alexander Morret, through the Maurer-Ghio-Beffa Co. The improvements consist of a building comprising stores and flats.

Bradley & Quinett announce the sale of 114 South Sixth Street and 1430 North Seventh Street, owned by Bernard Quigley, to clients of Barngrove & Specht.



Building comprising stores and apartments rapidly approaching completion at Delmar boulevard and Limit avenue.—Corrubia & Henderson, architects.

SKOURAS BROTHERS LEASE NEW STUDIO

Three-Story Building on Morgan Street to House Various Activities.

The Skouras Bros. enterprise has negotiated through Isaac T. Cook & Co., Inc., a 10-year lease of the three-story and basement building at 2317-19 Morgan street. The building, fronting 60 feet on the north side of Morgan street, is 147 feet deep and contains 35,280 square feet of floor space.

The new property will be devoted to three departments for the Skouras theaters. One floor will be used as a scenic studio where all stage scenery will be built and painted. Another floor will be devoted to the art department, consisting of seven artists. In this department, all of the posters for the various theaters are conceived and painted. The third department will be a warehouse serving all of the theaters. In this unit all supplies used in the theaters will be stored, and the various theater managers will apply here for anything that they require in the operation of their theater.

The size of this building gives an indication of the expansion of the Skouras interests, and obtaining it was essential to the operation of their theaters.

Wm. B. Bliss Jr., & Co., Inc., of Boston, Mass., have closed a lease for space in the Leather Trades Building, at 1600 Locust street.

A store at 2332 Locust street was leased for the account of the Burdeau Real Estate Co., owners, to the Federal Electric Co., at present located at 1200 Pine street.

Cook & Co. also report having leased the entire seventh floor of the Fashion Square Building, now being erected at 1201 Washington avenue, to a client of their office. Four entire floors, containing 18,000 square feet each, of this new 11-story loft building, have already been leased.

Something Different
Something Better!
At 5015 Chippewa (in new Northampton, 1 block west of 4000 S. Kingshighway) I have a number of very exceptional 4-family flats.
These flats are 4 and 5 rooms and breakfast room, and have separate stone entrances, sleeping porches and craftex walls; of course, the floors are of hardwood, and there is furnace heat and tile bath; also brick garages are available.
The appearance of every building is different—and yet appeal to those tired of the usual row of duplicate 4-family flats, and yet these flats with their new and attractive features rent as low as the ordinary 4 and 5 room flats.
See representative in sample furnished flat, 2d floor west.

FOR SALE AND FOR RENT THIS MODERN DUPLEX HOME

(Fifteen other Duplexes to select from)
(Another Duplex Sold This Week)

Buy this home. Live here rent free, interest free, because the rent you receive from the other half will entirely pay for the home within a few years, and you, in the meantime, are living rent free and interest free.

You have all of the privacy of the finest home, plus all of the conveniences of the finest apartment. Everything practically automatic.

Separate entrances, separate drives, separate garages, each for two machines, separate yards for the children.

Few can afford this single home. Everyone can afford a duplex home, as every dollar paid on a duplex continues to earn 6% interest for you. Your money isn't tied up. It isn't dead, it doesn't get out of circulation when you own a duplex. On the other hand, the money you invest in a single home goes out of circulation—dead—as far as you are concerned.

Every thousand dollars you put in a duplex is the same as if you were to buy a thousand dollars of the best 6% bonds. You get the 6% in the form of a rent check each month from the other half of the house.

Visit Davis Place. See the 22 beautiful duplexes already built. Let us tell you of the new duplexes starting and soon to start.

The duplex has already swept the East. It is one of the biggest ideas that has ever come to St. Louis.

The modern duplex solves the ever increasing high cost of living.

Live in Davis Place, the social and educational center of St. Louis, in the Wydown Boulevard district, adjoining the polo grounds development. Five minutes west of Forest Park. Two minutes west of the millionaire colony of Brentmoor, Forest Ridge and West Brentmoor.

In Davis Place you have no soft coal smoke, no garbage wagons, no out-of-date garbage cans. You have clean, noiseless concrete streets, two car lines, busses to take and bring the children from school.

There are thousands of business men in St. Louis who have prosperous businesses who want their families to have the best social and educational environment.

In a Davis Place duplex home, your children associate with the children of the best families—you have as neighbors the business and professional men you meet downtown—you have a real home, for your home does not tie up capital you should be receiving an income from.

Home sites have already been purchased in Davis Place by bankers, manufacturers, lawyers, doctors, merchants, professional men, successful business men for duplex homes costing from $20,000 to $85,000 each.

Visit Davis Place today or come out any evening (beautiful ride) and see why successful men are turning from the expensive single dwelling to the modern duplex home with an income.

Owing to Hanley Road being improved, for the present drive to Clayton Courthouse, then south four blocks.

CAMPAIGN ENDS FOR ELECTION IN MAINE TUESDAY

National Issues Introduced by Col. Theodore Roosevelt Supporting Gov. Brewster's Re-election.

By the Associated Press

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 11.—The political campaign in Maine closed tonight with numerous rallies and the voters are ready to go to the polls on Monday for the biennial election of a Governor, State Auditor, four Congressmen, a Legislature and county officials.

Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, Republican candidate for re-election, spoke at a rally here, at which Col. Theodore Roosevelt talked on national issues. Mayor Ernest L. McLean, the Governor's Democratic opponent, delivered the principal address at a rally in his home city of Augusta.

Three-Cornered Fight for Governorship in Vermont.

By the Associated Press.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 11.—A three-cornered fight for the Republican gubernatorial nomination has been the feature of the campaign leading up to Tuesday's primary in President's Coolidge's native state of Vermont. Judge John E. Weeks, Max L. Powell, lawyer and hotel owner, and Walter K. Farnsworth, lawyer, seek the Republican nomination for Govern .

A fight for the Republican nomination in the First District between Martin S. Vilas of Burlington and Representative Elbert S. Brigham of St. Albans is the only congressional contest. The gubernatorial nominees are unopposed.

Few Contests in President's Home State.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, seeking renomination on the Republican ticket, at next Tuesday's primary in President Coolidge's home state, is unopposed, as is the Democratic candidate, Col. William A. Gaston.

Senator William M. Butler, appointed in November, 1924, by Gov. Cox to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Lodge, is unopposed for the Republican nomination, as is former Senator David I. Walsh for the Democratic nomination. Washington Cook recently announced he would run as an independent against Butler. His action does not affect the primary vote, but will place his name on the ballot in the November elections.

Five contests for the congressional nomination in the 12 districts appear on the Republican ballot and seven on the Democratic. Edith Nourse Rogers, widow of Representative John Jacob Rogers, elected to fill her husband's unexpired term, is opposed for renomination by John Bordman of Concord.

Gov. Groesbeck Fighting for Fourth Term in Michigan.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 11. — Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck's political sway in Michigan has received its first definite challenge in six years by the contest of Mayor Fred W. Green of Ionia for the Republican gubernatorial nomination next Tuesday. Green has served 13 terms as Mayor of Ionia.

On one side is a cold, unsmiling lawyer, on the other the Mayor of a small city, never before an aspirant for State office, a man who smiles, owns race horses, sponsored the only "free county fair" in the State, and conducts a prosperous furniture factory.

All of Michigan's 13 Congressmen are seeking renomination.

Groesbeck built his campaign on his record as a road-builder, saying a fourth term is necessary to complete the work of his administration.

Green attacks the liberality of Gov. Groesbeck in dealing out pardons or paroles. "Michigan Mussolini" is one of the epithets flung at Groesbeck by his opponents.

Prohibition Figures in Washington State Primary.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 11.—Senator Wesley L. Jones, dry, is opposed by six candidates, including Frank E. Hammond, an avowed wet, and Austen E. Griffiths, a dry, for the Republican nomination for United States Senator in next Tuesday's primary.

A. Scott Bullitt, Democratic candidate for the nomination for United States Senator, has based his campaign against the incumbent, Senator Jones, Republican, on an antiworld court platform. James McCabe, a Seattle lawyer, is seeking one of the five Washington seats in the lower house of Congress with modification of the Volstead act as the principal plank in his platform. McCabe opposes John W. Miller, Seattle, Republican, incumbent.

Bishop McMurray to Speak.

Bishop W. F. McMurray will deliver the sermon at the opening services in the new auditorium of the University Methodist Church, University City, at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, Oct. 3. The auditorium was built at a cost of $150,000. The Rev. W. E. Sullens is pastor of the church.

49 NEW APPOINTMENTS MADE TO FACULTY OF MISSOURI U.

Three Professors, Eight Assistants and 30 Instructors Among Those Named.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 11.—Announcement of 49 new appointments to the faculty of the University of Missouri was made here today by Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president.

The appointments are effective Sept. 1. They include three professors, eight assistant professors, 30 instructors and eight assistant instructors.

Three professors and five assistant professors tendered their resignations.

Nine faculty members returned to school this year after a leave of absence, while 14 others were granted leaves effective Sept. 1.

Ninety-six faculty members were reappointed and 13 were given promotions.

VIEWS ON EDUCATION OF ONCE POOR IRISH LAD

Martin Shaughnessy, in His Will, Stressed Importance of Study of English.

To Martin Shaughnessy, who came to this country as a poor Irish lad, the right use of the English language seemed the most important thing in education. He gave his view in a paragraph of his will, which reads:

"It has been my experience that young men and women enter upon their business life without a proper understanding of the English language, and without the ability to express their ideas intelligently I feel that it is important for a business school to educate its students in all branches of English. It is my wish, therefore, that a part of the income of the fund be used for the purpose of teaching students the correct reading, writing and expression of English, in preparation for a business career."

The "fund" is that provided by Mr. Shaughnessy's bequest of one-half his residuary estate, after his widow's death, to St. Louis University for its School of Commerce and Finance, to be used for building, teaching, endowment and scholarships.

Gift Nearly $1,000,000.

As told in Friday's Post-Dispatch, the gift to St. Louis University represents nearly one-half of an estate estimated at $2,000,000, and consisting largely of St. Louis realty. The direct bequests to Mrs. Shaughnessy and to relatives and employes, and direct gifts to three charities, amount to $64,000, besides the home at 1 Washington terrace and its contents, left to the widow. In addition, Mrs. Shaughnessy may dispose of $50,000 in her will.

Except for this total of $114,000 and the home, the estate is divided into halves. The first half is held in trust for Mrs. Shaughnessy during her life, and after her death goes to St. Louis University. Mrs. Shaughnessy is now past 60 years of age. The second half is made a trust fund for a group of six relatives in England, and after their deaths is to be divided equally among six charitable institutions of the Catholic Church here.

Two of these institutions, the Convent of the Good Shepherd and Mt. St. Rose Hospital for tuberculosis patients, had received liberal gifts from Mr. Shaughnessy in his lifetime. The others are the two institutions of the Little Sisters of the Poor, in North and South St. Louis, and the orphan asylums, St. Joseph's and St. Mary's, for boys and girls respectively.

Income to Charities.

A provision of the will which appears admirable, to those familiar with such documents, is that by which Mr. Shaughnessy gives an income to the six institutions, while they are waiting to receive his principal bequest. The terms of the will make it likely that the six institutions will have to wait longer for their share of the residuary estate than St. Louis University will wait for its share.

Therefore, it is provided that the surplus income of that one-half of the residuary estate, over the annuities paid to relatives, shall be divided among the six institutions.

The incomes to be paid to the six relatives amount to $11,500 a year. Each half of the residuary estate was expected by Mr. Shaughnessy to yield an income of at least $20,000 a year. This is shown by his provision that Mrs. Shaughnessy's income, from the one-half held in trust for her, should be not less than $20,000 a year. Assuming that the income of the relatives trust fund is only $20,000 a year, the surplus over their allowance, to go to the six institutions, would be $8500 a year, or more than $1400 a year for each institution.

Reticent About His Gifts.

Mr. Shaughnessy talked with few persons about his gifts to charities, or about his interest in education, but the liberal provisions of his will were not a surprise to a few of his close associates. Mrs. Shaughnessy is understood to have been in accord with his plans for the disposition of his estate. Her name, with his, is to be preserved in memory by the Martin and Agnes T. Shaughnessy Memorial Fund, provided for St. Louis University.

MEETING CALLED ON CITY-COUNTY MERGER

Campaign in Support of Proposal to Be Organized Wednesday Night at City Club.

Civic, commercial and improvement organizations of St. Louis and St. Louis County have been invited to send representatives to a meeting to be held Wednesday night in the City Club auditorium, Eleventh and Locust streets. The meeting is held for the purpose of organizing the campaign in support of the merger. The meeting is open to the general public, and opponents, as well as supporters of the plan, are invited. Speakers will be prepared to answer questions.

A general organization, to include city and county, is to be formed. A committee of county women has been formed as an auxiliary to the county organization, headed by Joseph Forshaw, which has begun the county campaign in support of the plan.

Representatives of the 91 school districts into which St. Louis County is now divided met yesterday at the Clayton Courthouse, on the call of R. G. Russell, county superintendent of schools. The meeting voted opposition to the merger.

One of the principal arguments for the merger is the number of the county school districts, and the varying standards of the schools, all of which would be brought up to the city standard as soon as possible after the merger. Speakers at yesterday's meeting argued that the promised advantages would not follow, but that the county schools would be neglected by the St. Louis board.

Joseph Forshaw, head of the county organization favoring the merger, addressed the meeting, and declared that the city's Negro schools were better than some of the county schools for white children. Some of the educators protested against this statement.

An article outlining the merger plan in its principal details appears in the editorial section of today's Post-Dispatch.

"The Pros and Cons of Consolidation" will be discussed at the first of a series of luncheon forums conducted by the League of Women Voters, beginning Monday, Sept. 20, at Hotel Statler. Harry S. Caulfield and Arthur V. Lashly will discuss the advantages and disadvantages of merging the county and the city. At subsequent luncheon forums the bridge problem and the United Railways franchise will be discussed.

ST. LOUISAN ATTENDS HIS 2000TH FUNERAL

William Brockmeier, Masonic Marshal, Establishes Unusual Record.

William Brockmeier of 4004A St. Louis avenue, who undoubtedly has attended more funerals than any other person in the city—some undertakers excepted—attended his 2000th last week, and decided that he would not, as he had planned, retire from his work with 2000 names recorded in the black loose-leaf book he keeps.

He announced he would continue indefinitely as marshal for more than half the Masonic lodges of the city, as he has done for 15 years. Officially he is marshal of only Mount Moriah Lodge, but because of his experience and efficiency he is honorary marshal for 23 of the 46 lodges of the city.

Brockmeier's record as marshal dates back to 1911. In the last 18 months he has supervised 295 funerals, an average of one every other day—all in addition to his duties as night engineer at a manufacturing plant.

He is 61 years old and considers the satisfaction of serving his fellow men sufficient compensation for the time he devotes to his unusual employment. His fellow Masons have provided an automobile to make his work easier.

While it has been made clear that Sheffield has made no recommendations touching any protests concerning the religious controversy in Mexico, it is understood that he had made some concerning the policy to be pursued toward the land and oil laws in that country as they affect Americans. The character of these recommendations has not been made public.

Another visitor to the President at the executive offices was the Rev. Charles H. Brent of Buffalo, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Western New York.

Mr. Coolidge admitted camera men to the grounds to take photographs of himself and Mrs. Coolidge, and their son, John. It was the first opportunity given the still and motion picture cameramen since the first day of the President's vacation in the Adirondacks.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge will have no house guests tomorrow and will be accompanied only by their son, John, to the First Presbyterian Church at Saranac Lake. It will be the last service there for them.

No other house guests are expected during the remaining week of the vacation. Herbert J. Tily of Philadelphia, president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, will be received at the executive offices Tuesday.

D. W. Morgan of Utica, head of a knitting company, called at the executive offices this morning and arranged to send the President two dozen suits of knit goods.

Powerful in Preaching but Poor in Practice, So His Brother-in-Law Killed the Philanderer

The Reverend Edward Gillum Was Told to Stay Away From Walter Leffler's Wife. He Didn't Heed the Warning. And the Husband Hit Him With an Indian Club.

Grace Leffler and her 7-months-old baby.

Walter Leffler.

The Reverend Edward Gillum in his study.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SPRINGFIELD, Missouri.

THE REVEREND EDWARD W. GILLUM, pastor and evangelist, had been preaching for 20 years. He was something of the itinerant preacher, never stopping for any great length of time at any one place. His work took him from Missouri to Oregon. Churches heard his call, listened to his word, watched him as he expounded the doctrines from their pulpits. Evangelical gatherings saw him, too: many was the time he cried out his message under revival meetings' tents.

"Today is the day of salvation," he shouted. "How much is your soul worth? Come, brothers; come, sisters, let us unite our voices in prayer, let us lift up our eyes to Him who gave us life. Let us sing songs in His praise. Come one, come all; let each of us gathered tonight in this place of God swear forever to walk in His path, to put aside all evil and all thoughts of evil. Let us be generous to our fellow men; let us honor and respect their homes, their property, their wives and their children. Let us praise God."

A most celestial sentiment, no doubt. If the Reverend Gillum believed what he said, all right, let him shout it out. But the evangelist didn't practice what he preached, and the other day his brother-in-law hit him over the head with an Indian club and Edward Gillum was gathered to his fathers.

It was 10 years ago that a young man named Walter Leffler—he had just reached 21—took him a wife of 17. They were married here in Springfield. Walter had been born in Lowry City, Missouri, had come to Springfield to work and, coming, had found Grace and fallen in love with her. The wedding was just like most of them; relatives and friends were invited. Now, among the honored guests were Walter's sister, Lettie, and her husband, the Reverend Edward Gillum. This latter guest was greeted heartily, if timidly; he was a man of God and everyone felt a little backward about going up and grabbing his hand too enthusiastically; it didn't seem just the right thing to do. But he was fully honored, and as he stood near the young couple as they were made man and wife, the while he smiled benignly upon them, one of the young bride's friends would nudge another guest and say: "That's Preacher Gillum; he's Walter's brother-in-law, and he's sure a fine man." And she who was nudged would agree, for there stood Parson Gillum with the light playing about his face. The ceremony completed, Parson Gillum kissed the bride. She blushed.

YOUNG LEFFLER had a wife, now; it behooved him to gather together a stake. So he set out "firing" on the Frisco, and he and his girl moved to Clinton, Missouri, the point out of which he worked. But this young Leffler was ambitious; the money he made as a railroad fireman was not enough for him. Besides, there was a baby coming. Walter had good shoulders and sinewy arms. His thighs were firm and his neck cordy. He figured he could take a lot of punishment and deliver a lusty wallop at the same time.

So when he wasn't firing he put on the boxing gloves, sparred around with his friends, found another man who knew something of the technique of boxing, and started in to learn something of the fight ring. Presently, he got a chance in a preliminary bout and showed enough ability to get another. He took up prize fighting on the side.

Walter's and Grace's first baby was born, a boy. Walter, with what he got from the Frisco and the small roll he would bring home after he had battled around a ring, was making a comfortable living for himself and his little family. He kept at it. A year later there was another baby, a little girl this time. Walter fought all the harder.

Seven years went by.

Reverend Gillum had taken himself to the Northwest. Baker, Oregon, claimed his attention. There he had a church, and, as always, he conducted his preachings in the revivalist style, calling on his flock to shame the devil and come and see the light.

In the years before that he had spent most of his time in Southern Missouri, in the Springfield district. Either he had held a charge in some small town or he had taken to the tent and revival route.

Often since that day he first met Grace, that day of her wedding, had he seen her. Often, being not far from Clinton, he and his wife had called on her brother and Grace. On those occasions, at least as well as everyone could see, he was the circumspect clergyman, lifting his eyes and spreading his hands in benediction, patting the children of Grace and Walter on their heads, telling them to follow in the footsteps of the Lord.

The Reverend Gillum, almost 10 years Walter Leffler's senior, took a fatherly interest, so it seemed, in his wife's brother. He advised him to do this and do that. Walter usually took his advice, for wasn't Edward Gillum his brother-in-law, wasn't he a man of the Bible? He did not confine his tutelage to Grace's husband; he kindly and gratuitously gave her advice. And he fondled the little children.

THEN Pastor Gillum left Missouri and made for Oregon. He got a church at Baker. He told the good people of his flock it was high time they were taking more interest in their church, in their religion, in the after life that was to come. He preached the bright light of heaven and berated the devil. The people of Baker, and especially the religionists that gathered to his preachings, decided he was a fine, upright, Christian gentleman.

One day there arrived at Clinton, Missouri, a letter for Walter Leffler. It was from his brother-in-law. Come to Baker, it said. Here in the West are great opportunities for young men; come to Baker and bring along your dear Grace and the two little ones. And, continued the letter, Reverend Gillum would be glad to aid his brother-in-law in any way necessary; he would be glad to give him money if he desired it; the expenses of Walter Leffler and his family would not be great, because Reverend Gillum had a nice-sized house and there was plenty of room in it for Walter and Grace and the two children.

Walter and Grace talked over the proposition. It would take quite a bit of money to get out to Baker, but then they had something saved. And, Walter decided, if Reverend Gillum thought it was the thing for him to do, he would take the Reverend Gillum's advice. For his brother-in-law had always taken a fatherly interest in him, his brother-in-law had always advised him. And he would only instruct him for the good. For he was a minister.

The Lefflers and the little Lefflers went to Baker.

They stayed there for a year.

Then Reverend Gillum got into trouble with his church. His flock began to believe he wasn't, perhaps, the upright, Christian gentleman he had at first led them to believe he was. Reverend Gillum left his charge. The Lefflers, lower in cash than when they had deserted Missouri for the Far West, returned to Springfield. Walter got a job with a construction gang and fought on the side.

PASTOR GILLUM, too, returned to Missouri. He wrote Walter and asked for money. But the young man had none to give. Pastor Gillum had trouble with Mrs. Gillum. They separated. Often Gillum called at Leffler's home. But he was no longer friendly with Leffler. He kept his benedictions for Leffler's wife.

And when he wasn't in Springfield to call upon Grace and talk to her, he wrote her letters. Long letters, filled with soft words and endearments. The letters came often. On one of his visits, when Walter was away at work, Pastor Gillum left a code with Grace. A check mark put at the bottom of a letter meant a kiss. A check mark, followed by a curled line—that meant a hug and a kiss. A long pencil line, with some dots above and other dots below—that meant the signature of Preacher Gillum.

When the preacher called on Grace, on those occasions when no one else was around, he told her strange and curious things. He had, he said, unusual hypnotic powers. His was the ability, he said, to cause her to do just as he wished. He had greater than hypnotic powers, he told her: he had powers and abilities of a supernatural nature. He could even cause death. "There will be a death," he told her, "in your family. Some one of your relatives will pass away." Before very long a child, a relative of the Lefflers, did die. "I told you someone in your family would die," Reverend Gillum hastened to inform Grace Leffler.

And he told her of love and he wrote her of love. Love, he said, is what our Maker wanted us to do. If He said we should love, then it is right. In a letter he wrote that at 9:30 o'clock tonight she would feel a curious sensation pass through her being. At that time, he elucidated, he would be thinking of her and loving her.

SO THINGS went on. Rev. Gillum got a church at Sheridan, Missouri. He continued to write Grace letters, and to come to Springfield each time he could. He quarreled with Walter. He told Walter he should have sent him money when he needed it. Grace, tiring of the preacher and his letters, told her husband Gillum was annoying her. Gillum visited the Lefflers again. Walter told him to stay away, never to come back. Gillum didn't heed the warning. He wrote more letters. The other day Gillum drove up to the little Leffler house, drove up when Walter was away at his work. Walter, his day over, came home. He found Gillum there. And he killed him.

Walter Leffler, his wife and their oldest child.

Edward Gillum, evangelist.

Walter Leffler, brown as a berry from his work in the sun, a scar on his face where an opponent's glove had ripped it, sat in a chair in the office of the Chief of Detectives, here, and told the writer how he came to have a man's death on his hands.

"We were living in Clinton," he said, "my wife and my two children and myself. I was firing on the Frisco and boxing on the side. I made pretty good money at boxing. I never intended to make a business of it, but it helped out a lot. Well, one day I got a letter from Gillum and he wanted us to come out there to Baker, Oregon, and live with him. He said he had a good job as preacher and that the West was the place a young man ought to be in, because there were all sorts of chances out there.

"So we packed up and went out. I don't know if he ever said anything to my wife out there, but I guess he did.

"We were out there about a year. We didn't leave till Gillum quit the church. The trouble came up this way: One of the deacons of the church was a pretty good friend of Gillum's. Gillum got along fine at first. Then a rumor started about Gillum and a couple of girls in the congregation. One day the deacons had a meeting and they called on this deacon who had been a friend of Gillum's to say what he thought about him. This deacon said he didn't believe the preacher was a high type of Christian.

"Then Gillum heard what this deacon had said and he came to me and said: 'I'm going to call that damned fellow over here and beat him up. I want you to stay around and see I don't get beat up.' I told him I would. I had been doing quite a bit of boxing around Baker and making pretty good at it.

"So Gillum called this deacon over to his house and they begun to fight out in the front yard. I separated them pretty soon; they were attracting so much attention. After that Gillum left the church and I brought my family back to Springfield. That was a year and a half ago—about.

"GILLUM came back to this part of the country, too. He preached around here, near Springfield, and once in a while in Springfield. He wrote me and told me he'd given me money out in Baker when I needed it, and that I ought to give him money now. But I couldn't. After that he always had it in for me.

"It was after we got back here from Baker, as far as I know, that he started trying to make up to my wife. He wrote her letters all the time and came to see her whenever he got a chance. He came here and stayed with us some time. He didn't pay any attention to me any more, he just paid attention to my wife.

"Well, when I found out about the letters and knew he was calling on her all the time, I didn't like it. He'd got a church up in Sheridan, but he got down here every once in a while. And he kept up his letter writing. Our third baby was born about seven months ago. He was always writing, telling my wife this and that.

"One day he came to visit us again. He drove up in his automobile. I went out to talk to him and told him I didn't want him ever to come to my house again. Then he drew a knife. I went around to the other side of the car. He reached into the car then and got his revolver and put away his knife. He always carried a revolver. Then he got into the car and sat there with the gun lying next to him on the seat.

"'You always were yellow,' he said to me.

"But even after that he kept on writing letters to my wife, just the same.

"WELL, the other day I came home from work. I saw my wife working at something in the back yard. I walked into the front room and found Gillum there. 'I don't want to have anything to do with you,' he said to me. And he put his hand back to his hip pocket. I thought it was going to be either him or me. I reached for an Indian club that was on the floor and I hit him on the head. Then I hit him again and he fell through the screen door out onto the porch. I hit him again after he fell.

"Then I ran to a store and called the police and told them I was afraid I'd killed a man. Then I waited till the police came.

"I didn't mean to kill him. I didn't know I'd hit him that hard. I never have fights or trouble with anybody. When I was a boy going to school I never had one fight."

Tears came to the man's eyes.

He said: "I've suffered and suffered because of him. He's made my life terrible. If I knew it meant a rope around my neck or the electric chair, I'd do it again."

Valentino Was a Sheik Only in the Movies

Off the Screen He Was a Serious Artist. The Acclaim of the Ladies Did Not Entice Him. He Was a One-Woman Man

Jean Acker, Valentino's first wife.

Winifred Hudnut, his second wife.

By NIE

RODOLPH VALENTINO has gone beyond the verdicts of the movie critics, the goggly stares of languishing women, the roles of desert pundits. His was a short span of 30 years. But in that brief life, after hardships and buffetings, lean days and disappointments, he achieved a general fame and popularity excelled by no man or woman during the last decade.

He whirled into fame, with the unwinding of a movie reel, in the manner of a glistening comet. During an evening he became one of the most popular and most acclaimed men in America. Coming, as he had, to this country an immigrant boy; depending for his sustenance on odd jobs of a rather endless variety; starting out on his theatricals as a cabaret dancer—it is not to be wondered at that countless versions of his lineage, his birth place, and what he had done and how he had done it, sprang up around him like so many weeds. And like weeds these stories were; untended, growing of their own volition; with no one to sponsor them.

It became a matter of interest to find out the truth about Valentino. When he visited St. Louis early in 1923 to speak at a local picture theater, he was shown the proofs of an article the Post-Dispatch was about to publish on his career. Valentino came to the office of this newspaper, read the proofs, discovered some errors and deleted them, filled in certain missing information, and labeled the result an accurate and true tale of his life. The biographical data contained in this present article is based on the material O K'd by the actor.

His full name was Rodolph Alfonzo Raffallo Pierre Filibert Guglielmi di Valentina d'Antongulli, and he was born May 6, 1896, in the little village of Castellata, which is in the extreme south of Italy. His father was Dr. Giovanni Guglielmi, first an Italian cavalry officer, later a veterinary. The father died when Valentino was 11 years old. When a small boy Rodolph was sent to Dante Alligheri College, a boarding school. From there he went to the Collegio della Sapienze at Perugia. Valentino quite freely admitted that at neither institution did he make great academic progress. According to his story his chief scholastic accomplishment was making a place on the football team at the Collegio della Sapienze.

HE NEXT attempted to enter the Royal naval academy. But he was unsuccessful; he was rejected because of insufficient chest expansion. Instead, he began a course at an agricultural school. But this didn't last long. The boy's aversion to study and his extravagance caused his family to stop his allowance. They called him home and decided the best place for him would be America. He was given some money and he sailed away on the S. S. Cleveland of the Hamburg-American Line, landing at New York on December 23, 1913. He knew no English, he had no friends in this country, he was almost without funds.

One version of his leaving home was that he ran away. He always took vigorous exception to it.

"It hurts me," he said, "to have anyone think I would treat my mother so. As a matter of fact, she gave me the money to buy my ticket and spent a week packing my trunk herself so that she would be certain that I should have everything that she could possibly give me."

Valentino was 17 when he first saw New York. Low in money, it behooved him to get a job. But this Italian lad, not knowing the language of this new land, found no steady employment. Odd jobs of all sorts fell his lot and he was glad to get them, menial though they were. And even these jobs were not always forthcoming; when they failed him Valentino failed to eat.

Finally, late the following spring, the boy got a job as gardener on the estate of Cornelius N. Bliss Jr., on Long Island. But it was not for long. Mrs. Bliss, who had been away, returned, and decided to turn the garden into a golf course. Rodolph had lost another job.

Those were the days when the present dance craze was getting in its sound, first licks. Young Rodolph had learned to dance in Italy, and dance he could, excellently. In search of something to do he drifted toward the cabaret belt. He got odd jobs around these dance places; soon they discovered he had ability.

Now comes a romantic twist in the boy's life. He had got a job at old Reisenweber's, one of the Broadway night cabarets. Joan Sawyer was dancing there. Came an evening when her partner failed to appear. Casting about in this emergency, she thought of the good-looking young Italian, tales of whose ability to dance had come to her ears. Missing though her partner was, his dress suit was present. They told Valentino to get into it, and he started off as an exhibition dancer.

WITH Joan Sawyer as a partner his skill developed rapidly. On several occasions during the following months Valentino danced with Miss Sawyer, Bonnie Glass and Mae Murray at cabarets and in vaudeville. Along Broadway and at the cabarets and vaudeville houses he was known as "Mr. Rodolph." His name of Valentino didn't emerge from obscurity for several years, not until he had got into the films.

From cabarets and vaudeville he drifted to the legitimate theater, getting a part as a dancer in a show touring to the Pacific Coast. In San Francisco the company went broke, and Rodolph again found himself out of a job. He decided to try the movies.

Valentino in various roles.

For a long time he cooled his heels around the studios waiting to get on as an extra. Now and then he was given a bit to do. Later on he got an occasional part as a "heavy," but attracted no particular attention. Then he was given a hero role, a sympathetic role. He worked hard. At last, he thought, he was getting somewhere. The picture was completed. But, shortly after, it became enmeshed in a law suit. It was never released.

It was about this time that he married his first wife, Jean Acker, a motion picture actress. The marriage was not successful; they did not live together any length of time; soon they were divorced.

Up to this time the name of Valentino was of slight consequence in the cinema world. Then Metro decided to film Ibanez's "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." They were looking for someone to play the hero.

JUNE MATHIS, who was writing the scenario for the picture, saw in Valentino the man for the role. So, in July, 1920, when they started to film the Ibanez novel, Valentino got his real chance. Just how much he did with this opportunity is a matter of moving picture history. Valentino was made.

He was next given the lead in a picture called "Uncharted Seas." More fame and popularity for him. Nazimova was preparing to play "Camille." Her art director and costume designer was Winifred Hudnut, known in the movie colony as Natcha Rambova, an adopted daughter of Richard Hudnut, the perfume manufacturer. Miss Hudnut believed Valentino was the man to play Armand in "Camille," and largely through her influence he was given the part. Again he made a hit.

Valentino saw a great deal of Miss Hudnut during the making of the picture and she is said to have aided him during its preparation. They were married. There was some dispute as to whether or not this marriage complied with the laws; the point in argument being if enough time had elapsed since Valentino's interlocutory divorce from Miss Acker to allow of his marrying again. But the difficulty was settled to the satisfaction of the courts. They were divorced in Paris in January of this year.

THE trouble seemed to be that Valentino preferred his wife to give up her professional work. The actor said that perhaps his marital views were a bit old-fashioned, but he believed that the husband should earn the money. A wife belongs at home, he declared, and concluded by saying he was so out of date that he couldn't do the Charleston. Mrs. Valentino said that she would not give up her career and that she had not married a sheik but an "admirable person who likes to stay at home and who is fond of sports."

A word picture of Rodolph Valentino as a boy who displayed real emotion over his misfortunes in love at the moment his artistic career reached its apex is sketched by Rosa Rosanova, known as "Rudy's Screen Mother," and called "Madre Mia" by him off stage.

Mme. Rosanova, a grandmother at 45, has told how Valentino confessed that life had cheated him of the thing he craved even more than an artistic success.

"He wanted someone to make him a home of the quiet, simple sort the Italians love," she said. "After his second divorce he was lonely. He would invite me to his house, rush into the kitchen and cook spaghetti with a big apron tied around him. Then he would eat and I would listen to his woes."

Valentino left Metro and went with Famous Players. With them he made "The Sheik," "Moran of the Lady Letty," and "Beyond the Rocks." There then arose a controversy between Valentino and Famous Players over his contract. He made no pictures for a time, but the difficulty was ironed out and once more he returned to the screen under that organization's banner.

The last company with which he was enrolled was United Artists. Among his last pictures were "Cobra" and "The Son of the Sheik," the latter only recently released.

What of this idol of millions as a man and an artist?

Those who met him, talked with him, knew him, have nothing but praise. It is not the weak praise so often doled out to those who have recently departed; that faint acclaim can always be detected; it is of a pale and watery tinge. Not so the remembrances of Valentino.

"SHEIK" though the movies made him, he was nothing of the sort in real life. He was a handsome chap, conservatively and excellently groomed; a man of subdued and gentlemanly demeanor; a man who spoke plainly and without the slightest "dog." The applause of the multitude never in the slightest turned his head.

As for the millions of fair ones who cast watery orbs in his direction—he wanted none of them. He had been married twice, true enough, but when he married his wife got all his attention and the other ladies were in the discard. He was a one-woman man, perhaps the true type of romanticist.

On the screen he was the most popular of all the cinema stars, especially with women. His popularity seems to have been greater than any other actor or actress, stage or screen, has ever enjoyed. And the movie with him was not something to be taken lightly; it was a serious business and his work was always that of a serious and conscientious young man endeavoring to put all he had into it. He wanted nothing slipshod about his pictures; he wanted them to be the best he was capable of.

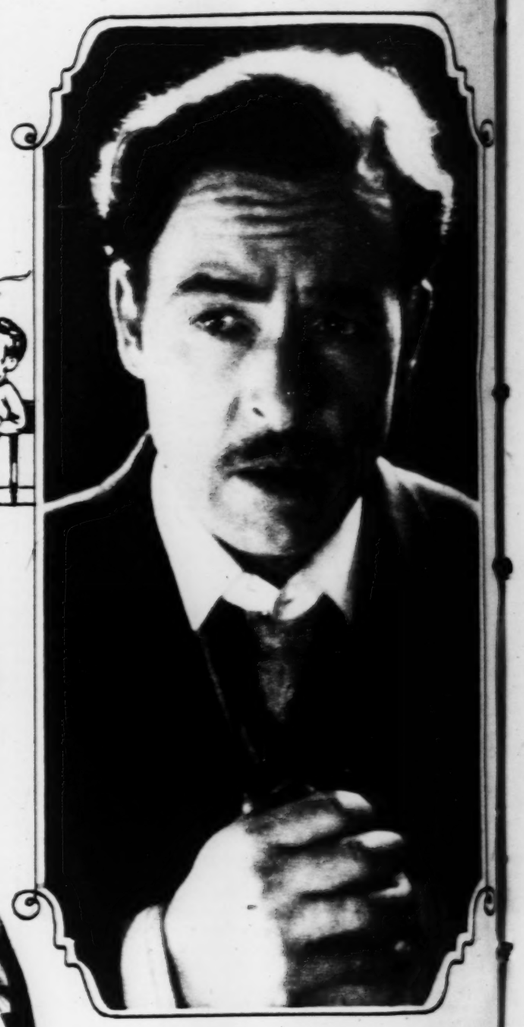
This conscientiousness and striving for excellence was not lost. It is likely that most motion picture critics who review the cinema from a distinctly artistic point of view would contend that Valentino was the greatest artist the moving pictures have ever had.

The Husband Demands Custody of the Kitchen

Robert Ober Carries the Banner of the Hollywood Males to Victory in Their Heroic Struggle to Win the Kitchen at Midnight—The Romance of Two Divoll School Children Wrecked on a New Rock in the Sea of Matrimony.

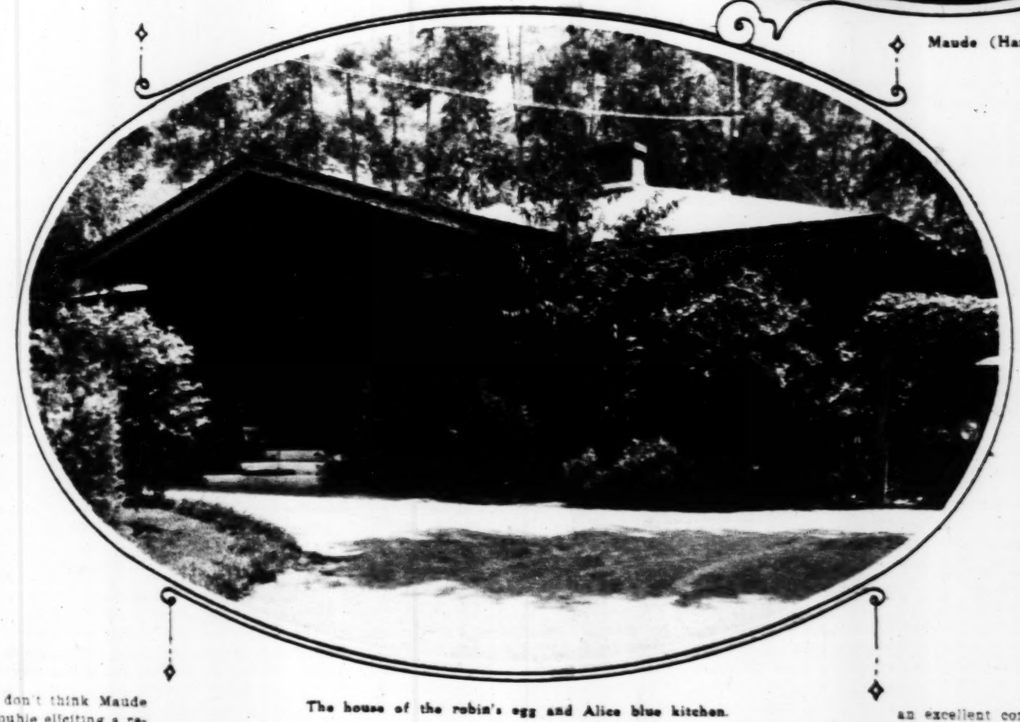
Robert Ober contemplates suicide. In a movie. The gentleman does nothing of the sort in real life.

Ober in proper person.



Overwhelmed by grief. But only in the movies.

Maude (Hannah-Florette) Fulton.



The house of the robin's egg and Alice blue kitchen.

By JULIUS KLEIMANN
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

WHEN Robert Ober, the movie actor, was an innocent little boy attending the Divoll grade school here in St. Louis—for even movie actors are innocent at that age—he was only interested in the kitchen as a place where he might now and then purloin a handful of jam. Nor, when he cast his glance across the iron picket fence separating the boys and girls of the Divoll school at recess time, was he at all interested in little Maude Fulton, who was to become an actress, a playwright and Robert's wife. It might also be mentioned that Robert isn't much interested in Maude today, either.

For a few days ago Maude got a divorce from Robert out in Hollywood.

Robert wasn't especially interested in kitchens in days of yore. But Robert is supremely taken with them today. Since Maude has deserted his bed and board, Robert has had the kitchen of his cottage, up in the shadow of the Hollywood Hills, tinted in robin's egg and Alice blues; he has had seats arranged around this kitchen's walls where his friends may gather and comfortably seat themselves of an evening; and he proclaims in philosophical tones, "After 11 p. m. the kitchen is the most important room in the house!"

The fellow is certainly right. No sophistry tinges that remark, it is the brew, the whole brew and nothing but the brew. Any householder with a penchant for late hours and a taste for beer, or even things stiffer—it is not known if Mr. Ober has that taste, but if he hasn't he's wasting a charming kitchen—will gladly affirm the significance of a liveable kitchen in the wee hours.

Hail the kitchen! When those early hours of the evening are past, when 8:30 p. m. has become 11 p. m., and the slight ache of hunger begins to touch one amidships; when the preceding hours, aided by delightful conversation, or other things, have wrapped the company in ease and contentment and vanished is the self-consciousness of nimble tongues, then there is only one logical room in a house to repair to, and that room is the kitchen. And as the ever willing gas stove ministers to the red bacon and yellow eggs, to the plebeian pork chop and the intriguing coffee, as the food is dished out on its platters and the hot, brown fluid poured in its cups, then all the hungry hosts become poets.

BUT how easy for this Olympus to be changed to a place that is in an entirely different direction, vertically speaking. Let there be one of this kitchen company who is a dissenter, one who frowns at a slightly ribald jest, one who becomes so bad-manneredly scientific as to declare the obvious but totally disregarded fact that pork chops and coffee at midnight are indigestible, and the party becomes a menace. Those things are to be considered ir the morning. Let there be one present who is not wholly and completely and intensely in sympathy with things as they are and those ambrosial dishes become mere pork chops and bacon and eggs, the compelling nectar changes to only coffee, the merriness and ecstasy and mellow fraternity fade away as an inconstant dream, and the evening is utterly ruined. You wish you were home in bed.

Maude Fulton was not in sympathy with her husband's kitchen parties. She could not have been, for no estrangement has ever arisen between a husband and wife who agreed that life was utterly futile if the late hours of it couldn't be spent in the kitchen with one's accomplices. If Maude Fulton had felt kindly, aye, passionately, for those culinary midnights, Robert Ober would never have said, "Certainly I shall not contest Miss Fulton's suit!" Neither would he have said, "She chose to leave. If that is her wish, I will not interfere!"

Nor could his wife have stated in her divorce petition that "he has absented himself without just cause or excuse the greater portion of each day and night, and refused to tell where he spent his time. When he was at home, he refused to talk or converse or have speech such as is usual and customary between husband and wife. He refused to discuss matters pertaining to our marital life—told me that my problems and occupations did not interest him and that he was tired of our life together."

Nor would she have gone on to complain that for the past two years he had left her at home alone much of the time, even though he knew she was nervous and afraid to remain alone at night; that she saw no one at her cottage, except casual visitors.

MISS FULTON is a playwright and play-writers are supposed to have imagination. If Miss Fulton had set her imagination working it seems that she wouldn't have had much difficulty in figuring out where Robert was of nights. She would merely have needed to get into her high-powered motor car, such as everyone in Hollywood has, and made the rounds of Robert's friends, looking only in the kitchens, and in one of those kitchens the chances are she would have found her spouse engaged in eating a fried egg, listening to a good story and discussing the merits of Moliere as a playwright.

And if on those occasions when her husband refused to converse or have speech with her, when he refused to discuss matters pertaining to their marital life—if on those occasions she would have said, "What do you say we toss a party in the kitchen tonight, Bob; let us send out a call to the boys and and let us make it something resembling a bender," I don't think Maude would have had much trouble eliciting a response from Robert.

For a long time now, the males of Hollywood have been getting a sad reputation among the more stalwart fellows of the nation. Ask any successful bus driver what he thinks of them, ask any husky iceman or early rising milkman; they will all tell you that they think these movie actors are a weak and insipid lot, a host of painted dummies with no more manliness about them than so many female rabbits.

That attitude seems to be an illusion and one that, it is high time, should be sent to the limbo of fabricated things. Once Hollywood may have been a male manikin's parade ground. I don't know, but no longer can that be true. When movie actors, or any other kind of males, gather in the kitchen in the late hours, masculinity is rampant. The very fact that males are fond of kitchen evenings gives the lie to any story about their being mollycoddles; it not only does that, it broadcasts the fact that fellows who so forgather have an intelligent outlook on life. Midnight in the kitchen marks an advancing civilization.

NOW Robert Ober is not the only movie star who yearns for kitchen nights and all the joy that goes with them. There are others, and plenty of them, out Hollywood way, who want freedom to do as they like, even if it can only be obtained by the divorce route. Look at Lew Cody. The fellow has a handsome residence; it is his castle and he is the boss. There is John Gilbert. A few weeks ago he was divorced by Leatrice Joy. There is no evidence that he spends his time looking at the little girl's picture, the while he emits ghastly moans. He has the house all to himself now; when Joy departed joy came in. Adolphe Menjou has put together his baggage and departed for New York, there to await his divorce decree. Why the lady who bears his name was allowed to remain in the house instead of Adolphe is not certainly known; the suspicion is that Mr. Menjou was not pleased with its kitchen. The list grows. King Vidor was divorced from Florence Vidor not long ago, and said: "If one would develop mentally and artistically to the fullest, one should not be hampered with domestic responsibilities. A genius simply must walk in the wet, wild woods by his lone way. Mrs. Vidor is the finest woman I have ever met. But the wife, business and art should not be mixed. Nothing should interfere with success."

Mr. Vidor's statement does sound a bit flowery. But he probably thought that for publication it sounded better to talk about the wet, wild woods than midnight on the linoleum. The writer thinks it does, but the way Vidor chooses to phrase his philosophy is, after all, Vidor's business.

Robert Ober began his stage career here in St. Louis about 20 years ago. He had just graduated from Washington University when he got a job on the business staff at the Grand Opera House. Next he worked as propegy man. Then he was taken on as the juvenile in Augustus Thomas's "Arizona." Finished with that, he went to New York and became property man for a play called "My Friend From Indiana." The company went on the road and Ober went with it. In a few months he was the leading man. His explanation of his extraordinary rise from "My Friend From Indiana" property man to its leading man is the honest explanation you would expect from a fellow who loves his kitchen as well as Ober does. "They made me the leading man," says Ober, "because every other leading man quit."

From the time of this play Ober was recognized as a capable actor and an altogether good leading man. He toured the country as the male lead in "Madame X," that gay business in which the male lead defends his mother in court and then has her die in his arms. But most of his roles were comedy ones. Now during all this time Maude Fulton had not remained at the Divoll school. She was just as good as the next one in her classes and graduated in due time. She wanted to go on the stage. And she landed in New York, when she was 19, with all of $100. She got a small part in a show. Then as the woman member of Rock and Fulton she toured the vaudeville circuit. She was a nimble dancer, a good singer and an excellent comedienne. Next, she began writing plays. She wrote "The Humming Bird," "The Brat" and several others. While so engaged she ran into Ober again, got him first for her director, then her leading man, next as her husband. They were married in 1920 in Boston, which is hardly a place to be married in and expect the business to turn out successfully.

Not long after this the twain made for Hollywood. Miss Fulton was asked to write scenarios, and she did, one of them being "The Big Top." Ober was immediately engaged to play leading roles in the cinemas.

"THIS child," she said, when she was on the hunt for it, "must have certain definite characteristics. First, it must have brilliant auburn hair, that rich shade of auburn that comes from generations who have wandered hatless under the sky. It must have dusky eyes that reflect the purple shadows of the night and it must be born of parents who loved each other. I will give the child care, affection, home and education, and I will try to set it a good example. I do not believe it is the child who learns from parents, adopted or otherwise, but the wisdom a parent may gain from a child is incalculable. It is for this reason, primarily, I want to adopt one.

"I am writing a play which will take me at least five years to complete and in it I want to put a child. I want that child to be my own. I want to see what genuine love and an attitude of equality instead of superiority will do for a child. Of course the child will have to understand from the first that in me it will have two mothers instead of one, because of my dual personality."

So Miss Fulton admits she is a dual personality. No wonder poor Robert Ober got tired; it is expecting entirely too much of any man to ask him to live with two women, though I am told some of them do.

Somewhere today, Maude Fulton is Hannah or Florette. At an entirely different place is a vine-covered cottage, permeated by an air of calm and contentment. On a reading table lies an open book; it is the life of Samuel Johnson. In a comfortable chair lounges a comfortable man. He is thinking serenely. In that house is a robin's egg and Alice blue kitchen. It, too, is thinking serenely. The man and the kitchen are thinking about the same things. They are thinking about midnight and fried eggs and jests and conversation.

THE DEBUT of BATTLING BILLSON

Ukridge, the Optimist, Tries Another Plan by Which He Expects to Scoop in Thousands. He Sees That the Managers of Pugilists Look Prosperous, and a Fortunate Coincidence Lets Him Be One, Too.

by

P. G. Wodehouse

Big Billson Had Left His Job on a Tramp Steamer Because He Was in Love With a Fair Barmaid. Whatever the Uses of Sentimentality, It Seems to Be a Doubtful Asset for a Fighter in the Ring.

The first thing I saw on opening the door was this enormous, red-headed man lying on the sofa, asleep.

IT becomes difficult, I have found, as time goes by, to recall the circumstances in which one became acquainted with this man or that; for I lay no claim to the possession of one of those hair-trigger memories. And yet I can state that the individual afterwards known as Battling Billson entered my life at half-past four on the afternoon of Saturday, September the tenth, two days after my twenty-seventh birthday. For there was that about my first sight of him which has caused the event to remain photographically lined on the tablets of my mind. Not only was our meeting dramatic, but it had in it something of the quality of the last straw, the final sling or arrow of outrageous Fortune. It seemed to put the lid on the sadness of life.

I had been paying a duty visit to uncongenial relatives in the country, and when finally I let myself into my lodgings in Ebury street and sought my sitting-room, the first thing I saw on opening the door was this enormous, red-headed man lying on the sofa.

He made no move as I came in, for he was asleep, and I can best convey the instantaneous impression I got of his formidable physique by saying that I had no desire to wake him. The sofa was a small one, and he overflowed it in every direction. He had a broken nose, and his jaw was the jaw of a Wild West motion-picture star registering Determination. One hand was under his head; the other, hanging down to the floor, looked like a strayed ham congealed into stone. There was something about him that seemed to suggest that he might be one of those men who are rather cross when they first wake up. I crept out and stole softly downstairs to make enquiries of Bowles, my landlord.

"There's someone in my room," I whispered.

"Mr. Ukridge's friend, sir. He joined Mr. Ukridge here yesterday."

"How do you mean, joined Mr. Ukridge here yesterday?"

"Mr. Ukridge came to occupy your rooms in your absence, sir. I assumed that he had your approval. Would there be anything further, sir?"

"No," I said. "Er—no. When do you expect Mr. Ukridge back?"

"Mr. Ukridge informed me that he would return for dinner, sir. He is now at the Gaiety Theater."

THE audience was just beginning to leave when I reached the Gaiety. I waited and presently was rewarded by the sight of a yellow mackintosh.

"Hallo, laddie!" said Stanley Featherstonebaugh Ukridge, genially. "When did you get back? What sort of a time have you had?"

"Never mind what sort of a time I've had. Who's the fellow you've dumped down in my rooms?"

"Red-haired man?"

"Good Heavens! Surely even you wouldn't inflict more than one on me?"

Ukridge looked at me a little pained.

"I don't like this tone," he said, leading me down the steps of the Coal Hole. "Upon my Sam, your manner wounds me, old horse. I little thought that you would object to your best friend laying his head on your pillow."

"I don't mind your head. At least I do, but I suppose I've got to put up with it. But when it comes to your taking in lodgers——"

"Order two tawny ports, laddie," said Ukridge, "and I'll explain all about that. I had an idea all along that you would want to know. It's like this," he proceeded, when the tawny ports had arrived. "That bloke's going to make my everlasting fortune."

"Well, can't he do it somewhere else except in my sitting-room?"

"You know me, old horse," said Ukridge, sipping luxuriously. "Keen, alert, far-sighted. The other day I was in a pub down Chelsea way and a fellow came in smothered with jewels. I made inquiries and found that he was Tod Bingham's manager."

"Who's Tod Bingham?"

"My dear, old son, you must have heard of Tod Bingham. The new middleweight champion. And this bloke, as opulent-looking a bloke as ever I saw, was his manager. I suppose he gets about fifty per cent of everything Tod makes, and you know the sort of purses they give for big fights nowadays. And then there's music-hall tours and the movies and all that. Well, I see no reason why, putting the thing at the lowest figures, I shouldn't scoop in thousands. I got the idea two seconds after they told me who this fellow was. And what made the thing seem almost as if it was meant to be was the coincidence that I should have heard only that morning that the Hyacinth was in."

"I don't know what you're talking about," I said. "What's the Hyacinth? In where?"

"Pull yourself together, old horse," said Ukridge. "You remember the Hyacinth, the tramp steamer I took that trip on a couple of years ago. She docked in the Port of London the night before I met this opulent bloke, and I had been meaning to go down next day and have a chat with the lads. The fellow you found in your rooms is one of the trimmers. Not much conversation, but a heart of gold. And it came across me like a thunderbolt the moment they told me who the jeweled cove was that, if I could only induce this man Billson to take up scrapping seriously, with me as his manager, my fortune was made. Billson is the man who invented fighting."

"He looks it."

"I've seen that man clean out a bar at Marseilles in a way that fascinated me. A bar filled to overflowing with A.B.'s and firemen, and all capable of felling oxen with a blow. Six of them there were, and they kept swatting Billson, but he just let them bounce off, and went on with the business in hand. The man's a champion, laddie, nothing less. And the amazing bit of luck is that he was looking for a job ashore. It appears he's fallen in love with one of the barmaids at the Crown in Kennington. Not," said Ukridge, so that all misapprehension should be avoided, "the one with the squint. The other one. Flossie. The girl with yellow hair."

"I don't know the barmaids at the Crown in Kennington," I said.

"Nice girls," said Ukridge paternally. "So it was all right, you see. Good old Billson isn't what you'd call a very intelligent chap, but I managed to make him understand after an hour or so, and we drew up the contract. I'm to get fifty per cent of everything in consideration of managing him.

"We move to the White Hart at Barnes tomorrow, to start training. I've got Billson in one of the preliminaries down at Wonderland two weeks from tonight."

"No; really?" I said. "How did you manage it?"

"I JUST took him along and showed him to the management. You see, the old boy's appearance rather speaks for itself. Thank goodness, all this happened just when I had a few quid tucked away. By the greatest good luck I ran into George Tupper at the very moment when he had had word that they were going to make him an under-secretary or something—I can't remember the details, but it's something they give these Foreign Office blokes when they show a bit of class—and Tuppy parted with a tenner without a murmur. Seemed sort of dazed. I believe now I could have had twenty if I'd had the presence of mind to ask for it. Still," said Ukridge, with resignation, "it can't be helped now, and ten will see me through. The only thing that's worrying me at the moment is what to call Billson."

"Why not his own name?"

"His parents, confound them," said Ukridge, "christened him Wilberforce. I ask you, can you see the crowd at Wonderland having Wilberforce Billson introduced to them?"

"Willie Billson," I suggested. "Rather snappy."

Ukridge considered the proposal seriously, with knit brows, as becomes a manager.

"How about Battling Billson?"

"Go no farther," I said. "The thing is settled. Battling Billson is the name."

Ukridge and his protege left next morning for Barnes, and I saw no more of the Battler until the fateful night at Wonderland.

I HAD not supposed that it was possible for a man to be larger than was Mr. Billson when arrayed for the street, but in trunks and boxing shoes he looked like his big brother. Muscles resembling the hawsers of an Atlantic liner coiled down his arms and rippled along his massive shoulders. He seemed to dwarf altogether the by no means flimsy athlete who passed out of the room as we came in.

"That's the bloke," announced Mr. Billson.

We understood him to imply that the other was his opponent, and the spirit of confidence which had animated us waxed considerably. Where six of the pick of the Merchant Marine had failed, this stripling could scarcely hope to succeed.

"I ben talkin' to 'im," said Battling Billson.

I took this unwonted garrulity to be due to nervousness natural at such a moment.

"E's 'ad a lot of trouble, that bloke," said the Battler.

The obvious reply was that he was now going to have a lot more, but before either of us could make it a hoarse voice announced that the stage waited for our nominee. We hurried to our seats. The audience seemed in excellent humor. All those who were not too busy eating jellied eels were babbling happily or whistling, between their fingers, to friends in distant parts of the hall. As Mr. Billson climbed into the ring in all the glory of his red hair and jumping muscles, the babble rose to a roar. It was plain that Wonderland had stamped our Battler with its approval on sight.

The audiences which support Wonderland are not disdainful of science. Neat footwork wins their commendation, and a skillful ducking of the head is greeted with knowing applause. But what they esteem most highly is the punch. And one sight of Battling Billson seemed to tell them that here was the Punch personified. They sent the fighters off to a howl of ecstasy, and settled back in their seats to enjoy the pure pleasure of seeing two of their fellow-men hitting each other very hard and often.

The howl died away.

I looked at Ukridge with concern. Was this the hero of Marseilles, the man who cleaned out bar-rooms and on whom undertakers fawned? Diffident was the only word to describe our Battler's behavior in that opening round. He pawed lightly at his antagonist. He embraced him like a brother. He shuffled about the ring, innocuous. The referee was speaking to him like a disappointed father. In the cheaper and baser parts of the house enraged citizens were whistling "Comrades." Everywhere a chill had fallen on the house.

With the opening of the second round considerably more spirit was introduced into the affair. The same strange torpidity still held our Battler in its grip, but his opponent was another man. During round one he had seemed a little nervous and apprehensive. He had behaved as if he considered it prudent not to stir Mr. Billson. But now this distaste for direct action had left him. There was jauntiness in his demeanor as he moved to the center of the ring; and, having reached it, he uncoiled a long left and smote Mr. Billson forcefully on the nose. Twice he smote him, and twice Mr. Billson blinked like one who had had bad news from home. The man who had a lot of trouble leaned sideways and brought his right fist squarely against the Battler's ear.

ALL was forgotten and forgiven. A moment before the audience had been solidly anti-Billson. Now they were as unanimously pro. For these blows, while they appeared to have affected him not at all physically, seemed to have awakened Mr. Billson's better feelings as if somebody had turned on a tap. For an instant after the receipt of that bullet on the ear the Battler stood motionless, apparently in deep thought. Then, with the air of one who has suddenly remembered an important appointment, he plunged forward. Like an animated windmill he cast himself upon the bloke of troubles. He knocked him here, he bounced him there. He committed mayhem upon his person. He did everything to him that a man can do who is hampered with boxing-gloves, until presently the troubled one was leaning heavily against the ropes; his head hanging dazedly, his whole attitude that of a man who would just as soon let the matter drop. It only remained for the Battler to drive home the final punch, and a hundred enthusiasts were pointing out to him desirable locations for it.

But once more that strange diffidence had descended upon our representative. He looked uncertainly at his opponent and enquiringly at the referee.

The referee, obviously a man of blunted sensibilities, wanted his patrons to get good value for their money. He was urging Mr. Billson to make a thorough job of it. And finally, Mr. Billson approached his man and drew back his right arm. Having done this, he looked over his shoulder once more at the referee.

It was a fatal blunder. The man who had a lot of trouble may have been in poor shape, but, like most of his profession, he retained, despite his recent misadventures, a reserve store of energy. Even as Mr. Billson turned his head, he reached down to the floor with his gloved right hand, then, with a final effort, brought it up in a majestic sweep against the angle of the other's jaw. And then, as the fickle audience, with swift change of sympathy, cheered him on, he buried his left in Mr. Billson's stomach.

Battling Billson dropped like a stricken flower, settled slowly down and spread himself out. He lay peacefully on his back with outstretched arms like a man floating in smooth water. His day's work was done.

A wailing cry rose above the din of excited patrons of sport endeavoring to explain to their neighbors how it had all happened. It was the voice of Ukridge mourning over his dead.

AT HALF-PAST eleven that night, as I was preparing for bed, a drooping figure entered my room.

"How is the poor fellow?" I asked.

"He's all right," said Ukridge, listlessly. "I left him eating fish and chips at a coffee-stall."

"Bad luck his getting pipped on the post like that."

"Bad luck!" boomed Ukridge. "It was just boneheadedness. Upon my Sam, it's a little hard. I invest vast sums in this man. I support him in luxury for two weeks, asking nothing of him in return except to sail in and knock somebody's head off, which he could have done in two minutes if he had liked, and he lets me down purely and simply because the other fellow told him that he had been up all night looking after his wife who had burned her hand at the jam factory. Infernal sentimentalism!"

"What are you going to do about his future? Have you any plans?"

"Nothing definite."

I did not see Ukridge for the next few days, but I had news of him from our friend, George Tupper, whom I met down Whitehall.

"I say," said George Tupper without preamble, and with a sort of dazed fervor, "they've given me an under-secretaryship."

I pressed his hand. "Congratulations," I said. "I heard rumors of this from Ukridge."

"I want you and Ukridge to come and have a bit of dinner with me to celebrate. How would Wednesday suit you?"

"Splendidly."

"Seven-thirty at the Regent Grill, then. Will you tell Ukridge?"

"I don't know where he's got to. I haven't seen him for nearly a week. Did he tell you where he was?"

"Out at some place at Barnes. What was the name of it?"

"The White Hart?"

"That's it."

"Tell me," I said, "how did he seem? Cheerful?"

"Very. Why?"

"The last time I saw him he was thinking of giving up the struggle. He had had reverses."

I proceeded to the White Hart. The fact that Uridge had regained his usual sunny outlook on life seemed to point to the fact that the clouds enveloping the future of Mr. Billson had cleared away, and that the latter's hat was still in the ring. That this was so was made clear to me directly I arrived. Enquiring for my old friend, I was directed to an upper room, from which there came a peculiar thudding noise. It was caused, as I perceived on opening the door, by Mr. Billson. Clad in flannel trousers and a sweater, he was earnestly pounding a large, leather object suspended from a wooden platform. His manager regarded him the while with affectionate proprietorship.

"Hallo, old horse!" said Ukridge, as I entered. "Glad to see you."

THE din of Mr. Billson's bag-punching was such as to render conversation difficult. We moved to the quieter retreat of the bar downstairs, where I informed Ukridge of the under-secretary's invitation.

"I'll be there," said Ukridge. "There's one thing about good, old Billson, you can trust him not to break training if you take your eye off him. And, of course, he realizes that this is a big thing. It'll be the making of him. We're on to a big thing now, laddie, the dickens of a big thing."

"I hope you've made sure the other man's a bachelor. Who is he?"

"Tod Bingham."

"Tod Bingham?" I groped in my memory. "You don't mean the middle-weight champion?"

"That's the fellow."

"You don't expect me to believe that you've got a match on with a champion already?"

"It isn't exactly a match. It's like this. Tod Bingham is going round the East-end halls offering two hundred quid to anyone who'll stay four rounds with him. Advertisement stuff. Good, old Billson is going to unleash himself at the Shoreditch Empire next Saturday."

"Do you think he'll be able to stay four rounds?"

"Stay four rounds!" cried Ukridge. "Why, he could stay four rounds with a fellow armed with a Gatling-gun and a couple of picksaxes. That money's as good as in our pockets, laddie. I don't mind telling you in confidence, old horse, that in a year from now I expect to be pulling in hundreds a week. Clean up a bit first you know, then pop over to America and make an enormous fortune. I shan't know how to spend the money!"

"Why not buy some socks? I'm running a bit short of them."

"Now laddie, laddie," said Ukridge, "need we strike a jarring note? Is this the moment to fling your beastly socks in an old friend's face? A broader-minded spirit is what I would like to see."

I was ten minutes late in arriving at the Regent Grill on the Wednesday of George Tupper's invitation, and the spectacle of George at the Piccadilly entrance filled me with remorse.

"Oh, there you are," said George. "I say, it's too bad——"

"I'm awfully sorry. My watch——"

"Ukridge!" cried George Tupper, and I perceived that it was not I who had caused his concern.

"ISN'T he coming?" I asked, amazed. The idea of Ukridge evading a free meal was one of those that seem to make the foundations of the world rock.

"He's come. And he's brought a girl with him!"

"A girl!"

"In pink, with yellow hair," wailed George Tupper. "What am I to do?"

"It's a weird thing for even Ukridge to have done," I said, "but I suppose you'll have to give her dinner."

"But the place is full of people I know, and this girl's so—so spectacular."

I felt for him deeply, but I could see no way out of it.

Tupper sighed.

He drew himself up as if bracing himself for a dreadful ordeal.

"Oh, well, I suppose there's nothing to do," he said. "Come along. I left them drinking cocktails in the lounge."

George had not erred in describing Ukridge's addition to the festivities as spectacular. Flamboyant would have been a suitable word. As she preceded us down the long dining-room, her arm linked in George Tupper's—she seemed to have taken a liking to George—I had ample opportunity for studying her, from her patent-leather shoes to the mass of golden hair beneath her picture-hat.

Ukridge seemed to experience a slight twinge of conscience.

Bruce Shifted a Nation to Defeat the Tsetse Fly

The Fascinating Story of the Fight on Sleeping Sickness—In the Blood of Animals Suffering From Nagana He Discovered Snake-Like Organisms Which Writhed in Masses and Brought Certain Death. Through Tests Which Cost the Lives of Hundreds of Horses He Determined That the Tsetse Fly Was Responsible and Thus Was Able to Rid Africa of Its Most Deadly Scourge.

CHAPTER 8.

YOUNG man!"—the face of the Director-General of the British Army Medical Service changed from an irritated red to an indignant mauve color—"young man, I will send you to India. I will send you to Zanzibar. I will send you to Timbuctoo—I will send you anywhere I please!"—(the majestic old gentleman was shouting now, and his face was a positively furious purple!—"but you may be damned sure I shall not send you to Natal!" Reverberations.

What could David Bruce do but salute and withdraw from his presence? He had schemed, he had begged, and pulled wires, finally he had dared the anger of this Jupiter, so that he might go hunt microbes in South Africa. It was in the early eighteen-nineties; Theobald Smith, in America, had just made his revolutionary jump ahead in microbe hunting—he had just shown how death may be carried by a tick, and only by a tick, from one animal to another. And now this David Bruce, physically as adventurous as Theobald Smith was mildly professorial, wanted to turn that corner after Smith. Africa swarmed with mysterious viruses that made the continent a hell to live in; in the olive-green mimosa thickets and the jungle hummed and sizzled a hundred kinds of flies and ticks and gnats. What a place for discoveries, for swashbuckling microscoping and lone-wolfing bug-huntings Africa must be.

It was in the nature of David Bruce to do things his superiors and elders didn't want him to do. Just out of medical school in Edinburg, he had joined the British Army Medical Service, not to fight nor to save lives, nor to get a chance to hunt microbes—not for any such noble objects. He had joined it because he wanted to marry. They hadn't a shilling, neither Bruce nor his sweetheart; their folks called them 13 kinds of romantic idiots—why couldn't they wait until David had established himself in a nice practice?

So Bruce joined the army and married on a salary of $1000 a year.

He was ordered to an English garrison on the Island of Malta in the Mediterranean. There was a mysterious disease in the island. It was called Malta fever. It was an ill that sent pains up and down the shin bones of soldiers and made them curse the day they took the Queen's shilling. Bruce saw it was silly to sit patting the heads of these sufferers, and futile to prescribe pills for them—he must find the cause of Malta fever.

So he got himself into a mess. In an abandoned shack he set up a laboratory, and here he spent weeks learning how to make a culture medium out of beef broth and agar-agar, to grow the unknown germ of Malta fever in. It ought to be simple to discover it. His ignorance made him think that; and in his inexperience he got the sticky agar-agar over hands and face; it stained his uniform; the stuff set into obstinate jelly when he tried to filter it; he spent weeks doing a job a modern laborer's helper would accomplish in a couple of hours. Out of his $1000 a year he bought monkeys at $1.75 apiece. He tried to inject the blood of tortured soldiers into these creatures; but they wriggled out of his hands and bit him and scratched him and were in general infernally lively nuisances. He called to his wife: "Will you hold this monkey for me?"

THAT was the way she became his assistant and, as you will see, for 30 years she remained his right hand, going with him into the most pestilential, dirty holes any microbe hunter has ever seen, sharing his poverty, beaming on his obscure glories; she was so important to his tremendous but not notorious conquests.

They were such muddlers at first, it is hard to believe it, but together these newly wed bacteriologists worked and discovered the microbe of Malta fever—and were ordered from Malta for their pains. "What was Bruce up to, anyway?" So asked the high medical officers of the garrison. "Why wasn't he treating the suffering soldiers—what for was he sticking himself away there in the hole he called his laboratory?" And they denounced him as an idiot, a visionary, a good-for-nothing monkey-tamer and dabbler with test tubes. And just—he did do this 20 years later—as he might have discovered how the little bacillus of Malta fever sneaks from the udder of goats into the blood of British Tommies, he was ordered away to Egypt.

Then he was ordered back to England, to the Army Medical School at Netley, to teach microbe hunting there—for hadn't he discovered the germ of an important disease? Here he met His Excellency, the Honorable Sir Walter Hely-Hutchinson, Governor of Natal and Zululand. Together these two adventurers saw visions and made plans. His Excellency knew nothing about microbes, but he had a colonial administrator's dream of Africa buzzing with prosperity under the Union Jack. Bruce cared no fig for expansion of the empire, but he knew there must be viruses sneaking from beast to beast and man to man on the stingers of bugs and flies. He wanted (and so did Mrs. Bruce) to investigate strange diseases in impossible places.

It was then that he, only a brash Captain, went to the majestic Director-General and I have just told how he was demolished. But even Directors-General cannot remember the uppish wishes of all their pawns and puppets; directors may propose, but adroit wire-pulling sometimes disposes, and presently, in 1894, Surgeon-Major David Bruce and Mrs. Bruce are in Natal, traveling by ox-team 10 miles a day towards Ubombo in Zululand. The temperatures in the shade of their double tent often reached 106; swarms of tsetse flies escorted them, harassed them, flopped on them with the speed of express trains and stung them like little adders; they were howled at by hyenas and growled at by lions. They spent part of every night scratching tick bites. But Bruce and his wife, the two of them, were the First British Nagana Commission to Zululand. So they were happy.

THEY were commanded to find out everything about the disease called nagana—the pretty, native name for an unknown something that made great stretches of South Africa a desolate place, impossible to farm in, dangerous to hunt big game in, suicidal to travel in. Nagana means "depressed and low in spirits." Nagana steals into fine horses and makes their coats thin and their hair fall out; while the fat of these horses melts away, nagana grows watery pouches on their bellies and causes a thin rheum to drip from their noses; a milky film spreads over their eyes and they go blind; they droop, and at last die—every last horse touched by the nagana dies. It was the same with cattle. Farmers tried to improve their herds by importing new stock; cows sent to them fat and in prime condition came miserably to their kraals to die of nagana. Fat droves of cattle, sent away to far-off slaughter houses, arrived there hairless, hidebound skeletons. There were strange belts of country through which it was death for animals to go. And the big game hunters. They would start into these innocent-looking thickets with their horses and pack mules; one by one—in certain regions, mind you—their beasts wilted under them. When these hunters tried to hoof it back, sometimes they got home.

Bruce and Mrs. Bruce came at last to Ubombo. They set up their laboratory; it consisted of a couple of microscopes, a few glass slides, some knives and syringes and perhaps a few dozen test tubes. Here they set to work, with sick horses and cattle brought up from the plain below—for Providence had so arranged it that beasts could live on the barren hill of Ubombo absolutely safe from nagana, but just let a farmer lead them down into the juicy grass of that fertile plain, and the chances were ten to one they would die of nagana before they became fat on the grass. Bruce shaved the ears of the horses and jabbed them with a scalpel, a drop of blood welled out and Mrs. Bruce, dodging kicks, touched off the drops onto thin, glass slides.

AND very soon they made their first step ahead: in the blood of one of their horses, sick unto death, Bruce spied a violent, unwonted dancing among the faintly yellow, piled-up blood corpuscles; he slid his slide along the stage of his microscope, till he came to an open space in the jungle of blood cells.

There, suddenly, popped into view the cause of the commotion—a curious, little beast (much bigger than any ordinary microbe, though), a creature with a blunt rear-end and a long, slim, lashing whip with which he seemed to explore in front of him. A creature shaped like a panetela cigar, only it was flexible, almost tying itself in knots sometimes, and it had a transparent, graceful fin running the length of its body. Another of the beasts swam into the open space under the lens, and another. They didn't go stupidly along like common microbes—they acted like intelligent little dragoons. Each one of them darted from one round, red blood cell to another; he would worry at it, try to get inside it, tug at it and pull it, push it along ahead of him—then suddenly off he would go in a straight line and bury himself under a mass of the blood cells lining the shore of the open space.

"Trypanosomes—these are," cried Bruce, and he hurried to show them to his wife. In all animals sick with nagana they found these finned beasts, in the blood they were, and in the fluid of their puffy eyelids, and in the strange, yellowish jelly that replaced the fat under their skins. And never a one of them could Bruce find in healthy dogs and horses and cows. But as the sick cattle grew sicker, these vicious snakes swarmed more and more thickly in their blood, until, when the animals lay gasping, next to death, the microbes writhed in them in quivering masses, so that you could swear their blood was made up of nothing else.

But how did these trypanosomes get from a sick beast to a healthy one? "Here on the hill we can keep healthy animals in the same stables with the sick ones—and never a one of the sound animals comes down . . . here on the hill no cow or horse has ever been known to get nagana," muttered Bruce. "Why?"

He began to dream experiments, when the long arm of the authorities found him again: Surgeon-Major Bruce was to proceed to Pietermaritzburg for duty in the typhoid epidemic raging there.

Only five weeks they had been at this work, when they started back to Pietermaritzburg, 10 miles a day by ox team through the jungle. He started treating soldiers for typhoid fever, but, as usual, he stole time to try to find out something about typhoid fever, in a laboratory set up, since there was no regular one, of all places—in the morgue. There, in the sickening vapors of the dead-house, Bruce puttered in snatched moments, got typhoid fever himself, nearly died, and before he got thoroughly better was sent out as medical officer to an expedition got up to "protect" a few thousand square miles more of territory for the Queen. It looked like the end for him. Hely-Hutchinson's wires got tangled—there seemed no chance ever to work at nagana again; when the expedition had pierced a couple of hundred miles into the jungle all of the horses and mules of this little army up and died, and what was left of the men had to try to hoof it back. A few came out, and David Bruce was among the lustiest of those gaunt hikers.

HELY-HUTCHINSON did his dirty work again, and in September, 1895, Bruce and his wife got back to Ubombo, to try to untangle the knot of how nagana gets from a sick animal to a healthy one. And here Bruce followed, for the first time, Theobald Smith around that corner. Like Theobald Smith, Bruce was a man to respect and to test folk-hunches and superstitions. He respected the beliefs of folks, himself he had no fancy super-scientific thoughts and never talked big words—yes, he respected such hunches—but he must test them.

In all animals sick with nagana they found these finned beasts.

"It is the tsetse flies cause nagana," said some experienced Europeans. "Flies bite domestic animals and put some kind of poison in them."

"Nagana is caused by big game," said the wise Zulu chiefs and medicine men. "The discharges of the buffalo, the quagga and waterbuck, the koodoo—these contaminate the grass and the water places—so it is horses and cattle are hit by the nagana."

"But why do we always fail to get our horses safe through the fly country—why is nagana called the fly disease?" asked the Europeans.

"Why, it's easy to get animals through the fly belt, so long as you don't let them eat or drink," answered the Zulus.

Bruce listened, and then proceeded to try out both ideas. He took good, healthy horses and tied heavy canvas bags round their noses, so they couldn't eat nor drink; he led them down the hills to the pleasant-looking midday hell in the mimosa thickets; here he kept them for hours. While he watched to see they didn't slip their nosebags, swarms of pretty brown and gold tsetses buzzed around them—flopped on to the kicking horses and in 20 seconds swelled themselves up into bright balloons of blood.

THEN, in a little more than 15 days, to the delight of Bruce and his wife, the first of those horses who had served as a fly restaurant turned up seedy in the morning and hung his head. And in the blood of this horse appeared the vanguard of the microscopic army of finned wee devils.

So it was with every horse taken down into the mimosa—and not one of them had eaten a blade of grass nor had one swallow of water down there; one and all they died of the nagana.

"Good, but it is not proved yet, one way or the other," said Bruce. "The horses may have inhaled those trypanosomes from the air. Here's the way to see," he cried. "Instead of taking the horses down, I'll bring the flies up."

So he bought more healthy horses, kept them safe on the hill, thousands of feet above the dangerous plain, then once more he went down the hill, and with him he took a decoy horse. The tsetses landed on the horse. Bruce and the Zulus picked them off gently, hundreds of them, and stuck them into an ingenious cage, made of muslin. Then back up the hill, to clap the cage buzzing with flies on to the back of a healthy horse. And in less than a month it was the same with these horses, who had never eaten, nor drunk nor even inhaled the air of the plain—every one died of the nagana.

"But where do the tsetses of the plain get the trypanosomes they stick into cows and horses? In those fly belts there are often no horses or cattle sick with nagana, for months. It must be they get them from the wild animals—the big game."

He buckled on his cartridge belt and loaded his guns. Into the thickets he went, and shot Burchell's zebras; he brought down koodoos and slaughtered waterbucks. He slashed open the dead beasts and from their hot hearts sucked up syringes full of blood, and jogged back up the hill with them. He looked through his microscopes for trypanosomes in these bloods—but didn't find them. But there was a streak of the dreamer in him. "They may be there, too few to see," he muttered, and to prove they were there he shot great quantities of the blood from 10 different animals into healthy dogs. So he discovered that the nagana microbes may lurk in game, waiting to be carried to gentler beasts by the tsetse. So it was Bruce made the first step towards the opening up of Africa.

And Hely-Hutchinson saw how right he had been about David Bruce. "'Ware the tsetse fly," he told his farmers, "kill the tsetse fly, clear the thickets in which it likes to breed—drive out, exterminate the antelope from which it sucks the trypanosomes." So Bruce began ridding Africa of nagana.

Death was abroad on the shores of Lake Victoria Nyanza, in Central Africa, on the Equator. The African sleeping sickness. In a few years it had killed hundreds of thousands of the people of Uganda. It was turning the most generous soil on earth back into an unproductive preserve for giraffes and hyenas.

The epidemic broke from a smolder into a flare that reddened the night sky of English power in Africa. Then the Royal Society sent David Bruce, this time with plenty of money for monkeys, with good microscopes, with a doctor named Nabarro to help him, with Staff-Sergeant Gibbons, who could do anything from building roads to spotting a trypanosome among 5,000,000 red blood cells. Mrs. Bruce was there, and she had the title of assistant—but Bruce paid her fare. The Bruce Commission, on its way in, met Castellani of the old commission, on the way out—disgruntled.

CASTELLANI said: "Though I am sure they have nothing to do with sleeping sickness — I saw trypanosomes in the fluid of the spinal cords of a few patients. They were remarkably like the ones you discovered in nagana."

"What!" yelled Bruce. "You saw trypanosomes there?"

Without hardly so much as a how-d'ye-do to the officials and authorities, Bruce was at his lenses.

A bellow from Bruce: "I've got one. But they may be in healthy people's spines, too!" said Bruce.

The folks who had no sleeping sickness harbored not a single trypanosome in the fluid of their spines. The trypanosome, Bruce now knew, was the cause of sleeping sickness.

It was strange—suspiciously strange—that sleeping sickness was only found in a very narrow strip of country—along the water, only along the water, on the islands, up the river—even by the Ripon Falls, where Victoria Nyanza gives herself up to the making of the Nile, there were cases of it but never inland, thought Bruce. That must mean some insect, a blood-sucking insect, which lives only near water, must carry the disease. "Maybe it is a tsetse fly, a special one, living only near lake shores and river banks."

One day, as they walked through the Botanical Garden at Entebbe, Bruce pushing his bulky body between the rows of tropic plants ahead of his small wife—there was a glad shriek from her. "Why, David! There are two tsetses on your back!" That woman was a scientific Diana. She swooped on those two tsetses, and caught them, and gave them a practical pinch—just enough to kill them, and then showed them to her husband. They had been perched, ready to strike, within a few inches of his neck. Now they knew they were on the trail.

Hard work began in the laboratory; already Bruce had found an excellent experimental animal—the monkey, which he could put into a beautiful, fatal sleep, just like that of a man, by injecting fluid from the spines of doomed negroes. But now to catch tsetse flies. They armed themselves with butterfly nets and the glass-windowed cages they had invented in Zululand. Then these inseparable hunters climbed into canoes; lusty crews of black boys shot them across the lake. Along the banks they walked—it was charming in the shade there—but listen! Yes, there was the hum of the tsetse. They tried to avoid being bitten. They were bitten—and stayed awake nights wondering what would happen—they went back to the laboratory and clapped the cages on the backs of monkeys.

THAT is the secret of those fine discoveries Bruce made. It was because he was a hunter. Not only with his mind—but a bold, everlastingly curious, snouting hunter with his body, too. If he had sat back and listened to the missionaries or to the local bug experts he would never have found the tsetse in Uganda. But he carried the fight to the enemy—and as for Mrs. Bruce, that woman was better than a third hand or two extra pairs of eyes for him.

Now they planned and did terrible experiments. Day after day they caused tsetse flies to feed on patients near to death (already too deep in sleep to be annoyed by the insects); they interrupted the flies in the midst of their meal and put the angry, half-satisfied cages of them on the backs of monkeys. With all the tenderness of high-priced nurses watching over babies they saw to it that only their experimental flies, and no chance flies from outside, got a meal off those beasts. Other searchers might have rolled their thumbs, waiting to see what happened to the monkeys, but not Bruce.

Bruce asked for an audience from the high-plumed gay-robed potentate, Apolo Kagwa, Prime Minister of Uganda. He told Apolo he had discovered the microbe of the sleeping death which was killing so many thousands of his people. Bruce found where there were no tsetses there was no sleeping sickness.

Bruce told Apolo the simple logic of what was to be done.

Apolo gave his order, and then the pitiful population of black men and their families streamed inland out of the lake shore villages, away.

"Not one of you," commanded Apolo, "may live within 15 miles of the lake shore."

An Outline of 'Microbe Hunters'

IN preceding chapters of this monumental work of Paul de Kruif, published by Harcourt, Brace & Co., the reader has followed the development of microbe hunting from its humble beginning in the hands of Leeuwenhoek to the heights it scaled in the laboratories of Koch and Pasteur. Besides these masters were represented Spallanzani, who proved microbes came from microbes; Roux and Behring, who discovered diphtheria antitoxin, and Metchnikoff, discoverer of the microbe-destroying phagocytes.

This installment, which is the eighth of the series of 11, tells how David Bruce, dreaming of tiger hunting, tracked the germ of sleeping sickness to its lair and found the tsetse fly to be responsible for the ravages of the disease in Africa.

The following installments take up, in order, Ross and Grassi, the rival foes of malaria; Walter Reed, the conqueror of yellow fever, and Paul Ehrlich, the gay scientist who gave the world the magic bullet, "606."

Bruce would clap the cage, buzzing with flies, on the back of a healthy horse.

Nation Buys a Lincoln Shrine of Common Things

For 66 Years, Osborn H. Oldroyd, Through Devotion to His Early Idol, Has Been Collecting Objects Associated With the Civil War President's Daily Life, Even to a Rail Split by Him in 1830—These Intimate Articles, 3000 in All, Have Now Been Purchased by the Government and Are Exhibited in the Old Rooming House in Which Lincoln Died.

By R. P. BRANDT
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

WASHINGTON, D. C.

LIVING in the memory of the people because of his simplicity and love for all humanity, Abraham Lincoln has had a worshiper who for 66 years has been building a shrine of common things to the Great Emancipator, in order that future generations may know their hero was, before all else, a man.

Osborn H. Oldroyd, now 85 years old, is the devotee whom future historians and, more important, future common people may bless for his labors of love. Since 1860 he has been collecting every-day things that have been associated with the martyred President, and today, through his efforts, the Government has an almost priceless collection of Lincolniana, housed in the old rooming house where Lincoln died, on the morning of April 15, 1865.

By a coincidence, the American people get two great Lincoln collections in the same year. Recently, at the death of Robert Todd Lincoln, announcement was made that the last surviving son had given to the Government his collection of Lincoln letters, pamphlets and newspaper articles, to be held sealed and locked in the Library of Congress for 21 years and then to be opened to public inspection. This will be a rich historical mine for future writers, for these letters, hitherto unavailable, are expected to throw a new light on dark and doubtful situations of the Civil War.

The Oldroyd collection, while containing a few letters and many pamphlets and newspaper articles, is in an entirely different field, and for that reason has more appeal to laymen who like to think of Lincoln as one of their own. It was purchased by the Government for $50,000, at the end of the last session of Congress, at the instance of Senator Willis of Ohio and Representative Henry Rathbone of Illinois, whose father, Major Rathbone, was severely wounded by the assassin, J. Wilkes Booth, when he tried to protect the President.

THE $50,000 was an arbitrary price set by Oldroyd, who wanted to see his collection in the hands of the Federal Government. Henry Ford offered him this amount, but when the automobile manufacturer admitted that he would take the collection to Detroit, Oldroyd refused to consider his offer. The Illinois Legislature appropriated $50,000 for its purchase, but when Oldroyd learned there was a possibility that the Federal Government would accept the collection at the same figure, he refused to deal with the State Government.

Congressman Henry R. Rathbone, of Illinois, who was active in bringing about purchase of the Oldroyd collection by the Government.

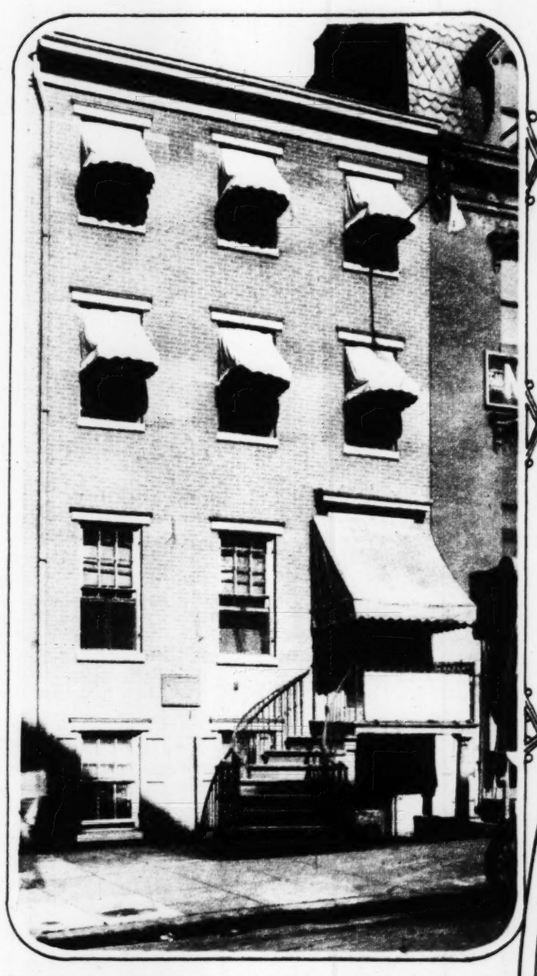
The bill appropriating the $50,000 passed both houses unanimously. It contained only eight lines and provided that the collection should be under the care of the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War and the Attorney-General.

The collection, still under the supervision of Oldroyd, is in the old Peterson House at 516 Tenth street, Northwest, directly opposite the old Ford Theater. This building is far from fireproof and in all probability the collection will be moved, unless fire precautions are taken. Three of the most valued relics —Lincoln's beaver hat, his umbrella and the flag that caused Booth to break his leg —were removed 12 years ago to the Treasury, after a fire in the building next door.

Oldroyd estimates that there are at least 3000 objects in his collection. Those which will appeal to the average visitor are the well-thumbed Bible, from which the mother read to the boy who was to become President; the huge walnut cradle in which were rocked the three sons, Robert Todd, William and Thomas (Tad); the checkered shawl which draped the gaunt shoulders of the President; the worn hair-cloth rocking chair, the President's favorite, and the Spartan office chair, in which the President wrote his first inaugural address.

Then there are manuscripts —Lincoln's last handwriting, a note written just before he went to the theater on that fateful night, telling two men who wanted a pass to go to Richmond that "No pass is necessary now to authorize anyone to go from Petersburg to Richmond. People go and return as they did before the war"; the hand-written order relieving McClellan as commander of the Army of the Potomac; the original play bill for "Our American Cousin" for the night of April 14, showing that Lincoln was attending a benefit for Laura Keene, the star.

Besides these there are the homely objects — the last cookstove used by Mrs. Lincoln at Springfield, Illinois, a small, black, squat affair; an original black locust rail, split by Lincoln in 1830, supported by an affidavit by John Hanks, attested to by Governor Oglesby, dating back to 1860, five years before the President's death; Booth's spur, which caught in the flag drapery of the theater box, and the rent coat of the orchestra leader, who was stabbed by Booth.



The house in which Lincoln died and in which the Oldroyd collection of 3000 articles is housed.

The official invoice of the collection also reveals: Fifteen books and miscellaneous articles once the property of or associated with Lincoln; 13 pieces of furniture from the Lincoln homestead at Springfield; 11 autographed letters and documents; 62 pictures illustrating his early life and homes; 70 badges, caricatures and flags relating to the campaign of 1860; 27 scenes in his life, illustrating his journey from Springfield to be inaugurated President in 1861; 100 cartoons relating to his administration; 145 pictures, illustrating the assassination and funeral; 1000 biographies, histories of slavery and the Civil War; 325 newspapers dating from 1843 to 1865, containing his speeches, accounts of his campaigns, his death and burial; 235 funeral sermons, addresses and eulogies delivered after his death; 66 funeral marches; 253 portraits, consisting of original photographs, steel engravings and lithographs; 65 photographs and illustrations of Ford's Theater, the conspirators, their trials and executions; 83 engravings of the Lincoln family, groups of the President and his Cabinets, and allegorical pictures; 27 busts, statuettes, life masks; 24 medallions, 171 political and memorial medals struck in his honor, and the original reward bill offering $100,000 for the capture of Booth, Harold and Surratt.

These are the objects which will enable the future worshiper of Lincoln to visualize the man who loved the common people. Taken with the more dignified Robert Todd Lincoln collection at the Library of Congress, it will breathe a spirit of life into a legendary hero, and give that human color so lacking in steel engravings and marble.

Abraham Lincoln

Osborn H. Oldroyd of Washington, who spent 66 years making his collection of Lincolniana recently sold to the Government.

Perhaps the oddest thing about the history of the collection is that Oldroyd never saw his idol, yet he was attracted to him before he became President.

"I had a newsstand in a corner of my father's jewelry shop at Mount Vernon, Ohio, when I was 18 years old, back in 1860. One day this pamphlet came through the mails," he said, as he handed the writer a yellow-backed paper booklet, entitled, "Wigwam Edition of the Life, Speeches and Public Services of Abram Lincoln." This old campaign document, with its unusual spelling of Lincoln's Christian name, Oldroyd preserves in a glass-covered picture frame.

"When I read that book and realized that Lincoln had been born in a log cabin, had educated himself and had already risen to high public office, I knew that he was a man from whom great things could be expected, and I wrote to the publishers, telling them to send me all the literature they had on this candidate. That was the beginning of my collection."

With Lincoln's election came the war. Oldroyd enlisted at the age of 19, in Company E, Twentieth Ohio Infantry, and served almost four years. He was discharged as Sergeant in July, 1865, after he had seen action with the Western Army at Shiloh, Vicksburg and on the fields in Tennessee and Mississippi. He was with Sherman on the famous march to the sea.

Had he been with the Army of the Potomac he could have seen his hero, he said. Many soldiers of this army were granted leaves to come to Washington to see the President.

After the war, Oldroyd returned to his old trade of silversmith, but he continued his collection of Lincolniana. By that time the vision of his youth was more than justified. Lincoln, indeed, belonged to the Ages.

IN 1872 Oldroyd moved to Springfield, Illinois, and as soon as he could make the arrangements he rented the Lincoln homestead, where he first arranged his collection, which had already attained considerable importance. At his instance, Robert Todd Lincoln gave the homestead to the State of Illinois, and Oldroyd was appointed custodian. For 10 years he made no charge to see his collection.

Twenty years after his coming to Springfield a Governor of contrary political faith was elected and Oldroyd was forced to give up the house and grounds, which he had made a national shrine. Soon afterwards, however, he was invited by the Memorial Association of the District of Columbia to bring his collection to Washington. Upon his arrival here he found that the association had rented the old Peterson House, in which Lincoln had died. He installed his collection in this structure, which, in 1897, was purchased by the Government. At first, the Government charged him $100 a month rent and gave him the right to charge a small fee to see his exhibit, but after it was ascertained that these fees averaged only $47 a month, the rental charge was dropped.

Since Washington has become a Mecca for automobile tourists, the number of persons inspecting the collection has increased each year.

The Peterson House, as might be surmised, is in the downtown section of the capital. Entering the building by a winding stairway, the visitor finds himself in a long hall, with an old-fashioned double parlor on his left. It was in this room that Mrs. Lincoln waited through the night as her husband lay dying in a small room at the end of the hall.

In the front parlor, Oldroyd has placed many of his choice mementos—the manuscripts, the checkered shawl, the best pictures and the spur of Booth.

Over the door leading to the back parlor is the black locust rail split by the hands of Lincoln. In this parlor are the cartoons —a whole series from the London Punch, drawn by the famous Sir John Tenniel—photographs of the conspirators and their executions, two death masks and an oak stand, made by Oldroyd from a house, now destroyed, in which Lincoln once lived. Oldroyd gave the stand a rugged base and placed a marble slab on top. At his request, John Greenleaf Whittier wrote the following inscription, which has been carved into the marble:

"Let Man Be Free, the Mighty Words He Spake Were Not His Own—the Spirit of the Highest Stirred His Mortal Lips Alone."

RETURNING to the hall, at its end the visitor enters the small room in which Lincoln died. Here are crayon and ink pictures, some unhistorical, some true to the event and some allegorical, depicting the last moments of the dying President. Still on the wall is the steel engraving of "The Village Blacksmith," which hung above the President's head. This picture is shown in virtually all the scenes of the great man's death.

In the rear of this room is the former servants' quarters, now the library. It contains more than 1000 volumes on Lincoln and the events in which he participated. Back of this room is a recent addition, which contains the old Lincoln cookstove, the Lincoln cradle, large enough to hold three babies at a time, the Lincoln furniture and many statues and pictures.

In a room off the one in which Lincoln died, Oldroyd has fitted up a storehouse of the uncatalogued newspapers and clippings relating to Lincoln and the Civil War. Some semblance of order has been attained by putting these documents in pasteboard boxes and envelopes. In these the historian will find much rich material, but if there should ever be a fire in the building they would go like tinder.

Congress appropriated the money for the purchase of the collection during its closing days. As yet the commission set up by the resolution has not met to decide what shall be done with this priceless exhibit. Oldroyd was 85 years old in July, and while he is in excellent health, with a memory and a collecting fervor as keen as ever, he is willing to turn over the result of his labors to other hands. He realizes, perhaps better than anyone else, the danger the collection is in from fire, and he wants to see the present home for it made safe.

The deciding factor, after the fire hazard has been eliminated, should be accessibility to the public, Oldroyd believes. Lincoln was of the common people, he declared, and these common things should be seen so that the average person can see what manner of man he was.

(Concluded from page 5.)

"I have an idea, laddie," he whispered, "that old Puppy is a trifle peeved at my bringing Flossie along. If you get a chance, you might just murmur to him that it was a military necessity."

"Who is she?" I asked.

"I told you about her. Flossie, the barmaid at the Crown in Kennington. Billson's fiancee."

I looked at him in amazement.

"Do you mean to tell me that you're courting death by flirting with Battling Billson's girl?"

"My dear old man, nothing like that," said Ukridge, shocked. "The whole thing is, I've got a particular favor to ask of her—rather a rummy request—and it was not good springing it on her in cold blood. There had to be a certain amount of champagne in advance, and my funds won't run to champagne. I'm taking her on to the Alhambra after dinner. I'll look you up tonight and tell you all about it."

WE THEN proceeded to dine. It was not one of the pleasantest meals of my experience. The future Mrs. Billson prattled agreeably throughout, and Ukridge assisted her in keeping the conversation alive, but the shattered demeanor of George Tupper would have taken the sparkle out of any banquet. It was a relief when Ukridge and his companion rose to leave.

"Well!——" began George Tupper, as they moved away down the aisle.

I sat back to listen.

Ukridge arrived at my rooms at midnight. His manner was exuberant.

"It's all right," he said.

"I'm glad you think so."

"Did you explain to Tuppy?"

"I didn't get a chance. He was talking too hard."

"About me?"

"Yes. He said everything I've always felt about you, only far, far better than I could ever have put it."

Ukridge's face clouded for a moment, but cheerfulness returned.

"Oh, well, it can't be helped. He'll simmer down in a day or two. It had to be done, laddie. And it's all right. Read this."

I took the letter he handed me. It was written in a scrawly hand. I read:

"'Wilberforce,'"

"Who on earth's Wilberforce?"

"I told you that was Billson's name."

"Oh, yes."

I returned to the letter.

"Wilberforce—

"I take my pen in hand to tell you that I can never be yours. You will no doubt be surprised to hear that I love another and a better man, so that it can never be. He loves me, and he is a better man than you.

"Hoping this finds you in the pink as it leaves me at present,

"Yours faithfully,

"Florence Burns."

"I told her to keep it snappy," said Ukridge.

"WELL, she's certainly done it," I replied, handing back the letter. "I'm sorry. From the little I saw of her, I thought her a nice girl — for Billson. Do you happen to know the other man's address? Because it would be a kindly act to send him a post card advising him to leave England for a year or two."

"The Shoreditch Empire will find him this week."

"What!"

"The other man is Tod Bingham."

"Tod Bingham! Do you mean to say that Tod Bingham is in love with Battling Billson's girl?"

"No. He's never seen her!"

"What do you mean?"

"Laddie," said Ukridge, "I will tell you all. Yesterday afternoon I found old Billson reading a copy of the Daily Sportsman. He isn't much of a reader as a rule, so I was rather interested to know what had gripped him. It was an article about Tod Bingham, saying what a good chap he was in private life and how he always sends a telegram to his old mother after each fight and gives her half the purse. There were tears in that chump Billson's eyes as he showed me the article. 'Must be a nice feller!' he said. Well, I ask you! I mean to say, it's a bit thick when the man you've been pouring out money for and watching over like a baby sister starts getting sorry for a champion three days before he's due to fight him. A champion, mark you! I saw the only way of counteracting this pernicious stuff was to get him so mad with Tod Bingham that he would forget all about his old mother, so I suddenly thought: Why not get Flossie to pretend that Bingham had cut him out with her? Well, it's not the sort of thing you can ask a girl to do without preparing the ground a bit, so I brought her along to Tuppy's dinner. She agreed the moment I put the thing to her, and sat down and wrote that letter. I think she thinks it's all a joke.

"It'll give poor old Billson a bit of a jar for the time being, I suppose, but it'll make him spread himself on Saturday night, and he'll be perfectly happy on Sunday morning when she tells him she didn't mean it."

"The only flaw is, the letter doesn't give the other man's name. How is Billson to know it's Tod Bingham?"

"Why, laddie, do use your intelligence. Billson isn't going to sit and yawn when he gets that letter. He'll buzz straight down to Kennington and ask Flossie."

"And then she will give the whole thing away."

"No, she won't. I slipped her a couple of quid to promise she wouldn't."

THE Shoreditch Empire is a roomy house, but it was crowded to the doors when I reached it on the Saturday night.

A stout man in evening dress stepped out from the wings.

"Ladies and gentlemen!"

A voice: "Good ole Tod!" ("Cheese it!")

"Ladies and gentlemen," repeated the announcer. "Deeply regret to announce, Tod Bingham unfortunately unable to appear before you tonight."

A howl like the howl of wolves balked of their prey greeted these words.

The announcer sidled uneasily towards the prompt entrance.

"'E 'as 'ad an unfortunate accident," he declared. "On 'is way 'ere to this 'all 'e was unfortunately run into by a truck, sustaining bruises and contusions which render 'im unfortunately unable to appear before you tonight. Ladies and gentlemen," concluded the announcer, stepping nimbly off the stage, "I thank you one and all."

I withdrew, and the audience started to do the same. Out in the street a knot of Shoreditch's younger set were hanging on the lips of an excited orator in a battered hat and trousers which had been made for a larger man. Some stirring tale which he was telling held them spellbound. Words came raggedly through the noise of the traffic.

"——like this. Then 'e 'its 'im another like that. Then they start—on the side of the jor——"

"Pass along, there," interrupted an official voice. "Come on, there, pass along."

The crowd thinned and resolved itself into its elements. I found myself moving down the street in company with the wearer of the battered hat. He enrolled me at once as a nucleus for a fresh audience.

"'E comes up, this bloke does, just as Tod is goin' in at the stage door——"

"Tod?" I queried.

"TOD BINGHAM. 'E comes up just as 'e's goin' in at the stage door, and 'e says 'Ere!' and Tod says 'Yus?' and this bloke 'e says 'Put 'em up!' and Tod says 'Put wot up?' and this bloke says 'Yer 'ands,' and Tod says 'Wot, me?'—sort of surprised. An' the next minute they're fightin' all over the shop."

"But surely Tod Bingham was run over by a truck?"

"Truck! 'E wasn't run over by no truck. Wot 'ud 'e be doin' bein' run over by a truck? 'E 'ad it put across 'im by this red-headed bloke, same as I'm tellin' yer."

A great light shone upon me.

"Red-headed?" I cried.

"Yus."

"A big man?"

"Yus."

"And he put it across Tod Bingham?"

"Put it across 'im proper. 'Ad to go 'ome in a keb, Tod did. Funny a bloke that could fight like that bloke could fight 'adn't the sense to go and do it on the stage and get some money for it. That's wot I think."

Across the street an arc-lamp shed its cold rays. And into its glare there strode a man draped in a yellow mackintosh. The light gleamed on his pince-nez and lent a grewsome pallor to his set face. It was Ukridge retreating from Moscow.

"Others," I said, "are thinking the same."

And I hurried across the road to administer what feeble consolation I might. There are moments when a fellow needs a friend.

TRAIL BLAZING IN NEW YORK CITY

"WILLIAM TWO-YOUNG-MAN," Phil Moore explained, "is a Stony Indian. The Stonies are an offshoot of the Sioux who fled north a couple of centuries ago when the Crows cut off a bunch of them from the tribe. They took refuge in the Canadian Rockies and have stayed here ever since. Most of the Indians came under Catholic influence, thanks to the activities of the Jesuits, but the Stonies remained undiscovered until a Methodist missionary came along. Consequently they are Methodists.

"William was a great hunter and trailer. Several years ago one of a pair of trappers who had been associated some thirty years came out of the mountains after a winter's work with the story that he and his partner had had a quarrel and separated.

"The Mounties—the Royal Canadian Mounted Police—thought they had reason to suspect the old fellow had murdered his partner, so they arrested him and then set out to find the evidence.

"They took William Two-Young-Man along. At the cabin where the trappers had passed the winter he picked up the other man's trail, followed it 150 miles through spruce forest and over rocks, and finally found the man he was looking for, alive and well.

"We took William to the National Sportsmen's Show at Madison Square Garden. These were great reunions of men from the wide, open places from Bill Sewall's country in Maine clear to the Pacific. They don't hold them any more.

"One day we missed William Two-Young-Man from the Garden. He didn't show up for twenty-four hours. He had been out seeing New York, and it was a treat to hear him tell about it.

"Indians won't talk if they think you want them to, but if you look away sort of indifferent and bored and don't pay any attention they will insist on your hearing what they want to say. When they do tell a story they have to act it out.

"'New York big clearing,' said William. 'Deep canyons. Many people—go like this.' He interlaced the fingers of his two hands and wiggled them rapidly. 'William find trail to Sheetiron Building.'

"He meant the Flatiron Building. Getting there across Madison Square from the garden had been a big adventure for him. I began to suspect what had happened to him and asked:

"'Did you blaze the trail, William?'

"'Yes, William blaze um, like this,' he said, pulling out his hunting knife and making passes.

"He had gashed every tree he came to in the square.

"'Didn't anybody say anything?' I inquired.

"'Big man, blue coat, shiny button here, here, here—he tapped himself on the chest—'he say, "What you doing?"'

"'Indians are scared to death of a uniform. They have learned that from the Mounties. So William began to try to get away from this one.

"'William make small,' he said, pulling his mackinaw tight around himself, 'go like this.'

"He imitated his device of weaving in and out of the crowd, crouching low. Of course with that mackinaw he must have been about as inconspicuous as a zebra. Then he came to the fountain and basin in the center of the square and had another bright idea.

"'William jump in water,' he went on, 'wade through, step out backward, walk backward.'

"The policeman, seeing his wet footprints pointing toward the pool, would naturally think he had entered from the side where he came out and thus be hopelessly misled. Only it didn't happen that way. Instead the representative of the law walked around the fountain, grabbed a fistful of the front of William's mackinaw and started off with him, the Indian all the while protesting.

"'William good man. William hurt nobody.'

"'Soldier take William to big stone tepee,' he said. 'Many windows, like this,' holding his hand with fingers spread in front of his eyes to indicate bars. 'Inside, table, man with blue coat, pencil in ear.' That was the Desk Sergeant.

"'Put William in little room, water here' (gesture with his right hand), 'bed here' (a gesture with his left). 'Door like this.' He crossed his spread fingers in front of his eyes to indicate the cross bars.

"There was where they found William after he had been a few hours missing, booked for defacing public property. A little explaining got him out, but William tried no more trail blazing in New York."

J. EARL CLAUSON.

The Microbe Hunters

Without a word they obeyed their potentate.

The tribes of the lake, inland, were happy, for no more of them came down with that fatal drowsiness.

A couple of years passed, and suddenly the Kavirondo people, on the east shore of the lake, where sleeping death had never been—these folks began to go to sleep and not wake up.

ONE day, in the blood of a native cow, not hurting that cow at all, but ready to be sucked up by the tsetse for stabbing under the skin of the first man it meets, Bruce found the trypanosome of sleeping sickness.

"The fly country around the lake shore will have to be cleared of antelope, too, as well as men," Bruce said to Apolo.

And now the sleeping death really disappeared from the shores of Lake Victoria Nyanza.

A new form of sleeping sickness—terrible stuff that killed in a few months instead of years—broke out in Nyassaland and Rhodesia.

Nyassaland was the last battlefield of Bruce against the sleeping sickness, and it was his most hopeless one. For there he found that the glossina morsitans (that is the name of the tsetse carrier of the sickness) does not make its home only on the shores of lakes and rivers, but buzzes and bites from one end of Nyassaland to the other; there is no way of running away from it, no chance of moving nations out from under it here. Bruce stuck at it, he spent years at measurements of the lengths of trypanosomes—monotonous enough this work was to have driven a subway ticket chopper mad—he was trying to find out whether the nagana and this new disease were one and the same thing. He ended by not finding out, and he finished with this regret: that it was at present impossible to do the experiment to clinch the matter one way or the other.

The experiment was the injection of the nagana trypanosomes, not into one, or a hundred—but a thousand human beings.

CHALIAPIN, THE WARY REFUGEE FROM RUSSIA

By MIZGIR

(The following bit of humor is a translation, made for The Living Age, of an article in the Russkaia Gazeta, a Paris daily paper of conservative tendencies, which does not claim it to be authentic.)

THE bolsheviki cannot forgive themselves that they let the adornment and pride of the Russian stage, Fedor Ivanovich Chaliapin, slip between their fingers and settle abroad for good. Accordingly, in view of the approaching thirty-fifth anniversary of his artistic activity, the Soviet Ministry of Education sent a special delegation to Paris, headed by Boris Krasin, brother of the soviet plenipotentiary representative in France. The delegation was to persuade the great artist, "the people's singer," to return.

After due and prolonged diplomatic approaches, Krasin broached the subject:

"Well, Fedor Ivanovich, and when are we to expect you back in Moscow, in your own native proletarian land?"

"In Moscow? No, comrades, you'll have to excuse me this time. They say, 'Hired—sold,' and I signed a three-year contract with my Americans. Afterward, we'll see. I'm homesick for Moscow, I am. But as to going back—why, I'll tell you right here, don't expect me soon!"

There was an awkward pause.

"BY THE way, Comrade Chaliapin," mumbled one of the delegates, who looked gloomy and kept up a scowling inspection of the surroundings, "there's a trifling case brought against you in the G. P. U. (formerly Che-ka). Just a trifle, I say. We have been informed that some of your costumes for the Boris Godunov and the Pskovitianka bore real emeralds and other stones and that when you took those costumes abroad you had the stones passed by the customs as artificial. It's a misunderstanding, of course, but the G. P. U. wants to clear it up."

"Never heard of it. My tailor, Abramka, has been in charge of my costumes, and he is still at the Bolshoi Theater in Moscow. Ask him. And if I took anything abroad with me—why, I'm going to keep it. All of my fortune is earned with hard labor, mind you. Not nationalized, the way some people I know possess it. Don't forget!"

At this point the brother of the soviet plenipotentiary envoy quickly turned the big diamond on his finger upside down, and began to look into the air as if catching butterflies.

"Eh, let's cut out this wasting of time," Chaliapin presently exclaimed. "Boris Borisovich, could you guarantee me personal safety if I should return?"

"Oh," replied Krasin, somewhat shocked, "you don't believe I'm responsible for these things, do you? Most probably, the soviet government will not refuse a guarantee——"

"Most probably! And just the same, you brother of plenipotentiary representative, you tremble at the thought of returning, and I dare say you don't intend to return, either, and you are turning over the matter in your mind, exactly the way I did some time ago."

The attempts to persuade Chaliapin ended then and there, and the delegates walked out of his mansion, having, as the Russian proverb says, "eaten their soup without salt." As to the singer's conjectures about the plenipotentiary's brother, they have come true: not long ago we read in the Moscow papers that Boris Borisovich Krasin resigned the post of manager of the music division of the State Theaters and "temporarily" remained abroad. The other day in London a rabkrin, or representative of peasants' and workers' control, approached Chaliapin with the following statement:

"When leaving the S. S. S. R. you agreed over your signature to give 10 per cent of your earnings abroad to the Department of Workers' Art. According to our information, lately checked up by the G. P. U., you have made $500,000 during the last three years. Therefore, my chief in Moscow directed me to receive from you $50,000 due. Do you wish a receipt?"——

"Hm!" Chaliapin said, doubtfully. "It seems a lot of money. I never dreamed of such amounts."

"Oh, if you please. Here's a list of your contracts. Here are the numbers and dates of the checks you received, and the names of the banks where you had them cashed. Here's a calculation of the different currencies into dollars, and a memorandum concerning your payment of $36,000 income tax in the United States. Everything is in perfect order."

"I say—this is what I call exact information! Where did you get it? I must say—your agents? Well, you may be right after all. So, then, I am to pay the Soviet Government $50,000, am I? All right."

The rabkrin at first was numb with surprise, then melted in a happy smile, sweated with excitement and, snatching a receipt pad from his pocket, began to write out the receipt with feverish haste.

"ONE moment!" continued the celebrity. "I'm not in a hurry for the receipt; you may send it in later. And the $50,000 you may receive from my checking account at the Moscow Merchants' Bank, where I had 250,000 golden rubles if I had a copeck! So, then, you'll write those $50,000 off that account, and the remainder kindly transfer to my address here, with the receipt. Understood?"

"I beg your pardon! I beg your pardon!" screamed the rabkrin. "The Moscow Merchants' Bank has been nationalized long ago, and you know it! Are you joking, Comrade Chaliapin?"

"I'm not. My money is my own earned money, and not something to be thrown away. I'm the 'people's singer,' and the 'people's Government' ought to return it to me, except for taxes due. Why, it's as plain and clear as bread and butter, and until then will you be good enough to leave me alone, because if you don't"——

The rabkrin looked remarkably like one scalded with boiling water. He shot out of the room and hastened to Mr. Rakovskii, the soviet plenipotentiary envoy to England, to report on the fact that Chaliapin has "turned about face."

Mrs. Dumbly

About Clothes.
Artie Says a Lot.
Skirts and Evolution.
"What Shall I Not Wear?"

MY HUSBAND, ARTIE—"The way you women dress is certainly a take-off."

Me, Myself—"A take-off of what?"

Husband Artie—"Clothes. You no longer need to ask me, 'What shall I wear to the party?' The question with the modern women is, 'What shall I not wear to the party?'"

Why this discussion of feminine apparel? Because I'm writing a paper for the Blah Blah Culture Club on "Evolution," and I asked Artie to help me out.

What have clothes to do with the subject of evolution? A great deal, according to Artie.

"Now, why don't some of these modernists and fundamentalists take up the question of skirts?" he asked me. "If evolution means an ascent from a lower to a higher condition skirts have certainly evoluted. And there is room for speculation as to what might happen if they were to rise any farther. And then, of course, there are innumerable arguments on the other side of the question. There are those, for instance, who say that skirts aren't what they used to be.

"IN FACT," he continued, warming up to his subject (if the present attire may be termed a subject to warm up to) "it might be argued that in the matter of clothes most of the articles our forefathers and foremothers considered fundamentals are being disposed of. Now, there is the garter. The sturdy, simple men of a past generation placed implicit faith in it. They believed that if their socks were to be made to go in the way they should go they must rely upon the garter. Yet modernist youth has banished the garter from his sartorial creed and his socks, having no attachment to anything fundamental to hold them in check, fall in riotous abandon into places where socks would never have thought of going in former days."

"Yes," I answered, "the summer sales aren't the only places where socks are going down. Every time the breeze lifts a man's divided skirt I see"——

"But those who believe in the restraining influence of the garter may take courage," he orated, ignoring my interruption, "for though the Knight of the Garter has vanished, the day of the garter is at hand.

"Just yesterday I saw a long pair of hose going down the street with a girl attached and upon close examination—beg pardon—I meant to say upon the space just below her knee I saw a garter with a diamond initial on it."

"What was the initial?" I asked, but he refused to answer, not willing to be trapped.

"I wish you wouldn't discuss garters anyway," I told him, "must I remind you that I am writing a club paper and that it is supposed to be highbrow?"

"HOW can you women be highbrows when you haven't any brows?" he asked. "Every one of you has had them pruned and cut down til they're mere exclamation points. Now the evolutionists tell us that any member of the body which is not in use is likely to disappear like the eyes of the fish in Mammoth Cave, in the darkness of Echo River. What of the eyebrows of future generations of flappers? How are they going to show hauteur or anger without eyebrows to frown with?

"For that matter, what if one of the present generation with her plucked eyebrows should go into the movies and the director would say to her, 'Register amazement. Raise your eyebrows.'

"She couldn't raise them without cold cream, and that would take several weeks."

"Don't you understand," I asked him, "that being stylish nowadays is a matter of elimination?"

"Of course," he replied, "survival of the fittest. Though in women's garments how can the fittest survive when none of them fit? The ideal of the fall fashion makers seems to be the same as that of the movie censors—let the picture be all cut outs.

"I've just finished an ode which runs like this:

I've cut the hair off my head,
The bottom off my skirt.
I've cut the sleeves out of my dress,
The straps from off my shirt.
I've cut out wearing petticoats,
And maybe after a while
I'll cut out wearing clothes at all.
I've got to be in style!"

And with these cutting lines he closed his remarks.

KRAZY KAT

By HERRIMAN

THE NEWEST OIL TOWN IS A PICTURESQUE PLACE

Borger, in the Texas Panhandle, Has 3000 Inhabitants—Workingmen, Storekeepers, Gamblers, Fakers—Crooked People, Honest People.

BORGER is no pretty name. Nor is Borger a pretty town. It is ugly, but it was not made for looks; it was made for service—quick, rough service for quick, rough men.

Borger is the newest oil town in the world's newest oil field in the Panhandle of Texas. It stands now, several thousand strong, where four months ago the sun's morning rays felt their way across the sparse marsh grass of the plain. A railway but no dirt road crossed it. No visitors came except an occasional range cow and her furtive calf, nibbling withered provender and tail-lashing their sides to drive away the flies.

But men were busy off there at an oil rig, their lonesome talk and their sluggard songs coming back to them as if fearful of the infinite, silent stretch of level space.

A canny merchant in a plains town watched, used to the mirage yet believing in it. The moment oil spouted up from that derrick, hooking itself in the blue sky and drenching the drillers, the merchant, Borger, prepared to found a town.

Soon many roads, criss-crossing, located Borger for Borger. The country began filling with men and oil derricks. In came great trucks, hauling timbers, rigs, drilling tools, nitro-glycerine, camp equipment. In came men afoot, in buggies, wagons, automobiles. Full-fledged, Borger sprang from Merchant Borger's mind and teemed with working-men, storekeepers, gamblers, fakers, prostitutes—crooked people, honest people.

First there were only tents, tents browned and blackened with service in other oil fields, many of them, for here came veterans from everywhere in an instant. There was no time for city planning. One street laid itself out along the railroad; wooden shacks replaced the tents, while men dug foundations for brick buildings. Days, excited days, came swiftly and passed, while ever more days crowded upon one another to get to Borger, even as human beings surged in feverishly.

Borger still is no metropolis. It is only an oil-diggers' town—the hang-out for the men who do the actual drilling and incidental labor. It boasts no offices for administrative and promotion purposes; those you find sixty miles away in Amarillo—Amarillo, congested with traders, clanking silver in their hands, filling hotel lobbies with talk and tobacco smoke and dreaming of a world full of people ready to risk their all in a "field where they've never sunk a 'duster,' a dry hole."

Amarillo is to Borger what a striped silk shirt is to a jumper, and, set off at so great a distance, it is like the tail wagging the dog. Borger is the dog itself and, in its own esteem, capable of wagging itself, for these men who man the rigs and trucks and lay the pipe lines, who know these holes in the ground too well, and when they invest see what they get and get it quickly—a dance, a kiss, a drink of liquor, a farm or a good bond.

Time passed in Borger. A dance hall was opened—two, three, four, half a dozen dance halls. The girls were bound for Borger before the first nail was driven. Liquor was obtainable right over bars. Alongside, whoever wished could be dealt a hand of stud-poker or blackjack.

The town, accumulating 3000 inhabitants and few modern conveniences in three months, naturally was no prettier to smell than to see. It was no New York with trunk sewers and "white wings" to wash the streets. Borger was as innocent of sanitation as a baby. It had to haul its water five, ten, fifteen miles. Children, dogs, pigs ran loose on the one street. Restaurants were like a rush-hour subway train, with all the passengers eating or fighting for a chance to eat. And when it rained two days on end——!

Yes; Borger grew without rhyme or reason. But the liberty of the kind was sweet. Folks did about as they pleased.

Then law-abiding men arose to tame the wildcat. They improvised a jail in an old slashed tent. They sunk either end of a log chain in the ground and chained miscreants to it by the ankle, sometimes by the neck. If the prisoner had a laceration from a revolver butt, there was no Nubian slave to shoo away the droning flies which buzzed and bit while the June sun baked. If women offended beyond the standards of Borger, they, too, found their place along the log chain.

"If they get drunk, rap 'em and throw 'em in the hoosegow!" was the order. "If they gamble and dance, let 'em do it like gents and ladies!"

It was along about the third month of Borger's history that its first big problem came, a problem, however, which called not for a jail but for an undertaker. Oklahoma thugs, coming over, inspired the competition of jealous Texas hijackers, and things got dangerous for a while. These "dope heads" and "jake ganglers" stopped people at night on the highroads, asked for a ride or a match and then killed if necessary—for money, which always seems so free, so inexhaustible in a new oil field. Citizens began buckling on their own six-guns, and the situation righted itself automatically.

Peddlers came, and beggars—no-legged, one-legged, two-legged—selling pencils. Two blind musicians came one day and stayed an hour and left beauty.

Down the long street they went, slowly, slowly, a tall man behind a shorter man, the two joined by a sort of harness, their feet shuffling in a lockstep. First, the tall man, sunburned, stalwart, self-sufficient, shrewd, playing his guitar and singing in a full, winning voice:

"Let me call you sweetheart, I'm in love with you;
"Let me hear you whisper that you love me true."

Then the smaller man, young, with full, bronzed cheeks and a wide Texas hat, bent his impassive face over his fiddle, and, as he sang plaintively, sweetly, putting into the air of the love song the unruly "runs" of the "breakdown," the guitar answered with brusque, unpolished chords.

"Let me call you sweetheart," sang the two blind men, feeling their way along, and the "roughnecks," the gamblers, the hangers-on and roustabouts, as if ashamed a little but not ashamed tob much, inched their way along behind. Girls, tough girls, with quickly rouged lips, looked out from doors. They too dropped in coins and listened wistfully as the singers moved on—

"Let me call you sweetheart . . .
hear you whisper . . . love me true"——

There went the singers, one behind the other, the sheepish crowd after them and about them. Over and over the same refrain.

Borger was having its moment of beauty, and it was not ashamed.

A Bold Exploit.
He Fords the Hudson.
The First Crawl Stroke.
Then, Princeton Hockey Star.

THE holidays were over and it was time to go back to Yale, then located, as I have said in a previous chapter, at Lancaster, Pa. The first hazard was the Hudson River, which was quite difficult to cross in those days of no boats. I asked a handsome, big, traffic policeman how to set about it.

"Take the Desbrosses street ferry," he advised.

At Desbrosses street and the river, however, I learned that no ferries were running because no boats of any kind had yet been invented. I found out afterwards that the traffic policeman was none other than A. D. Lasker, famous two years later as the designer and builder of the first boat. At the time he spoke to me, he was doubtless so full of his dream of boats that he thought they were already actually in existence.

On the corner of Hudson and Spring streets, I asked directions of a friendly looking vendor of shoe laces.

(Editor's note: This was undoubtedly Mary Lewis.)

(Author's note: No, it was a man.)

(Editor's note: My mistake.)

He told me to walk way up past Troy on the east bank of the river, and look for a Ford. After what seemed to me a rather tedious stroll, I passed through Troy and began looking all over for a Ford, but couldn't find one—or any other kind for that matter. I told my troubles to a farmer, who laughed heartily and said:

"Mon, mon!" (He was a Scotchman). "Ye are long before ze day of ze automobile. When your New York friend said 'Ford,' he meant 'a place in a river where it may be crossed by wading.'"

EMBARRASSED and chagrined, I walked down to the river bank and removed my shoes, stockings and plasters, as this seemed as narrow and shoal a point as any other.

"What's the idea?" inquired a deep voice which I discovered belonged to a white-bearded, old fisherman who was dredging for chocolate-covered almonds.

When I told him my plan, he tried hard to discourage me.

"You will never make it. No Yale man ever has, and only five Princetonians."

"What Princeton can do, so can Yale!" I replied, and sang two stanzas of the Yale song—"Beulah, Beulah!"

Covering myself from head to foot with grease, I stepped boldly into the treacherous stream, which at that juncture is twenty-eight feet wide and knee deep. In less than half a day I was on the west bank, but wish to state that I owe my success quite as much to the encouragement given me by Whiteman's orchestra, which accompanied me in a tug, continuously playing "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," and "Abide With Me," as to my fine physique and mastery of the crawl stroke.

(Editor's note: Mr. Lardner was the first to employ the crawl stroke, covering the entire twenty-eight feet on his hands and knees).

Unable to break off the habit all at once, I crawled down to Albany and caught the night boat back to New York.

(Editor's note: Boats had, by this time, been invented).

From New York I crossed to Jersey by ferry and decided to enter Princeton, as it was closer and I had heard there were vacancies on the hockey team and the mandolin eleven. Also I was attracted by the promise of an occasional glimpse of my late host's daughters, Vera and Bera Grudge, co-eds at Old Nassau.

OUR hockey season began inauspiciously. In the first place, the athletic association had neglected to provide a Puck and the local newsstands had sold out. On the opening night of practice we played with a copy of Godey's Lady's Book, but it proved unwieldy. And it was an open winter in New Jersey and the lake was not frozen over.

"There is no ice," I said one evening to Bera Grudge, who had inquired how we were doing. "We ought to have some ice."

"Ring for a bellboy," was her view of the episode.

Perhaps I ought to explain, before proceeding, that hockey was not played the same in those days as it is now. The players numbered only two and their positions were, respectively, Go Way Back and Sit Down. The records will bear me out when I say that I was the best Sit Down Princeton ever had, not even barring F. Scott Fitzgerald. In fact, I could hardly stand up during my collegiate career.

Our first big game that season was with Wesleyan and we lost it by default, both my teammate, Carson Hull (later known as Big Bill Edwards), and I forgetting all about it. Some of the undergraduates got very angry at us for this and for many days, every time we would appear on the campus, they would point at us and shout: "You bad men, you!"

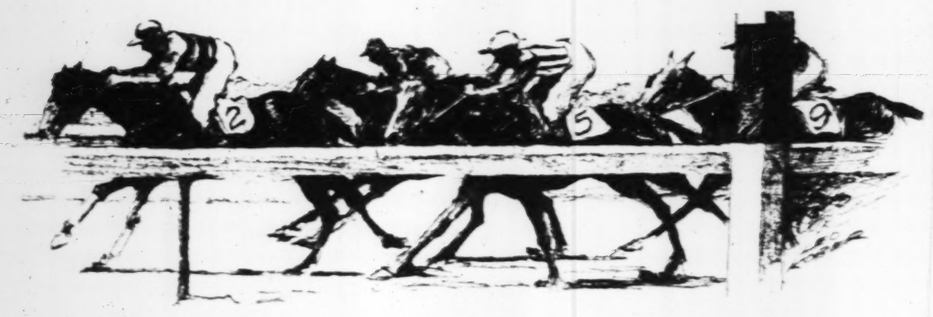
TO BEAT THE RACES—BET THE OTHER MAN'S MONEY



The Golden Rule in Race Track Touting, as Expounded by a Well-Known Ex-Jockey and Exemplified by the Sad Story of Jerry the Clocker, Who Kept $1,500 in the Bank.

By JOCKEY DELMAR

As told to F. F. Wetmore

IF you are a racing tout and are in the business of selling hot tips on the ponies, I want to give you a bit of advice. Or if you are not a tout but are one of the millions who bet on the horses and buy hot tips—well, just the same you may be interested in the things that go on in a tout's life. This last season in the South certainly was a big lesson for me. Will it do me any good? I don't know. I've been touting winners—and losers—all my life and I've never learned anything yet. Still that lesson ought to sink in. It is this:

Pick winners, but be a philanthropist about it. Pick winners for the other fellow, and take your cut. If you've doped the ponies right, you ought to be tickled to death that he is getting the long end of the luck, that he is taking the big money and you're merely receiving your small share. Don't pick winners for yourself. Don't bet your own money.

I know it's tough sometimes. You're sure you've got a winner. You give the horse to a fellow and he bets $100, and puts down a $10 bet for you. The horse wins at 10 to 1. He makes $1000. You make only $100. You had $200 in your pocket and if you had bet it you could have made $2000. But don't do it. Take my advice, and don't do it. If I hadn't done it, I wouldn't have had to ride a freight train back to New York.

I landed down at the Laurel track between Washington and Baltimore with just enough to get myself a jockey's outfit—that is, all except the boots. The soft leather boots that the jockeys wear cost a lot of money, and when you haven't got the price you pick up a secondhand pair of those stiff, shiny boots made for army officers.

I USED to start from Washington and walk out toward the race track. People driving to the races would see me. A jockey is a mighty interesting sight when people are betting. They would offer me a lift and I would take it. I would say I was exercise boy or something for one of the big stables and pretty soon they would come to the point. Did I know anything? Well, naturally, I looked wise. Of course I knew the inside stuff around the stables, but I wasn't telling any of it—that is, until I found out how much money they had. If they had enough to make a few good bets and put down each a $10 or $20 bet for me, I would give them one of those inside tips. If they didn't, I would immediately leave that car, walk some more and pick up another one.

Well, sometimes I couldn't even raise the price for a grandstand seat at the track and just watch them run. You can't beat the gate down at that race course. Sometimes I had enough to buy a ticket in the cheap section, and I sat among hoi polloi. That was the case one day, and right down in front of me were two very dark gentlemen. I could tell they belonged to the stables. They were talking horses, but in a very secretive way.

"Ah knows a hoss," said one of the darkies, "who's gonna be a winnah, but not in the next race he's gonna run in. It's the one afterward."

"What hoss is that?" asked the other.

"Ah'll tell you, but not now. Ah'll whispah it to you when we get home. But it's gonna be a big killin'. He lost the othah day at twenty-eight-thutty, and after he loses the next race the odds is gonna be good."

Twenty-eight-thirty? Well did I remember those figures. I had touted Delusive several days previously and the horse had lost at twenty-eight thirty.

A few days later I saw Delusive entered. The field was one that he surely couldn't beat. The colored gentleman had said he wouldn't win the next race. Sure enough, he lost. He was entered in another race and was then taken out. He was entered in another and again was scratched. Obviously it was planned to put him in a place where he would surely win. Then Delusive was taken down to the Bowie track. I hopped a freight and followed. He was entered.

I touted my head off. I rustled around day and night giving the horse to people. On the day of the race I put on my jockey suit and hit the road to catch the motorists. I got a few that way. Delusive won at 15 to 1, and I made $1500.

THAT was the break of the luck. After that for a couple of months I could pick scarcely anything but winners. Once I had 15 winners straight. I was rolling in money. I didn't know what to do with it. People hounded me for tips, eager to put down large bets for me in return for information. Fifty thousand dollars piled up on me.

I was right on the crest of things when I ran across an old friend, Jack Brady. We were discussing the run of luck I was having, and he said he wanted to tell me the story of a funny thing that happened around the race track in New Orleans not so long ago. I told him to fire away and he ran along something like this:

"There's a fellow named Harry Reed. That's one of his names. I know him pretty well and he blew in one day looking very seedy and down and out.

"'Jack,' he said, 'I've been playing in the toughest luck ever. It's sure been awful. But now I've got the right steer. I'm going to get some money and I need a hundred to do it. Let me have it and I'll give it back to you sure day after tomorrow.'

"Maybe I would get it back, and maybe I wouldn't. It's that way with friends. But a few days later Reedie shows up dressed like a millionaire. He pulls out a big roll and hands me my hundred.

"'How did you do it, Reedie?'

"'JUST an idea, and the right one. The way to do it is to sell tips. $2 for your dope whether the horse wins or not. A lot of them do it and it's all right if you can get enough people to buy. My scheme is to write advertisements that will get them. I've been writing the right kind of "come on." Look in the papers and you will see my ads—I'm Jerry the Clocker.'

"'That's fine,' I said. 'I've seen the ads and I've been buying the dope envelopes and betting on them. And the horses have been winning.'

"'I didn't see your name,' he replied. 'The money has been coming in so fast that I've had four girls taking it out of the letters.'

"'But how have you been picking the winners?'

"'Just luck. I've had a lucky run. I was sure I'd get a bit of money at first. The luck has run up into thousands. On the luck I've had I'll be raking it in for another month.'

"His luck continued amazingly and he did rake it in. A week later he came in and said:

"'Come along with me. I need you. I'm getting married, and you're to be the best man. But don't tell the girl anything about racing. She's very proper and thinks I'm making my money in the real estate business.'

"I STOOD as the best man at the wedding. Two months passed and then one night Reedie came in looking as though lightning had struck him.

"'I put all my money on Hard Cider this afternoon,' he moaned. '$20,000, every cent I owned. You know what happened. I'm clean.'

"On the day before the race he had met the owner of Hard Cider, who had known him in previous times and had always been a kind friend to him. Reedie asked for information. He did not let on that he was Jerry the Clocker, but said he wanted to make a small bet, a $20 bill. The owner told him that Hard Cider would win the next day. He was very positive, and that, together with his standing and his friendship for Reedie, left no doubt of the fact that Hard Cider would win. Reedie went straight to his office and blurbed Hard Cider in the most inspired ad he had ever written. It was a masterpiece. At the track the next day he bet all of his money.

"Later on, after he had lost, he met the owner of Hard Cider, who rushed up to him.

"'If you bet that twenty, Reedie,' he said, 'I'll give it back to you. After I left you I found that one of those cheap touts had got Hard Cider. God knows how, and was advertising him for the limit. It was a damned good thing to teach him a lesson. We ran the horse all morning until he didn't have any wind for the race.'

"It was a sad story, and I consoled Reedie as well as I could.

"'AT ANY rate,' I said, 'there is that fifteen hundred you put in the bank for your wife. With that you can keep you office going.'

"'Yes,' he replied, 'that's left anyway.'

"He went away, but in a couple of hours was back, and now he was almost weeping.

"'When I got home,' he said, 'and the wife saw me, she ran up to me and began begging me to forgive her. She had done an awful thing. She [illegible] never even thought of race horses [illegible] fore, but there was a fellow [illegible] Jerry the Clocker who had an ad [illegible] the paper this morning, and it was [illegible] convincing that she was certain [illegible] horse he recommended would win. How? you know already—Castile' soap! Nothing else! Not implying for a moment that there is any miraculous virtue in Castile—still as you know nothing to approach it has ever been found in all the six hundred years since Castile was first made.

So we could think of nothing finer than a finer Castile. Therefore, we have made for you this exquisite soap, Doña Castile. We have made it better in certain specific respects: Doña comes in an exquisitely dainty shape for your hand; it's "hard-milled," therefore lasting and non-deliquescent, it will give you a rich, cleansing lather, grateful as cold cream, even in lukewarm water—important!—and it will rinse instantly. These Two Creams are all a sun-dried, faded, roughened skin needs to bring back its freshness, its clear, smooth charm.

After summer . . . How to bring back the clear smooth beauty of your skin . . .

Miss Elinor Patterson successful as "The Nun" in "The Miracle" and a skilled horsewoman, says: "Pond's Two Creams are sure in fulfillment."

FALL is here with smart, new fashions, races, horse-shows, polo matches. Just when you long to look your best, your poor burned skin won't let you!

If only your faded sunburn and tan, that coarsened texture of your skin, could be changed back to softness, a fresh, clear glow!

You can bring back—and quickly, too—that clear smooth beauty summer's robbed you of. Follow the method the beautiful women of social prestige pursue. Carefully every day use the two delicate fluffy Creams made by Pond's. In place of the damage summer did will come a finer, more velvety quality than your skin has ever known before. In the next column read how. The Pond's Extract Company, 131 Hudson Street, New York City.

For a sun-dried sun-burned skin—Often by day, and before retiring, cleanse with Pond's Cold Cream patting it on generously, leaving it long enough for its fine oils to cleanse the dry pores of all deep lodged impurities. Wipe off and repeat. Add more Pond's Cold Cream and leave it to be gradually absorbed. This will restore your skin's suppleness.

Then to protect the skin, apply Pond's Vanishing Cream thinly, before going out.

For a tanned, roughened skin—Cleanse often with Pond's Cold Cream and follow with occasional applications of Pond's Vanishing Cream. This smooths away all roughnesses, keeps the skin soft, restores its delicate flower-like quality.

Blemishes, sallowness, that sluggish muddy look, will also gradually yield to the gentle ministrations of these same Two Creams by Pond's.

"HURRY-UP" because the maid's out. Or because you had your elaborate dinner in the middle of the day. Or because it is too hot to eat a big meal.

But it need not be an ordinary Sunday supper just because you don't feel like cooking. Lift it above the level of "just another meal" by serving "Canada Dry." This fine old ginger ale is a pleasant change from the usual routine, and your family and guests will appreciate it.

But be sure you get "Canada Dry." Cheap ginger ales will not bring you the same refreshment. Nine times out of ten they aren't real ginger ales at all, but are made with capsicum, or plain red pepper. And you don't want that.

Purity is the first essential in every beverage and you get no substitutes in "Canada Dry."

Behind the Scenes of Their Lives

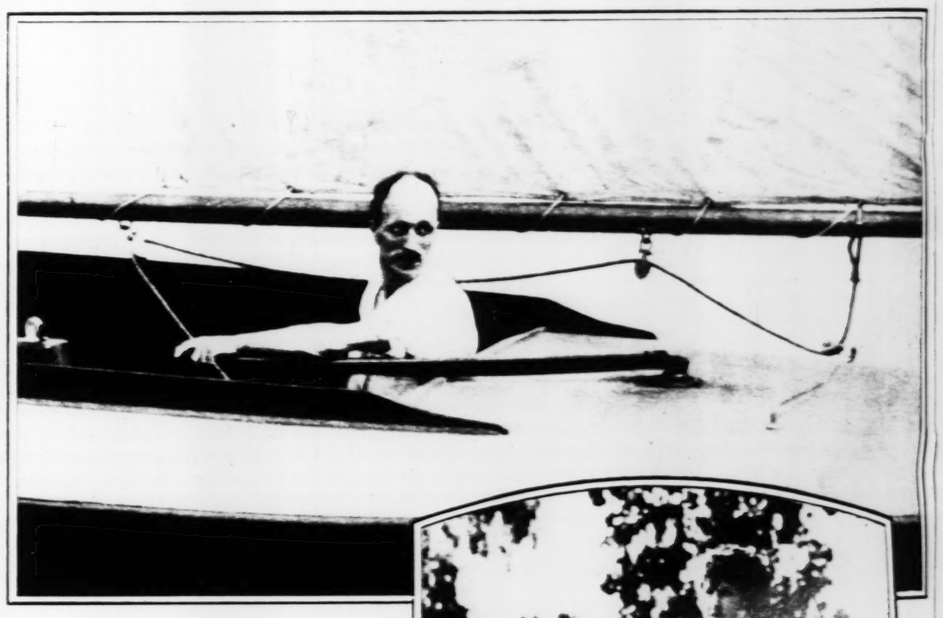
They banished constipation—corrected skin and stomach troubles—found new joy in living— with one food

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes regularly every day before meals: on crackers — in fruit juices, water or milk — or just plain, nibbled from the cake. For constipation especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before breakfast and at bedtime. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today!

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. N-917. The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York.



"I WAS TROUBLED with a stubborn constipation. I commenced to take Fleischmann's Yeast daily. At the end of a few weeks my constipation vanished, my nerves were steady, my general health was of the best and my appetite was ravenous. I am absolutely convinced that Fleischmann's Yeast and good health are synonymous."
Mark Hydon, Detroit, Mich.

BELOW

"I DEVELOPED A SEVERE CASE of skin trouble. I decided to give Fleischmann's Yeast a trial. In three months the skin trouble was gone and my general health much improved. Needless to say I am a Fleischmann 'Booster.'"
Ann McLaughlin, Cleveland, Ohio

"I HAD BEEN TROUBLED with indigestion for some time. On two different occasions I had an attack of indigestion and was in bed for several days. The last attack that I had almost proved fatal. I became informed of Fleischmann's Yeast and took three cakes every day for a period of three weeks. After a short time I obtained relief. At the end of the third week I was entirely well. I will always speak highly of Fleischmann's Yeast. In view of how Fleischmann's Yeast helped me, I continue to take one cake of Yeast daily to keep fit."
W. J. Rickett, East Orange, N. J.

"I AM A BEAUTY DOCTOR. Two years ago the influenza left me in a run-down condition. The very sight of food made me sick. My stomach could not retain anything. My physician ordered me to take Fleischmann's Yeast once a day dissolved in warm milk; then, as I grew stronger to increase it to four cakes a day. I did this for three months and improved steadily until I was back to normal. Now I feel better and stronger than ever before. I still use Fleischmann's Yeast daily. I feel I could not carry on my work without it."
Bessie Hanson, Hollywood, Cal.

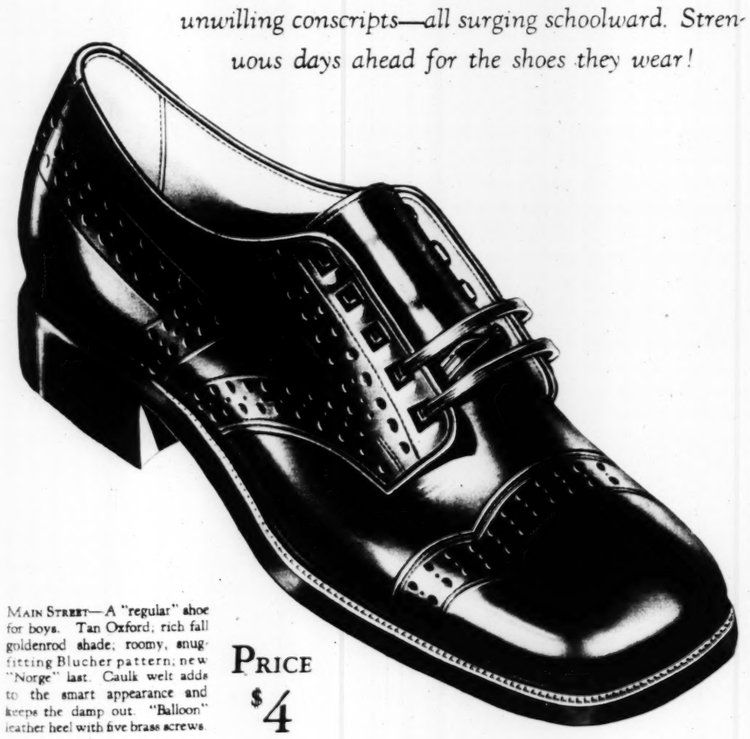
The largest—and most lovable—army in the world begins its annual attack on shoes

September! School doors opening. An army of twenty-five million American boys and girls mobilizing. . . . Eager volunteers, carefree adventurers, unwilling conscripts—all surging schoolward. Strenuous days ahead for the shoes they wear!



MAIN STREET—A "regular" shoe for boys. Tan Oxford; rich fall goldenrod shade; roomy, snug-fitting Blucher pattern; new "Norge" last. Caulk welt adds to the smart appearance and keeps the damp out. "Balloon" leather heel with five brass screws.

"The life of a shoe is principally in the quality of the outsole. Good leather shoes have 'bend' outsoles—the best part of the hide. The balance of the hide belongs in insoles, counters and heels. These shoemaking methods are especially important in shoes for growing boys and girls, where greater durability is needed than in shoes worn by the average grown-up."—GEORGE F. JOHNSON, Pres., Endicott-Johnson Corporation.

Do you know that of 105 million pairs of boys' and girls' shoes purchased annually by American households, 15 million are Endicott-Johnson shoes? One pair in every seven! Significant, isn't it? There must be something unusual about these shoes. There is: Wear and value such as you simply can't find in any other shoes of similar price range.

An "Industrial Democracy" makes these shoes . . . an organization of tanners and shoemakers in which every worker has a direct interest—a partner's pride—in every pair he makes. The leather in them—tanned by our own special processes, in tanneries that are among the largest in the world—is extra-strong. Designs are based on actual wearing tests—on real boys and girls. Workmanship is the finest you ever saw in shoes selling for so little. They're comfortable, durable, stylish and real money-saving shoes. Try them!

Scores of beautiful new fall styles—for men and women as well as for boys and girls.

Fifty thousand stores sell Endicott-Johnson shoes. Our trade-mark is on the sole

VOTE ON RECALL OF MAYOR MILLER POSTPONED UNTI APRIL ELECTIO

Chairman Heil Announce
Petitions Will Not B
Filed in Time for Ballo
ing in November.

TO KEEP ISSUE FOR MUNICIPAL POL

He Declares Phillip
Moore and Otto F. Kark
Have Indorsed Progra for Delay in Movement

The proposed recall of May Miller will not be voted upon the election of Nov. 2. This w announced today by John . He chairman of the Miller Rec Committee, who said t the sa time that the recall petitions po itively would be filed in time place the question on the ball at the municipal election in A 1927.

Heil said the committee, whi has been working on petitions sin last spring, "is prepared to f the petitions," but would not do in time for the November electio
The reason given by him is th the November election involves n tional and state issues, while t election of next April is wholly municipal one.

Heil named Philip N. Moo mining engineer, and Otto
Karbe, lawyer, as having indorse the course announced. Their nam have not hitherto appeared in co nection with the recall movemer

As was pointed out in the Pos
Dispatch a few days ago, postpon
ment of the recall vote until ne
April will mean that, in case th recall carries, the president of th
Board of Aldermen will becon
Mayor for more than a year an a half. His successor, under th city charter, would be elected the election of November, 1928, an would hold office until the electio of April, 1929.

If the recall were voted in No vember the aldermanic presiden would become Mayor only unt next April, when a Mayor woul be chosen for two years.

Neun's Term Expires in April.

Walter J. G. Neun is now pres dent of the Board of Aldermen, bu his term expires next April, an his successor will be elected at th same election at which it is no promised to hold the vote on re call of the Mayor. The charte provides that, when a recall pro posal receives a majority of vote the office affected becomes vacan in five days. It would appea therefore, that the newly electe president of the Board of Alder men would succeed to any vacanc in the mayoralty. It is, of course possible that Neun will be his ow successor.

Fear Split in G. O. P. Vote.

Pressure is believed to have bee applied by local Republican lead ers, including some who are op posed to Mayor Miller, to keep th recall matter off the November bal lot. They fear that it would spli the Republican vote, and would endanger Senator Williams, if no the candidates on the local ticket
Next April, when the election fo for a president and Aldermen from the 14 even-numbered wards, the normal Republican majority is considered sufficient to stand the shock of division over the recall.

Another interesting possibility is that, if the city-county merger is voted in the meantime, all the voters of what is now St. Louis County will be entitled to vote on the recall proposal, though they had no part in electing Mayor Miller. In case of the merger, also, six Aldermen from the newly created wards, three for 2-year and three for 4-year terms, would be chosen at the April election.

Statement by Heil.

Heil's statement, in full, is:

"The Recall Committee is prepared to file the petitions for the recall of Mayor Victor J. Miller.

"It was the original intention to place the proposition, that is, recall of Mayor Victor J. Miller, on the August primary ballot. Sufficient signatures were on hand at that time to file the petition, but able lawyers advised that the primary in August was not an election at which, under the Charter of the City of St. Louis, the recall could have been submitted. Had it been submitted in August, it would have been a nullity, regardless of how the people had voted.

"The submitting of the recall at any but a municipal election would confuse the issues and give one of the two major political parties an advantage. This recall is non-par-
